HOOVER HAS RADIO PLAN

Addresses Third Annual Parley

Proposes National System of Programs Affording Finest Entertainment

Says Local Stations Must Serve Listeners With Higher-Class Fare

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.— Organization of a national system of radio programs through a broadcasting association to give service such as press associations do for newspapers was suggested by Secretary Hoover tonight in an address opening the third national radio conference.

The conference is attended by representatives of all branches of the industry and was called by Mr. Hoover to consider the numerous problems of radio development in the United States. Beginning tomorrow morning the general sessions will be open to the public for discussion of any problem involving the industry.

The address tonight were broadcast through a system of eight-or-nine stations, others in addition to the Secretary scheduled to speak being C. P. Edwards of the Canadian Department of Marine and Fisheries, and Pedro P. Perez of the Cuban Radio Service.

In presenting his views tonight Secretary Hoover reiterated his opposition to any attempt to monopolize the air, declaring that local broadcasting stations are of first importance and must not be driven from the field.

HOOVER'S PLAN

The secretary's suggested plan for a national program association would provide for a self-sustaining system of interconnection of radio broadcasting stations and the offering through those stations the best there can be in music and entertainment.

"My proposition," Mr. Hoover said, "is that the local stations will be able to bring to its listeners very important national programs, if necessary. The local station will be able to bring to its listeners the greatest music and entertainment of the nation, but far more than it must be able to deliver important pronouncements of public interest. It must bring instantly to the people a hundred and one items of national interest. To this must add matters of local interest. This can only be accomplished by regularly organized industry on a national basis, regularly organized and disciplined programs for some part of the day as supplement of more local activity.

La Follette Makes Inroads Mostly on Democratic Strongholds

Great Popularity of Calvin Largest Factor in Success of Party This Year

Louis Seibold, one of the most astute reporters and students of political conditions in the country, is making an impartial survey of the situation in the so-called doubtful States in the Presidential campaign. The following is one of a series of articles which will appear frequently in The Times.—Editor.

BY LOUIS SEIBOLD
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—Proof of the old adage that Republicans stop fighting after nominations are made and the Democrats begin is the first impression an inquisitive reporter gets of the Massachusetts political situation. The Republicans have nothing to fight over, despite many blunders committed by the President's managers. He will win the eighteen electoral votes of the old Bay State by something approximating the Harding plurality —400,000—in spite of their breaks.

The Democrats have more fights on their hands than ever before. Most of these disputes are due to emotional and factional causes and inability to agree on national and State fundamentals. They do not appear to know how to fight President Coolidge, what issue to center on or what to do with it even if they found one.

The Republicans are not at all apprehensive of the Klan bugaboo. The Democrats see little else. The Republicans have discounted the effect of the La Follette enterprise and are content to let the Wisconsin radical do his worst. La Follette's prospects do not alarm them. They believe he will do a great deal more damage to the Democrats than their own candidates.

DEMOCRATS PUZZLED

The Democrats confess uncertainty and disquiet concerning the extent of the La Follette wave. They admit it will be "big" in industrial centers such as Lynn, Lowell, Brockton, South Boston, Fall River, New Bedford and other communities where the percentage of the "foreign vote" is heaviest.

The Republican estimate of the La Follette following is around 75,000; the Democrats are afraid it will be larger. Wherefore, the Republicans are confident President Coolidge will have a comparatively easy victory unless all signs and

BOY MURDER BLIGHT HITS THIRD HOME

Residence of Instructor Suspect in Franks Case Put on Market

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The blight that fell over the exclusive Hyde Park district after Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb kidnaped and slew Bobby Franks, found its third victim today when the residence of Mott Kirk Mitchell, instructor in the Harvard School, was placed on the market. Mitchell was held as a suspect in the Franks case and it has been charged that efforts to force him to "confess" complicity in the crime have broken him physically. He resigned his position in the Harvard School and went to Wisconsin.

First the Franks home was sold because relatives of the murdered boy could not endure to remain there. Then the Leopold mansion was put on the market. There are intimations that the Loeb mansion will be sold.

OPERATION UNDERGONE BY McADOO

Physicians Say He Will be Able to Leave Hospital in About Ten Days

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BALTIMORE, Oct. 6.—William Gibbs McAdoo was operated on by Dr. Hugo H. Young in the Johns Hopkins Hospital today, and was said after the operation to have stood it well. It is expected that he will be able to leave in about ten days. The operation was to remove gravel from the bladder and was performed under a local anaesthetic. It is regarded as a minor operation, and Mr. McAdoo's general health has not been affected by it, it is said.

The former Secretary of the Treasury and candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in the record-breaking fight at the New York convention was able to converse with Dr. Young and the other surgeons during the operation, and is reported to be in excellent spirits.

Late tonight Mr. McAdoo was said to be resting comfortably.

Ten Year Term for Man Whose Car Killed Boy

SANTA ROSA, Oct. 6.—A sentence of not to exceed ten years was imposed today on L. J. Ament, Santa Rosa building contractor, upon his conviction of manslaughter in connection with the death of Ralph Streeter, 16 years of age, after being struck by an automobile driven by Ament.

The accident happened a year ago, the boy surviving for almost a year with a broken back.

RED CROSS CONVENTION ON

President Coolidge Praises Work and Pleads for Civilization Unburdened by War

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—With President Coolidge as its presiding officer the fourth annual Red Cross convention opened today, attended by hundreds of chapter delegates from all parts of the country. As honorary president of the Red Cross, Mr. Coolidge was the first speaker. He commended the organization and its work.

Among the other speakers was Brig.-Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau, who explained the steps taken to promote the welfare of America's veterans. Many of the recommendations passed at previous Red Cross conventions for the benefit of veterans, he said, had been put into effect either by Congressional legislation or by the Veterans' Bureau itself. At present, he declared, 38,000 rehabilitated soldiers are in better positions and earning better salaries than before the war.

NEW HOSPITALS

Director Hines said that up to 1921 war veterans had been housed in ordinary existing hospitals but since then $40,000,000 had been spent for the construction of suitable hospitals with the result that at present twenty-five of these are completed with an accommodation of 10,000 beds. Other hospitals are still under construction, capable of housing 1700 more patients.

Marquis Eaton, chairman of the Chicago chapter, was elected temporary chairman of the convention.

The afternoon session was taken up by round-table discussions of a number of Red Cross activities.

The foreign and Pan-American services of the organization were discussed in a meeting tonight at which members of the diplomatic corps were present as guests of the Red Cross.

PRESIDENT'S PLEA

Thanking the American Red Cross for its accomplishments for "practical humanity and inspired charity," President Coolidge pleaded for a truly civilized world, "where the costs of armament, of pensions, of fortifications, were not required to be borne."

"Where resources could be used," the President said, "to promote, not to destroy, happiness—in such a world what mighty works could be accomplished under the leadership of the Red Cross spirit. Poverty, ignorance, prejudice and all uncharitableness might be completely relieved and remedied."

Emphasizing "its practical idealism," Mr. Coolidge recalled the accomplishments of the Red Cross in relieving the distress resulting a year ago from the earthquake in Japan.

The Red Cross, he continued, had the organization capable of turning this great overflowing of the sympathy of the nation to the best account. It insured a maximum of relief at the minimum of outlay. The gratitude of a great nation, disclosed in manifold form, more than repaid the splendid response of our people directed through this sorganization. Philosophers and historians may record this as marking a new era in the relationship between the nations.

The Red Cross knows no creed, no party, no politics, no classes or groups, the President asserted. It is proof that materialism is not the motive of the people of the United States. The Red Cross idea will develop as mankind develops.

FRANCE FOR GERMAN ENTRY

League Seat Approval Given; Admission May be Effected at Assembly in December

BY HENRY WALES
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1924, by the Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The French government today approved Germany's admission to the League of Nations. Premier Herriot handed his reply to the German memorandum concerning joining the League to the German Ambassador, who pronounced the contents of the note satisfactory.

Although pointing out that all nations, large and small, are on the same basis of equality in the League, Premier Herriot's note states France's readiness to recognize the Reich as a great power and its willingness that Germany be granted one of the permanent seats in the Council. The French note, however, stresses the point that Germany cannot be an exception, and must assume all the responsibilities shared by the other powers and execute all the international engagements the same as the rest.

This means that France expects Germany to sign the guarantee of security protocol without reservations, and must comply with the requisites of admission—the execution of all treaties.

Quai D'Orsay believes the Inter-Allied Disarmament Control Commission now checking up Germany's disarmament and demobilization in conformity with the Versailles Treaty will end its work within another month, and, if its report is favorable Germany's admission, may form the object of a special assembly to be called in the middle of December. The admission of Russia and Turkey also may be examined at the same session.

The French expect to amend the Council rules abolishing the unanimity rule at the next meeting in Rome so Germany, as a member of the Council, could not hold up the proceedings through its solitary ballot.

GIANTS WIN WEIRD TILT

Down Senators by 6 to 4

Terrible Pitching Features Third Game of Series for Championship

New York Takes Lead Never to be Headed; Washington Rally Talls Short

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Out of one of the wildest baseball maelstroms that any world's series has ever witnessed, the New York Giants emerged victorious today over Washington in the third game and gained a commanding edge in the 1924 championship struggle.

Fought out on a new battlefield before the greatest crowd that ever flocked to the Polo Grounds, lair of the four-time National League champions, the Giants won by a margin of 6 to 4, but the outcome was in doubt until the final play in the ninth inning, when the Senators were checked only after staging a typically spectacular finish.

Three runs behind when going into the ninth after a luckless battle against heavy odds the Senators scored one run and had the bases full with one out only when "Long John" Watson, the third Giant pitcher of the inning, stopped the rally and saved the game for the McGraw men.

This was the climax to a game that, though sparkling at times with the most brilliant sort of play, was also largely a sand-lot character, punctuated with loose work, misved opportunities and marked by the most ineffective exhibition of twirling any series contest has witnessed in years. In a "parade of the wooden pitchers," four moundsmen were called into the hectic fray by each of the rival managers, while the rush of other reserves produced a total of twenty-nine combatants before the smoke of battle had cleared.

STEADINESS WINS

The Giants, leading from the start, but never out of danger, won because they were steadier, displayed the more effective punch when it was needed and, at critical moments, put up a formidable defensive barrier in which Frank Frisch, playing one of the most spectacular games of his career, was the outstanding figure.

The Senators fought gamely and they were always threatening, but the American champions played against heavy odds after losing the services of their veteran shortstop, Roger Peckinpaugh, bulwark of the team's great infield and batting hero of yesterday's victory. Peckinpaugh pulling a "Charley-horse" in running out an infield grounder in the second inning, was forced to retire, and Washington's makeshift inner defense after that was wobbly.

But Peck's mishap, which Manager Harris said tonight was not serious, and probably would not keep him out tomorrow, was only one of the several factors that produced the Senators' downfall and damaged their prospects of gaining their first world championship. In the crisis the team's pitching staff collapsed, its attack fell down in the pinches with two costly misplays, one by the usually reliable Harris, and another by Miller, substituting at third base for Bluege, who had moved over to fill Peck's shoes at short, figuring in the reversal.

RECORD CROWD

The Senators fought their losing battle before a record-breaking crowd of close to 50,000 that cheered them with enthusiasm scarcely less than that of the home crowd that saw the two opening games in Washington. The Giants, making their first appearance before their metropolitan followers since the cloud of scandal enshrowded them, were noisily received by the crowd, which seemed to have largely forgotten the dark page in the closing chapter of the National League race, but the real acclaim was given the battling Senators.

In the fourth inning, when the Senators scored twice and pulled up to within one run of the Giants, the crowd called wildly for a further rally, which was checked, however, with the bases full. Again in the eighth, when the visitors threatened to break through, and in the ninth, when they were stopped once more with the bases loaded, they were encouraged by excited outbursts. It seemed to pinkie, and possibly rattle the Giants — this unusual home-town demonstration — but they pulled themselves together in the face of it and won.

The size of the crowd, however, was full proof of the unusual interest that has been aroused by the fight between the Senators and Giants in spite of circumstances which it seemed at first might jeopardize the playing caliber of the championship. Officially, the paid attendance was 47,608, but several thousand more did not contribute to the gate receipts of $156,572, which also established a new record for the Polo Grounds. The

Russia Said to Gain Control of Eastern Rail System Through Treaty

Embassies of Soviet Opened in Shanghai and Peking; United States Hit

BY JOHN POWELL
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1924, by the Chicago Tribune.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 6.—Dispatches from Moscow received here today say that Russia and China just have signed an agreement having for its object the ejection of foreign interests from China. The administration of the Chinese Eastern Railroad, it is said, was turned over by China to Russia.

This serious news is emphasized by the sudden action of Russia today in Peking and Shanghai in raising the soviet flag and opening embassies and consulates-general.

M. Ellender, newly appointed Russian Consul-General here, took advantage of the opening of the Russian Consulate to give a reception, which was attended by local Chinese and Reds of various nationalities, at which he attacked the United States and other powers for assembling war craft in Shanghai harbor to protect lives and property in China's civil war.

M. Ellender told the Chinese that while the soviet came to China peacefully and as an equal, the powers are here with their big guns to protect foreign interests. Among the Chinese Communists are members of labor unions and Socialists.

An agent of the Chinese Kuomintang, Communist party, said that Dr. Sun Yat Sen was leader of the Chinese Communists and that it was now necessary for the Chinese people to take the power into their own hand and rid the land of the imperialist westerners. He said that eventually the Red banner would float over all China in partnership with soviet Russia.

RIVAL OFFICIALS

The consular building was festooned all day with red bunting and flags. Among the Chinese officials who attended the party was Gen. Lu Yung-Hsiang, leader of the Chekiang forces now at war with the Kiangsu Tuchun.

Shanghai's political status was further complicated today by Peking mandates published locally appointing a new complement of officials for the government of the Shanghai area. Wen Shih Shis-taun, formerly Commissioner of Foreign Affairs at Nanking, who arrived at Shanghai Saturday night, informed the foreign consuls that he had been appointed Commissioner of Customs and concurrently Commissioner of Foreign Affairs here to function on behalf of the Peking government.

This gives to Shanghai two complete sets of Chinese officials, one set trying to function outside of the foreign settlements and loyal to the revolutionary generals, Lu Yung-Hsiang and Ho Feng-Lin, and the other set inside the foreign settlement trying to function on behalf of the Peking government. The latter are afraid to leave the borders of the foreign settlement for fear of arrest and execution by the revolutionists.

Commissioner Wen has as good as told the foreign consuls here that he expects protection as the agent of the Peking government and that he does not expect to be interfered with. Wen also told the consular representatives here that Peking expects the powers to help in driving the rebel generals out of this area if the powers want to protect the foreign areas here

The first measurable quantity of rain for the season fell in Los Angeles last night, the total shown by the last reading being .14 of an inch. Light showers about noon, designated officially as "only a trace" ushered in the season. But during the dinner hour a heavier shower commenced and readings on the rain measure became possible.

"Intermittant showers throughout the night may raise the total rainfall to a quarter of an inch," Col. H. D. Hersey of the United States Weather Bureau said. "But we are on the extreme southern end of a heavy rainstorm extending to the northern part of the state, and I don't look for a steady rain as yet."

WILL STAY COOL

Col Hersey added that the temperature would remain moderately cool throughout the storm.

The district surrounding Santa Barbara received the greatest amount of moisture yesterday, the town of Gibraltar leading the list with .58 of an inch. Santa Paula and San Luis Obispo each had .43 of an inch of rain. At Santa Barbara .34 of an inch fell, while Ventura had .39 of an inch.

Both rain and snow-falls in the High Sierras and the Giant Forest reserve, where the Southern California Edison Company has large water-power generating plants, together with considerable rainfall over large sections of the San Joaquin Valley where the demand for agricultural pumping is very high, have tended to relieve the water-power situation, it was declared by Edison officials. Shortly after midnight yesterday morning the first precipitation was reported from Huntington Lake, about seventy-five miles northeast of Fresno; the rain quickly turning to snow. During most of yesterday rain fell heavily in the vicinity of the cities

Helium on Way From Texas Necessary to Give Capacity Lifting Power for Coast Voyage

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LAKEHURST (N. J.) Oct. 6.—The arrival of two carloads of helium gas which are making their devious way by railroad are all that delays the Navy dirigible, Shenandoah, from starting on its 9000-mile voyage twice over three sides of the United States.

It involves risks which Rear-Admiral W. A. Moffatt, in charge of navy aeronautics, wishes to avoid.

The Navy Department has been deluged with requests from cities, villages and individuals that the ship lay its course so as to come within their horizon. If the requests were granted the voyage would be zigzag over the United States. Many of the requests come from Congressmen who want the Leviathan of the skies to circle home districts and would not be averse to the distribution of a few tons of speeches as campaign literature from the aerial visitor.

TRIP SCHEDULE

The schedule: To Fort Worth, ethey by Lakehurst, York, Pa., Cumberland, Md., Dayton, O., Paducah, Ky., Little Rock, Ark., Fort Worth, 1418 miles, or via, Lakehurst, Dover, Del., Richmond, Va., Winston Salem, N. C., Atlanta, Ga., Birmingham, Ala., Fort Worth, 1475 miles.

The route will depend on the weather.

To San Diego via Fort Worth, Abilene, Midland, Barstow, Vanhorn, El Paso, Tex., Tucson, Ariz., Yuma, Ariz., San Jacinto, Cal., 1336 miles.

To Lakeview via San Diego, Los Angeles, Point Arguello, Monterey, San Francisco, Eureka, Astoria, 1299 miles.

The return voyage is charted by practically the same course. Each leg of the voyage is from thirty-eighty to forty-three hours, with anchorages of from six to nine hours between. Under the schedule the trip will be flying 244 hours and anchored thirty-nine. The return to Lakehurst is due twelve days after the start.

Republican Foes Grow Desperate in Fight to Discredit Coolidge

PLAN CAMPAIGN OF VILIFICATION

Democrats to Center Attack on Faith in President

Hope to Undermine People's Confidence in Character

Popularity Found Greatest Handicap on Opponents

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG
"Times" Staff Correspondent
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. — This week, the fourth before election, opens with several significant shifts in the fighting forces and tactics of the chief contenders for the Presidency. Candidate Davis has abandoned the West, apparently for good, and is making his appeal in the East, his corps and division commanders bringing up their forces in a concentrated drive on that section.

Candidate La Follette, for the first time since his nomination, has started West on a tour which may or may not take him to the Pacific Coast. In other words these two leaders have exchanged points of attack. "Why," asked an eminent supporter of the Democratic candidate today, "should we try to continue to make trouble for Coolidge in the West, when La Follette is doing as good a job as we could?"

The Coolidge forces are not being concentrated in either the West or the East, but their numbers are being multiplied and the fields of their operations increased.

Tonight, however, marked the opening of a new and more direct Republican offensive in the agricultural West, former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois delivering at Davenport, Iowa, the first of a series of speeches he is to make to the farmers of the Middle West and Northwest.

CENTER FIRE ON COOLIDGE

Immediately impending are assaults from divergent points by Democrats on the character, ability, record and performances of President Coolidge. In the face of several notable speeches which the President has made expounding his beliefs and policies as to the manner in which the national government should be conducted, the Democrats more lustily than the supporters of the La Follette ticket, complain that Coolidge is saying nothing. Promising to "smoke him out" and "unmask" him they are preparing to turn loose such picturesque partisan orators as Senators Heflin, Caraway, Harrison and Robinson in various parts of the country in an effort to destroy what they term "the Coolidge myth." Preliminary indications of this are already at hand.

Admittedly, the greatest handicap so far encountered by both the Democratic and the La Follette managers is the hold that President Coolidge has on the confidence and approval of the American people. It is also admitted that very much of the President's strength in this regard lies in his refusal to make extravagant promises, to talk on trivial subjects, or to conduct himself after the manner of a professional office seeker; in brief, his characteristic stinginess in the expenditure of words, which is reflected in his similar thrift in the expenditure of public money.

NO LIMIT ON SENATORS

While Candidate Davis himself possibly will observe the dignities and the courtesies of a candidate opposing the President, these Senators frankly will cast aside all consideration of the respect due to the Chief Magistrate and will go as far in derision and denunciation as their fancies may dictate.

The speech of Gov. Lowden at Davenport, Iowa, tonight is of somewhat more importance than the average campaign address. Gov. Lowden, a farmer himself and a successful one, for several years has been very active in farm organization work, not only in Illinois but in several other agricultural States. He has the confidence of real farmers and their high respect.

In Nebraska, the Dakotas, Minnesota and Montana exists a widespread demand to hear Gov. Lowden speak on the agricultural problems of the day. It is apparent that this demand is to be granted for it is indicated that Mr. Lowden is to make a number of other speeches.

STRONG SENTIMENT FOR COOLIDGE FOUND

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Cheering reports of the progress of the campaign were brought to President Coolidge today by former Senator Joseph I. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, and Representative James T. Begg of Ohio.

Senator Frelinghuysen and Congressman Begg both told the President that the tide of sentiment in support of the Republican ticket is running so strong in the East and in the Middle West that nothing can prevent an overwhelming Coolidge victory on November 4.

Mr. Begg has just concluded a campaign which took him into Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and into his own State of Ohio. There can be no question, he said, as to the result in all these States.

"The mobilization of sentiment for President Coolidge is so strong in all these States that victory is assured. There can be no question about it; not only will we elect the Coolidge-Dawes ticket by a very large plurality, but we feel assured of a Republican victory all along the line."

KEEPS UP SCOLDING CAMPAIGN

Candidate Davis Finds Everything Coolidge Does is All Wrong

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ALBANY (N. Y.) Oct. 6.—Launching a general attack against the Coolidge administration on questions of foreign policy, tariff legislation, sectional feelings, John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President, brought his campaign into the New York capital tonight as the guest of Gov. Al E. Smith.

In his reference to the foreign policy questions, Mr. Davis said he could see only two courses open to this country. One was to arm the nation to the point where it need not fear aggression even from the united strength of other powers and the second was to meet all other powers in conference and build up understandings which would make future aggression impossible. He pointed out the refusal of the Washington government to attend the Geneva conference called by the League of Nations to consider questions of abolishing war, of arbitration in armaments and the codification of international law.

"There is neither safety nor honor in a mere policy of drift," Mr. Davis said.

Mr. Davis declared that the Republican party "cannot cover its failure to perform its past promises by making new promises for the future."

The second question of importance to be settled by the November election, the candidate asserted, was that dealing with the growth of sectional feeling in the United States.

"Nothing is clearer than that the policy pursued by the Republican party and approved by President Coolidge," he said, "has succeeded in setting the agricultural West against the Industrial East.

"Not content with this, we have a new effort to put the North against the South. Since the Washington Post has seen fit to publish the extraordinary outburst which Secretary Wilbur—the latest of the 'best minds'—was prepared to emit at Denver, we get some idea of the extent to which men are willing to go for partisan purposes. Apparently it was his intention to wave once more the 'bloody shirt' and preach against the crusade of civic hatred."

WHEELER TURNS GUNS ON WORK

Senator-Candidate Displays "Secret Contract"

Conveys Impression There's Been Skullduggery

Also He Digs Up Something About Coolidge

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SEATTLE, Oct 6.—In a campaign speech to a Seattle audience tonight, Senator Wheeler, independent Vice-Presidential candidate, charged that there had been, with Interior Secretary Work's approval, "a secret contract entered into between J. P. Morgan's Alaska Steamship Company on the one hand and the government-owned Alaska railroad on the other," which fixed divisions of freight rates between the two concerns on joint shipments.

He also assailed President Coolidge in a prepared-in-advance text which recited an account of banking transactions in State funds when the President was Governor of Massachusetts.

"Senator La Follette, one year and a half ago asked Secretary Work to furnish him with a copy of each and every contract entered into between the government railroad and the Alaska Steamship Company and the Pacific Steamship Company," Senator Wheeler said. "I have here Secretary Work's reply. There were inclosed copies of three unimportant and perfectly regular business contracts. Secretary Work, no doubt, believed he had disposed of Senator La Follette.

AHA, THE PAPERS!

"I am now holding up for your view the contract which Senator La Follette wished to see. It is a secret agreement as to the joint rates on freight shipped by the Morgan steamship lines and the government railroad between the ports of Seattle and Tacoma and points on the government railroad. Why should a government railroad make a secret rate agreement with anbody?"

Atty.-Gen. Rustgard of Alaska, Senator Wheeler proceeded, obtained the copy of the contract and a letter declaring that it "was not for general publication nor for the public." Wheeler read a paragraph from the exhibited document which said, "The Alaska engineering commission and the steamship companies will treat . . . all division arrangements as confidential and promulgate the information to interested employees only."

Concluding this subject, he said that the first steps proposed by the independent ticket candidates was the breaking of this unfair, legal hold of the Morgan-Guggenheim group upon the land and water transportation of Alaska.

ANOTHER ONE

"I ask your close attention to the following facts," he proceeded. "In 1920, Calvin Coolidge was Governor of Massachusetts. Joseph C. Allen was State bank examiner and Fred J. Burrel was State Treasurer. Max Mitchel was president of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company of Boston, which failed September 25 of that year, causing losses to over 22,000 depositors.

"Under the Massachusetts law the deposits of State funds in any one bank must not be more than 40 per cent of the bank's capital stock. A law suit resulted. State Treasurer Burrell testified as follows:

"That about 1 a.m., on a spring day of 1920, Max Mitchell, president of the bank, called him on the telephone, saying that unless he received money from some source before the bank opened that day, the bank would go broke.

"That he, Burrell, went to Gov. Coolidge to whom he talked in company with Bank Examiner Allen and Max Mitchell, president of the trust company. That Gov. Coolidge and State Bank Examiner Allen told him—Burrell, the State Treasurer—to put some more State money in the Cosmopolitan Bank at once. That this deposit exceeded the legal limit and was made because the Governor ordered it to be done.

THIS IS TERRIBLE!

"That Allen, the Governor's appointee as State examiner, on August 28, less than a month before the bank failed, gave the Cosmopolitan Bank permission to increase its capital stock from $600,000 to $2,000,000. That the total deposits of State funds in the Cosmopolitan Bank were more than $1,000,000, although the legal limit—40 per cent—would have been $240,000 at the time the Governor ordered the additional State money placed there, and only $400,000 even after the increase of capital stock was authorized.

"The list of contributors to the Coolidge campaign fund in the spring of 1920 showed this same Max Mitchell, president of the Cosmopolitan Bank. He had given $6000.

"Max Mitchell, it should also be told, was indicted in 1921. His trial resulted in a disagreement by the jury."

Senator Wheeler declared that the Massachusetts State law forbade individual contributions of more than $1000 to "any one election" and forbade any bank or trust company from contributing to political campaign funds.

FREDERICKS ADDRESSES "Y" SCHOOL

Declares Prosperity Due to Constitution; Class is Unusually Large

A varied program of speaking marked the opening last night of the Y.M.C.A. school of accountancy and business law, which is beginning its fall term with an unusually large class. The principal speaker of the evening was Congressman John D. Fredericks, who devoted his address to the Constitution.

"There is only one prosperous and happy country in the world and that is the United States," Mr. Fredericks said, "and this is due primarily to the Constitution."

The Congressman described his recent world tour on which he had viewed "the unhappy, dissatisfied and apprehensive nations" and then declared:

"It is my conviction that the American Constitution has proved itself the safeguard of personal liberty and the stabiliser of business. No sweep of passion can destroy the United States unless we first destroy the effectiveness of the Constitution. Without it a legislative majority can impose the will of a dominating party upon the whole people without redress. This is the case in Russia where class is enthroned and God is discredited."

Other speakers at the meeting were Dean Harry W. Moore, C. A. P., and Dean C. F. Kuillian, attorney. Train C. Louis presided at the meeting.

The regular sessions of the school will be preceded by three free lessons in business law beginning Friday evening when T. C. Louis, attorney, will discuss "Investments and Liabilities of Investors."

LAWYERS TO OPPOSE AIM OF RADICALS

Members of New York Bar Form Committee to Back Coolidge and Dawes

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Prominent lawyers of New York today announced the formation of a Coolidge and Dawes campaign committee "for the purpose of bringing to the people at large a clear knowledge of the Constitutional issues involved in the present campaign."

"In no political campaign," said a letter from the committee issued by the Republican national committee, "has there rested upon legal profession a greater duty and responsibility."

Attacking proposals attributed to Senator La Follette, independent candidate for the Presidency, the letter asserted:

"The taking away from the Supreme Court of the power to finally declare acts of Congress unconstitutional would make possible an invasion of the fundamental rights, privileges and liberties now guaranteed by our Constitution and would destroy the balance of power between the legislative, executive and judicial branches, which is essential to our form of government."

William C. Breed is chairman of the lawyers' committee and Paul D. Ravath and Julius Mayer head of the special committee. Among the members of the general committee are Job E. Hedges, Charles E. Hughes, Jr., Nathan L. Miller, Elihu Root, Jr., Henry W. Taft and George W. Wickersham.

REPUBLICAN VETERANS IN PARTY DRIVE

Enthusiastic Support in North Found by Fitts on Organization Tour

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—Republican veterans of Northern California are giving unqualified and enthusiastic support to the Coolidge-Dawes campaign, according to a statement made here today by Buron Fitts, State chairman of the Republican Veterans' League. Mr. Fitts is touring Northern California for the purpose of organizing the veterans of all wars for the Coolidge campaign.

Mr. Fitts organized the veterans at Alameda yesterday for the campaign in that city. Thursday evening he met the veterans of San Jose and completed the organization there. In this work he is assisting George Hatfield, director of the league for Northern California.

Mr. Fitts is leaving immediately for a tour of the towns north of San Francisco, where he will complete the organization work. Monday night he will return to San Jose for a mass meeting. He will return to San Francisco by way of the San Joaquin Valley, where he will organize the veterans in the principal towns.

Republican veterans in Northern California are lining up strongly for Coolidge and Dawes, Mr. Fitts said.

URGES USE OF CAUTION BY VOTERS

Senator Pepper Tells Why Coolidge and Dawes Are Best Suited

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DES MOINES, Oct. 6.—Voters of the country should exercise the same caution in November in selecting heads of their government that they would if they were selecting heads of their own private enterprises, United States Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania said here tonight in an address commending the Coolidge-Dawes ticket. Stockholders in a private enterprise, he said, "never would choose to put their fortunes in the hands of a La Follette, a Wheeler, a Davis or a Bryan if they were fortunate enough to be able to choose a Coolidge or a Dawes."

"Davis and Bryan," he continued, "would disagree and fall out. La Follette and Wheeler would take speculative chances and blow up. Coolidge and Dawes would carry the enterprise through to honorable prosperity."

Senator Pepper told his audience the Republican party was on the right side of the foreign relations, railroad rate and constitutional issues and that the candidates were entirely in accord with the party's platform.

Senator Pepper declared that the La Follette railroad program would mean an increase in the public debt by staggering figures, pointing out that government-owned railroads could not be taxed.

The Republican party, he said believes in regulating privately owned railroads with balanced regard for the three interests involved—the public, the rail workers and the railroad owners.

Mention of Oil Is Omitted in Report of Jury

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The third Federal grand jury to delve into the leasing of naval oil reserves finished its work today without mentioning the oil question in its report.

Albert B. Fall, Harry F. Sinclair, E. L. Doheny and E. L. Doheny, Jr., were indicted by the first grand jury to consider the case but a second jury was halted when Fall's attorneys, charging it was merely a "'fishing expedition" for additional evidence, complained that certain persons were in the grand jury room illegally.

BAY STATE SAFE FOR PRESIDENT

Coolidge Will Easily Win in Massachusetts

Personal Popularity Gives Him Advantage

portents usually to be relied on are misleading in the present campaign. But they are not taking any chances.

Their only concern is to attract the slacker vote to the polls. About 2,200,000 of the 4,000,000 are eligible to vote. Less than 1,000,000 did so in 1920. One Republican device for getting out the farmer vote has aroused Democratic ire.

FARMERS WILL VOTE

A legislative act providing for a referendum on the daylight-saving law is the cause of Democratic wrath. The daylight-saving law is State-wide. Massachusetts farmers want it repealed. The referendum will induce every farmer in the State to go to the polls. Most of the Massachusetts farmers are normally Republican. Sometimes they don't go to the polls, but they are certain to be on hand this time.

Of the many intriguing features of the Massachusetts campaign only one or two are of Republican origin and none of those will cause any disturbance to Republican calculations. Two or three sore spots caused by resentment because National Chairman Butler permitted the inferences that President Coolidge favored Speaker Gillett for the Senate have healed.

Most of the Republican leaders of the State still believe Coolidge would have won the Senate primary if Mr. Butler had kept his hands off. That, however, is a closed incident. In other times it might have caused a lot of trouble.

ALL FOR COOLIDGE

Now all the Republicans are for the President; also a great many Democrats for various reasons—Bryanism, the tariff, opposition to La Follettеism, but generally confidence in the President himself. If there was ever an example of a candidate being bigger than his party it is here in the State which started Mr. Coolidge on his way to the White House and the leadership of the Republican party. He is the whole thing, as it were. Every candidate whose name will appear on the ballot with his is basing his appeal for votes on the record of the President rather than his own.

The Democratic situation is helping out tremendously. Mr. Davis is highly respected personally. Admiration for him end there. He is the victim of no end of factional feuds. Democratic candidates for State offices fling him a friendly gesture, no more. Voters who usually pile up big majorities for Democratic candidates in the cities find many causes for dissatisfaction with Mr. Davis.

"Sure, Mr. Davis is a very fine man—he's a great friend of the British," said a South Boston leader whose district is largely made up of voters of Irish origin.

Another commented: "Yes, Mr. Davis is all right with us on the Klan, but he's for the League of Nations."

BOURBONS INDIFFERENT

It must be confessed, however, that the chief disadvantage against which Mr. Davis must struggle is caused by the indifference of the Democrats generally to his candidacy. He is treated as a mere incident in the campaign. In the minds and activities of Massachusetts Democrats are centered not on Mr. Davis but on Mr. Bryan, their own feuds, the Klan, beer and local ambitions.

Senator Walsh, who is having the hardest battle of his career, is conducting his personal campaign with little reference to the national ticket; ditto Mayor Curley, Democratic candidate for Governor against Lieut.-Gov. Fuller, the Republican nominee.

Mr. Davis didn't make much of a hit with the Boston Democrats when he urged the nomination of W. J. B.'s brother Charley for Vice-President.

The Massachusetts Democrats were for Al Smith at Madison Square Garden. They still believe the New York Governor would have won if the elder Bryan had "minded his own business." If it were possible to "scratch" Mr. Bryan, Mr. Davis would get a lot more votes.

Another complication that operates to the disadvantage of Mr. Davis is the refusal of the voters in Boston and other cities to let go of the Klan issue. It is still the only issue with them. The Republican policy is to ignore it, though most of the local candidates of the President's party are denouncing the hooded empire in their appeals for votes.

TARIFF HELPS

The tariff issue is also helping the Republicans. The Democrats are paying much less attention to it in this State than in other sections of the country for good and sufficient reasons. Much of the depression in the textile and other key industries of New England is attributed to the lack of more complete protection, and free trade consequently has no popular appeal.

Congress and State candidates of Mr. Davis's party have virtually abandoned agitation of the oil scandals. Audiences do not warm up to it. They regard it as "old stuff." Spellbinders of all parties admit difficulty in centering popular attention on any one issue, possibly excepting the wet and dry controversy and the La Follette movement. And even here the Democrats display more interest in both than the Republicans.

Democratic candidates are against the Volstead Act, officially and personally; the Republicans pay little attention to it except in Boston, where the candidates of that party individually condemn it.

LA FOLLETTE WEAKER

As for Mr. La Follette, his chances for a big vote were more promising a month ago than at present. One reason is that voters who were inclined to accept his program are becoming lukewarm. Another cause for the slump was the personal attack made by Senator Wheeler on the President. For Massachusetts people, even those who differ politically with him, entertain great respect for their distinguished fellow-citizen and are proud of his achievement.

The foundation of the La Follette strength is the Socialist vote, normally around 60,000, plus professional German and perhaps one-third of the so-called Irish vote. Of the other two-thirds, Mr. Davis may hold one-half and Mr. Coolidge the rest.

Adverse industrial conditions may, and probably will, help the La Follette ticket, but not enough to impair the chances of the President.

The labor vote is by no means solid for La Follette, according to Republican and Democratic leaders. Whatever accessions he gains in that direction will be more than made up by the united opposition of the veterans of the World War. Every Legion post in the State has swung into line against Mr. La Follette because of his war record.

The women of the State are taking a lively interest in the campaign. They have organized to get out the vote for their respective parties and are doing fine work.

From present indications the Congressional delegation from Massachusetts will remain the same as at present, thirteen Republicans and three Democrats, with the chances favoring Mr. Gillett rather than Senator Walsh in the Senate contest.

LOUISIANA RULES OUT LA FOLLETTE

Court Bars Independent Party's Electors' Names from Official Ballot

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BATON ROUGE (La.) Oct. 6.—The La Follette-Wheeler ticket lost their fight in the Louisiana Court here tonight in mandamus proceedings in which it sought to compel Secretary of State Bailey to print the names of La Follette electors on the official ballot for the general election in November.

MADISON (Wis.) Oct. 6.—Senator Robert M. La Follette will be the only independent candidate for President on general election ballots in Wisconsin, although the names of other parties filed tickets, according to announcement today by Secretary of State's office. The La Follette-Wheeler electoral petitions certifying Senator La Follette's and Senator Wheeler's names were accepted.

Tickets were filed by the Farmer-Labor, Workers' party of America and the Communist Land party. Under rulings of Attorney-General's department, however, Presidential tickets of none of these parties will be certified, it was said.

HOPE CONJURED BY LA FOLLETTE

Radical Candidate Says He Expects to be Elected

Asserts Race Lies Between Coolidge and Himself

Tells How He is Planning to Conduct House Cleaning

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ROCHESTER (N. Y.) Oct. 6.—Confidence of being elected President was expressed here tonight by Senator Robert M. La Follette as he launched a new offensive in his campaign as an independent candidate.

Delivering his first address on a tour that is expected to take him from coast to coast before election day, the Wisconsin Senator said it was apparent that the Democratic candidate for President was a "poor third in almost every State outside the Solid South," and that the "contest for Presidential electors now lies squarely between the candidates of the Republican party and the independent-progressive candidates."

"During the coming month," continued Mr. La Follette, "the progressives will turn the searchlight upon the record of the Coolidge administration. It is my opinion that when this record is fully and clearly revealed, the American people will repudiate those who are responsible as overwhelmingly as they did the Taft administration."

WHAT HE'D DO

If elected, the Senator declared, he will devote the first eighteen months of his term to "house cleaning" and the remainder to "constructive" efforts.

"I propose," he said, "not only to renovate the executive departments, but also to wipe off the statute books the reactionary laws which are used as the instruments of exploitation and oppression. Far-reaching beneficial results can be secured without the support of a partisan majority in Congress."

The independent candidate promised to call a special session of Congress next March in the event he is then in the White House, to enact emergency farm relief legislation and the Howell-Barkley bill, which would set up a new method of adjusting disputes between railroad employers and workers, to revise or repeal the Transportation Act of 1920 and the Fordney-McCumber tariff law and to repeal the soldiers' bonus law enacted at the last session of Congress, substituting legislation "to provide genuine adjusted compensation" for World War veterans.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

Transportation recommendations, Mr. La Follette said, should include "a comprehensive study and analysis of methods of providing for public ownership of railroads."

Commenting on his advocacy of constitutional amendments providing for direct election of President, election of Federal judges, restriction of the powers of courts and Federal initiative and referendum, the Wisconsin Senator said he had no desire to "evade this issue."

Outlining the foreign policy he would pursue if elected, Senator La Follette advocated referendum on the declaration of war except in case of actual invasion, the ending of "our imperialistic attitude toward Central and South America," by withdrawing marines from such territory, Philippine independence, and use of "every peaceful influence to bring about a revision of the Treaty of Versailles."

VIEWS ON WAR

The Senator discussed the World War as follows:

"The great war which began ten years ago is now generally admitted to have been an imperialistic war, borne of the greed of financiers, exploiters of foreign lands, imperialists who conquered defenseless peoples in order to protect their usurious loans and destructive concessions. They made war on foreign peoples as they profiteered and made war on the liberties of the people at home. They used diplomacy, the Foreign Office, battleships and the country's youth, to promote and protect their imperialistic possessions, and in time brought the whole world to the cataclysm which caused 10,000,000 of its youth to be slain on the field of battle and 20,000,000 more to be invalided by wounds and disease."

ABDUCTION QUIZ AGAIN UNDER WAY

Twelve Bishop Witnesses Examined in Grand Jury Quiz in Valley

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

INDEPENDENCE, Oct. 6.—The Inyo county grand jury today resumed its investigation into the kidnaping at Bishop, north of here, several weeks ago, of L. C. Hall, Los Angeles attorney. Twelve witnesses from Bishop were examined and it was expected that other residents of the town would be called on to testify tomorrow.

Hall was seized by a crowd of unidentified men, upbraided for his connection with water rights purchases by the city of Los Angeles in Owens Valley and sent out of the valley with a warning never to return.

Dr. Shanklin, College Head, Dies Suddenly

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Dr. William Arnold Shanklin, president emeritus of Wesleyan University, died suddenly of heart disease in a subway station today. He was in his sixty-third year.

Dr. Shanklin, a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, had a long record as an educator. For four years prior to his connection with Wesleyan in 1909, Dr. Shanklin was president of Upper Iowa University. He had occupied Methodist pulpits in Peru, Kan., Spokane, Wash., Seattle, Wash., Dubuque, Iowa, and Reading, Pa. His brother, Arnold Shanklin, now a Mexico City lawyer, formerly was American Consul-General to Panama.

"Count" Worked Ptomaine Scheme Once Too Often in English Restaurants

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Somewhere in France or in Italy is "Count" Eugenio Guidici, an Italian exiled from England after a long series of free meals by what has become known as the "ptomaine trick." It is simple, say police, and usually works well, if not overworked.

"Count" Guidici was distinguished in appearance and when he dined at the best hotels and restaurants, waiters bowed low. He ordered sumptuous meals, but somewhere near the last course on the menu he was stricken ill from apparent poisoning. His "doctor" was called, and always diagnosed the case as ptomaine poisoning.

The "count" usually demanded a sum from the restaurant or hotel under the threat to notify the police and health authorities. He got his free meal and nearly always received "hush" money. Also his "doctor" was paid. Everyone was happy.

The game worked well until the "count" ran out of high-class restaurants and when he duplicated his feat, police were called in and the expose followed.

Kansas City Doctor Invents New Truss

New Discovery Heals Rupture Without An Operation

Kansas City, Mo., (Special)—A new discovery which, experts agree, has no equal for curative effects in all rupture cases, is the latest accomplishment of the well-known Hernia Specialist, Dr. Andrews, 181-H Koch Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. The extraordinary success of this new method proves that it holds and heals a rupture. It weighs only a few ounces. Has no hard gouging pads; no elastic belt, no leg straps, no steel bands, and is as comfortable as a light garment. It has enabled hundreds of persons to throw away trusses and declare their rupture absolutely healed. Many of these had serious double ruptures, from which they had suffered for years. It is Dr. Andrews' ambition to have every ruptured person enjoy the quick relief, comfort and healing power of his discovery, and he will send it on free trial to any reader of The Times who writes him. He wants one person in each neighborhood to whom he can refer. If you wish to be rid of rupture for good, without an operation, take advantage of the doctor's free offer. Write him today.—[Advertisement.

The Collector's Job

By G. E. KELLER, Chief Collector

"OTHER, the gas man is at the door."

And from his package the Collector selects your gas or electric bill and hands it to you. Or perhaps you are not home; or perhaps you mistook the Collector for a peddler or agent and refused to answer the bell. In that case, your bill is left in the mail box.

On your part, you hand the Collector the amount named on the bill and take his receipt; and the transaction is closed, as far as you are concerned. Or, if you were absent when the Collector called, or didn't have the money or checkbook at hand to pay the Collector, you pay the bill at our nearest branch office at the first opportunity, because you realize that you have already had from two to six weeks credit on your gas or electric service.

Thus a simple little transaction is completed in a business-like way. Except in the relatively few cases where someone forgets to honor the bill. Then of course we have to remind them, and that is as unpleasant for us as for them.

Over 400,000 bills each month are presented to our consumers by our 121 Collectors.

We wish all our relations with our consumers to be pleasant and agreeable. The management of this Corporation strives to accord perfect service and courteous treatment to all its consumers, and deeply appreciates the willingness of the public to meet us half way.

UPPER RIO GRANDE IS MANUFACTURING WAX

USE OF CANDELILLA PLANT HAS DEVELOPED LARGE INDUSTRY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SIERRA CHINO (Tex.) Oct. 6. Manufacture of wax from the wild candelilla plant has become an important industry on the Upper Rio Grande border. The Mex-Tex Wax Company's large wax extraction factory here is in operation and is making regular shipments of the raw product. It is now filling an order for 30,000 pounds of the wax. Since the discovery was made about twenty years ago that the candelilla weed contained a high percentage of wax of high-grade quality, almost equal to that of the carnauba wax of Brazil, a number of plants for extracting the product have been established in this section of Texas and in various parts of Northern Mexico. In San Antonio a refining plant for treating the raw wax has been in operation for several years. The candelilla weed grows in profusion over several million acres of semidesert land along the border. It reproduces itself from the roots in a few months after being cut, thus affording a perpetual supply for the factories. It is stated that the refined wax is in demand for the manufacture of phonograph records, varnishes and other purposes.

COMPANY WOULD CUT OFF CITY'S FREE GAS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OKLAHOMA CITY (Okla.) Oct. 6.—The Consumers Gas Company of Miami has appealed to the Corporation Commission for an order making it certain that the company no longer is furnishing free gas to public buildings of that city. It is based on the refusal of the city officials to pay the city's gas bills during the last several months.

In 1921 the company applied for an increase of rates and an order setting aside the free-gas provision of the franchise. It got an increase of rates to 50 cents and thought it was getting other things it asked for. Later on the commission ordered an increase of rates to 65 cents. From this the city appealed to the Supreme Court. That body took jurisdiction and fixed the basic rate at 70 cents. The city refuses to pay any amount.

HYPNOTISM NO SUNDAY SPORT

Pittsburg Police Arrest Trance Exhibitor

Sleeping Wife of Offender Shares Incarceration

Occult Art Not for Sabbath, Magistrate Holds

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PITTSBURG (Pa.) Oct. 6. — During a hearing in the South Side Police Station, Charles Chickolo, 28 years of age, Brooklyn, N. Y., a hypnotist, offered to put any officer or spectator in the courtroom in a trance, to prove his assertion that he can successfully put any person to sleep for as long a period as twenty-four hours.

Chickolo, his wife, Mrs. Anna Chickolo, 20; Gallio Banito, 28, of Brooklyn; W. E. Holdworth, 33, and Joseph White, 28, were defendants at the hearing, being charged with violating a city ordinance.

Lieut. Robert J. McIntosh received complaints that a large crowd of persons was delaying traffic at Grandview avenue and Oneida street, in front of a barber shop conducted by White. Arriving on the scene, the officer said he found that Mrs. Chickolo was in a trance and was told by the woman's husband that she would remain in that condition until night, when she would be awakened on a stage in a Mt. Washington theater.

Lieut. McIntosh told Magistrate George H. England that he came to the conclusion that Chickolo and the others were violating a city ordinance for conducting such a performance on Sunday and arrested the five persons, Banito and Holdworth being employees of Chickolo.

After all were arrested, the officer said, twenty minutes were required to get Mrs. Chickolo out of the trance. All were lodged in the South Side Police Station. When police arrived in Grandview avenue at 5 o'clock last evening, the woman had been unconscious for two hours. At the hearing, Mrs. Chickolo said that she was in a trance and told the officers that there was a sensation connected with the work.

"I will put any person in this courtroom in a trance," said Chickolo during the hearing, "but first the person must believe that he can be hypnotized." His offer was rejected.

Magistrate England ordered each to pay a fine of $10 or spend ten days in jail and warned Chickolo not to hold performances of that nature on Sunday in the future.

CROWD CHEERS DARING RESCUE

Human Chain Saves Woman Apartment Dweller

Brave Act of Policeman And Citizen Applauded

Fireman On Ladder Catches Falling Woman

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BROOKLYN, Oct. 6.—A policeman and a citizen made a hair-raising rescue during a fire at 940 Lafayette avenue, which recalled in some respects the human pendulum rescue made more than a score of years ago by Fireman Pearl and Lieut. Howe and still one of the outstanding acts of heroism in the annals of the fire department.

While the citizen hung suspended head down from the roof to reach a man marooned four feet below, about whom the flames were licking, the policeman acted as the human anchor, sitting on his legs.

The policeman was Thomas Connolly, chauffeur for Inspector Michael Ahearn, chief of the First Traffic Division. The citizen who acted as the pendulum was Harold Pearce, 30 years of age. Between them they were responsible for the rescue from the third floor of the burning building of Frederick Balesum, 58.

WOMAN IS RESCUED

Mrs. Balesum, who is also 58 and paralyzed, was rescued in a manner just as daring. Before her husband was pulled up to the roof a fire ladder was run up the face of the building, but it fell short. A fireman ascended to the upper rungs and, balancing himself as a trained athlete might, caught the woman in his arms. Her legs became entangled in the rungs, and he had to hold her there for two minutes until another ladder was run up and she was disentangled. In the meantime, the flames shot out and played furtively about the ladder. Fireman Thomas Griffin went up after the woman and passed her across to Fireman John Hill. Both are of Truck 111.

A little group of persons in the street below watched these sensational performances, scarcely daring to breathe until the rescues had been made.

THREE FAMILIES HOMELESS

Three families were made homeless by the fire and eight persons slightly injured. The Balesums lost half of their belongings and their home.

The fire started on the second floor in the apartment occupied by Raymond Levine, his parents and two brothers. The house was of frame construction. The spreading fire filled the upper regions with smoke and cut off all chance of escape from the upper floor by way of the stairway.

Pearce, a powerful man, a dock worker, and Connelly, also powerful, went to the roof of 936 and crossed over. They had seen the predicament of the Balesums, standing in the window.

POLICEMAN WAS ANCHOR

A quick glance down showed them the window was about four feet from the roof. Pearce then stretched his legs along the roof and Connolly played the role of anchor. Swinging downward from the waist Pearce stretched out his hands and Balesum, whose wife had already been taken on the ladder, clutched Pearce's shoulders with the grip of despair.

Hanging thus, he raised the man upward while the blood drummed in his head from the strain. He managed to lift him far enough for the policeman and a neighbor to get a grip on the man's clothing. Then it was a simple matter to haul him on the roof. Occupants of the adjoining buildings were ordered to vacate during the progress of the fire.

PHOENIX, Oct. 6.—Military funeral services for Col. E. P. Grinstead, accidentally killed last Wednesday by the discharge of a shotgun he had dropped, were conducted here this afternoon. The body was borne on an artillery caisson, with guard of infantry, which also acted as a firing detail. This guard was Co. Minneapolis Maiden Surrenders Entire Family of 188 to Library; Collected Dolls Thirty-one Years

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 6.—One hundred and eighty-eight of Minneapolis's most distinguished citizens will leave town forever to make their home in Owensville, Ind. Miss Fannie Jacques, secretary of the Woman's Christian Association, has packed up her family of 188 dolls, collected in the last thirty-one years, and will leave Tuesday to place them in the Carnegie library at Owensville, her home town.

And its going to be a real wrench for Miss Jacques to part with her family—she loves every one of them, from Peggy, the first doll she ever had, to a little Egyptian figure elaborately beaded, which she received last summer.

Peggy really started the collection. Peggy is a large wax doll, the first Miss Jacques ever had.

"Everyone said we resembled each other very closely," Miss Jacques said, patting Peggy's wine-colored pelisse. Peggy is beginning to show her 40 years, but her round pink cheeks and curly hair still resemble Miss Jacques.

"I worried more over that doll," Miss Jacques said, "I washed her face every day with melted butter and worried all summer for fear she would melt and all winter for fear she would freeze and crack."

But Peggy survived it all—due to the melted butter, perhaps—and thirty-one years ago Miss Jacques began her collection. Now she has dolls from every country in the world except Spain and Greece to keep Peggy company. She has dolls less than an inch high, and dolls of every description.

FRANCE TO BE FIRM ON ANTICLERICAL LAWS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Camille Chautemps, Minister of the Interior, speaking at Tours yesterday, appealed for peace and reflection on the religious question, but declared that the government intended to put the anticlerical laws into effect "without violence and without weakness." Specifically, he said all monasteries and nunneries would be immediately investigated, and those which have illegally come into existence or increased their membership since the war will be abolished. He asserted that the government would have no mercy on those who are trying to exploit the religious question for political purposes "by taking their violent disputes into the street."

ACTRESS IS OVERCOME IN COURT

Convicted on Charge of Whipping Man, But Gets Suspended Sentence

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Oct. 6. — After her conviction on the charge of whipping a man, Vera Milne Hall, an actress, living in West Eighty-first street, was so overcome that she needed the assistance of a court attendant as she walked to the finger-printing room. The fact that she received a suspended sentence from Special Sessions Justices Murphy, Edwards and Kelly did not seem to comfort her.

Miss Hall, who is only five feet tall and weighs less than 100 pounds, laid a heavy dog leash over the head and shoulders of Edward F. Hurley, who is six feet tall, in his office at the Pathe Freres Company, 45 West Thirty-fifth street, on the afternoon of September 8. She claims she struck in self-defense, and was supported in court this morning by Hurley's wife, who is now suing him for divorce and who went to the office with Miss Hall on September 8.

According to her story the actress called on Hurley to insist that he retract certain sworn statements as to her character.

NO THANKS FOR HUGHES IN FRANCE

Nation Disappointed at Reports of Secretary's Cincinnati Speech

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Oct. 6. — France is disappointed at cabled reports of Secretary of State Hughes's speech at Cincinnati announcing that the United States will have only an unofficial observer at the League of Nations disaramament conference.

Generally the French are outspoken that America should either get in or keep out of the League. Halfway measures like observers are not satisfactory, as they enable the United States to exert considerable pressure on the debtor states and influence the little powers, and generally strengthen the British attitude, which is usually more or less idealistic on the surface, while not binding Washington to anything and leaving the United States' hands free of all responsibility.

France intends to fund the American war debt before the disarmament conference so the Yankee observer will not make veiled allusions to the necessity of decreasing armaments and economize in budget expenditure.

Optimists declare President Coolidge's and Mr. Hughes's speeches proved that the Republican leaders at heart favor the United States joining the Geneva outfit and intend for America to participate more and more in League affairs until the American public opinion is primed for an announcement that it might as well join as it already is acting the part of a full-fledged member.

FILM the worst enemy to teeth

Gloriously Clear Teeth

Why you may already have them—and yet not realize it

Make this unique test. Find out what beauty is beneath the dingy film that clouds your teeth

DO you seriously want dazzlingly clear teeth?—teeth that add immeasurably to your personality and attractiveness?

You can have them, if you wish. That's been proved times without number. But not by continuing with old methods of cleansing and of brushing.

Modern science has discovered a new way. A radically different principle from old ways; and based on latest scientific findings. This offers you a test, free. Simply mail the coupon.

How to gain them—quickly

There's a film on your teeth. Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel it. Beneath it are the pretty teeth you envy in others. Ordinary methods won't successfully remove it.

That is why this test is offered. For when you remove that film, you'll be surprised at what you find. You may actually have beautiful teeth already—and yet not realize it. Find out!

What that film is

Film is a viscous coat that is ever present, ever forming on your teeth.

Most tooth troubles now are traced to it. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea and decay.

That film, too, absorbs stains .... stains from food, from smoking, from various causes. And that is why your teeth look "off color."

You must remove it at least three times daily. And thus combat it constantly. Results in whiteness, in clearness and lustre are a revelation.

New methods now remove it

Old-time dentifrices could not successfully fight that film. So most people had dingy teeth. And tooth troubles increased alarmingly.

Now new methods have been found. And embodied in a new type tooth paste called Pepsodent.

It acts to curdle the film, then harmlessly to remove it. No soap, no chalk; no harsh grit dangerous to enamel.

Foremost dental authority of the world now urges this modern way. People of some 50 different nations employ it. It marks a new era in tooth health and beauty.

Thus this new way is changing the tooth cleansing habits of the world.

It proves the folly of ugly teeth. It gives better protection against pyorrhea, of tooth troubles both in adults and in children.

Ten days' use will prove its benefits. And that 10 days is offered to you as a test. Why not make it then? —have prettier teeth, whiter teeth?

NEW AUTO SPEEDWAY AT CULVER

A. M. Young Granted License to Build Board Course at Old Racing Plant

Automobile racing is coming back to Culver City. At last night's meeting of the Culver City Board of Trustees a franchise to build a new board track on the site of the old horse racing plot was granted to A. M. Young, president of the Los Angeles Speedway Corporation and also head of the Western Racing Association.

Mr. Young stated that work on the new track would begin at once. It will involve an expenditure of approximately $50,000, he said, and the track will be used for at least two, and probably three automobile speed classics every year.

The franchise provides that Culver City receive $500 for each race in addition to an annual rental of $1000. It provides further that not less than two or more than three races be conducted at the track each year. The present franchise will run for five years, but gives the promoters an option to renew it on the same terms for another five years after it expires. The racing promoters also are required by the terms of the franchise to deposit $2500 before each race as evidence of good faith.

THE BOY WONDER OF THE WORLD'S SERIES

Freddie Lindstrom, exhibited below reaching for a wide one, is McGraw's infant prodigy, whose work in yesterday's game stamped him as one of the finest infielders of the season. Besides holding down the hot third corner to perfection, Lindstrom whanged out a two-bagger in the sixth, scoring Gowdy. Lindstrom is playing his first season of big-league baseball. He is only 18, having graduated from a Chicago high school into the Giant line-up.

BASEBALL SCANDAL ONLY A TRAGIC PRACTICAL JOKE?

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—A cheap piece of horse play; a practical joke; a sample of small buffoonery—that was what started the great scandal and ruined the baseball lives of two young men, so, at least is the story as revelations of "the underworld series" come to light as the narrative was unrolled today.

It came forth in this fashion: Jimmy O'Connell, obtuse and single-tracked as to mind, has been the goat and patsy for the Giants' pokes for two seasons, and Cozy Dolan has been the official agent for the prepetration of the alleged comedy.

Several Giants, in a roughly kidding mood (and, unfortunately, that is the usual mood of the Giants) tried to put over what they regarded as the height of humor on the patsy. Dolan was duly rehearsed and told to inform O'Connell that it was necessary to give Heinie Sand $500 to throw a ball game. Not one of the alleged humorists ever dreamed that O'Connell would fail to see the absurdity of the thing—or its dangerous consequences.

Most of them expected to hear him shout to Sand: "Hey, Heinie, these baboons say they'll give you $500 to lay down," or to have him hoot at Dolan's solemnly worded proposition. And then, when O'Connell gravely halted Sand and began talking to him, in an undertone the "conspirators" wanted to get right out of that ball park before the stand caved in on them.

The mischief has been that the wretched joke has boomeranged on its authors. They didn't dare go on with their part in the miserable jest. They got out from under and left the hapless O'Connell as the goat.

Noontime fairly flagged with thrills and rumors. First Jimmy O'Connell, looking more like a hunted wolf than the handsome young athlete of a week ago, burst into Washington and secluded himself till he could get his chance to see Judge Landis once more and see him all alone.

Then came a report that flamed and ran like wildfire that the Giants had demanded that Judge Landis disavow a story credited to him, a story that he believed other players than Dolan and O'Connell were to be suspended. The Giants besieged the judge's hotel Friday night and couldn't find him. All through this morning they were snarling and growling. One thing sure the cloud of suspicion and the stinging innuendoes have the Giants half crazy.

ZACHARY GETS CREDIT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POLO GROUNDS (New York) Oct. 6. — Zachary, Washington southpaw, has been credited with the Senators' victory over the Giants yesterday instead of Marberry, who stopped a New York rally in the ninth with the score tied, but pitched to only one man.

This was decided today by the score board, according to announcement by Fred Lieb of New York, chief scorer, on the theory that Zachary, though knocked out of the box, had pitched eight and two-thirds inningsand was entitled to the most credit for the victory.

Fourth game, Tuesday at New York, 2 p.m.
Probable batteries — New York, Barnes and Gowdy; Washington, Musgrave and Ruel.

Jackson got his first hit today, a single to the eighth, on which he eventually scored New York's sixth run of the game. He immediately stole second.

The home-run record of world series competition is endangered thus far this series. To date five circuit smashes have been hit, breaking all records for three games set in 1923. The series last year, however, when ten home runs were hit in the six games, eclipses this year's classic.

"Rosy" Ryan got the slightest poke of the game in the fourth, a terrific hit into the right field upper tier.

Old-time fans fail to recall any other single game in the world's series where more sparkling features were injected into the scene than were produced today.

Frisch twice robbed "Goose" Goslin of a sure hit by leaving his base to the plate and rallying a put fly in short order. Rice also scintillated with a one-hand stab of Lindstrom's liner in the fourth, while Young's clutching catch in the sixth of Ruel was also dazzling.

The Senators pulled an especially snappy twin killing in the third when Marberry tinked Wilson's bunger and it rolled to Peckinpaugh, who tossed to Harris and thence to Judge, cutting down a pair of ambitious Giants.

Jazzard's exit from the game was almost as sudden as his entrance. He pitched only five balls, four wide of the plate, in the ninth inning, and Bluege walked, forcing in a run. Harris was forced in and Jazzard out.

"Muddy" Ruel still has to feel the thrill of a world's series hit. The snappy Washington catcher hasn't hit safely in the present series, though he has been hitting the ball.

SERAPHS GAIN ON SEAL NINE

Defeat Seattle Club, 3 to 1, in Final Game

Payne Bests Fussel in Neat Hurling Duel

Angels Only Half a Game Behind Siwashes

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Oct. 6.—Los Angeles departed from here tonight for Portland, Or., after winning today's baseball game with Seattle, 3 to 1, and the series, 5 to 2, creeping to within one-half game of the Indians in second place in the Pacific Coast League. With the Beavers defeating San Francisco, league leaders, 5 to 3, Seattle remained four and one-half games from first place.

Fred Fussell on the mound for the northerners struck out seven of his opponents and allowed but one earned run. Five errors by his team-mates were responsible for the other two scores.

The Indians got their only run in the fourth inning on an error and a single. Two errors by Emmer gave the Seraphs one score in this inning.

The southerners earned a run in the fifth when Payne singled, scoring McAuley, who had doubled. An error by Cutshaw gave the Angels another counter in the seventh.

The Seals are scheduled to open a seven-game series here tomorrow with Seattle's chances for the 1924 pennant gloomy.

Pasadena and Gardeners to Play Series

Semipro baseball fans will be glad to hear that a series has been arranged between the Belvedere Gardens club and Sam Cox's Pasadena Eagles, the first game of which will be played at Belvedere Gardens next Sunday.

Those who have been following the doings of the local sandlotters will remember that the Eagles won the championship of the Greater Managers' Association from the Montebello Merchants by defeating them in a hotly contested three-game series. Last Sunday Belvedere Gardens turned the Merchants down by a 7-to-1 score. From this it would seem that the Pasadena nine and the Gardeners are closely matched and when they mix it should be well worth seeing.

Lefty Russell, who is responsible for most of the Belvedere wins, will control the slants for the Gardeners, with Kerwin or Kaufman behind the bat. The Eagles will play behind the sterling efforts of Hopper and Markham will do the catching.

DETROIT BOSS DROPS HIS BAT

Completes Brilliant Career as Baseball Player

Georgia Peach Admits He is Through for Good

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Ty Cobb is through as a player; from now on he will be bench manager only of the Tigers.

"I think I've had my share of baseball honors," he told a group of friends during the second world-series game. "Next season I shall be just a bench manager.

"I may sub a little if somebody is hurt—maybe I'll get into twenty or thirty games in the season—but, as a regular daily player, I am through. I used to think I'd like to beat out Wagner and Lajoie for long service and there was a time when I thought I might tie Anson's record, but I find it can't be done. What I want, and what nature decrees are two very different things—and so I'm through.

And thus passes the Georgia Peach, ranked by thousands of great critics as the greatest star that ever played the game. It isn't a Patti farewell with Cobb. When he says a thing he means it.

HOO HOOS HOLD BIG GOLF TOURNAMENT

The Los Angeles Hoo Hoos, members of the National Association of Lumbermen, will hold a golf tournament at the Rancho Country Club Friday, the 10th inst., according to an announcement made here yesterday. Eighteen-hole, handicap medal play will be used. The player with low net score will receive a beautiful silver loving cup. The tournament is to be an annual event. This year's winner must win the cup twice to keep it permanently. Eight other prizes will be awarded to players with scores in the next order.

WHITE SOX RETAIN TITLE

Chicago Americans Beat Cubs 5-to-3 in Final Game of Intra-City Series

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The White Sox remain Chicago champions even if they did finish last in the 1924 American League race. Bowling over the Cubs today, 5 to 3, the American League nine led by Johnny Evers, retained their city title, rewon last year from the National Leaguers after a lapse of twelve months.

It was the sixth game of the series, the Cubs having captured the first and fifth combats solely on the pitching of Grover Alexander. In all the other contests the Sox pitching and attack were superior.

Ellis Thurston and Ted Lyons hurled the Sox to victory today. Thurston was swept side in the torrid Cub attack in the seventh inning, which fell a single run short of tying the score, and Lyons came on to wind up the fray.

SOX TOO SPEEDY

Vic Aldridge, Elmer Jacobs, Tony Kaufmann and John Blake pitched for the Cubs, but the National League club could not catch the Sox after they got away to a four-run lead in the first three innings on Aldridge.

The Sox went after Aldridge in the first inning, Mostil's double and two infield outs putting him over for a lone tally. In the third Mostil doubled again, Hooper doubled, Collins rolled out, Sheely doubled and after Falk had flied out Kamm tripled, giving the Sox four runs. Jacobs relieved Aldridge and got Barrett to end the inning.

Kaufmann took the slab for the Cubs to start the fifth after a pinch hitter had performed for Jacobs in the Cub fifth. Miller hit for Kaufmann in the seventh inning attack and Blake then took up the hurling burden. The Sox gained their last run in the eighth off Blake on a pass to Collins, two infield outs and a single by Willie Kamm.

THURSTON YANKED

Hollis Thurston got by great for six innings. The Cubs got a single run off him in the third on three singles but in the seventh three singles and an error gave the Cubs two runs, only one shy of a tie, and Thurston was taken out to let Lyons finish up.

Attendance, 12,996.
Gross receipts, $11,156.33.
Commissioner's share, $1,673.45.
Each club's share, $3,741.44.

The players' share in the receipts of the first four games, which amounted to $31,990.68, The White Sox will divide $19,194.41 and the Cubs $12,796.27.

TROJAN PREP ELEVEN LOOKING FOR GAMES

University High (commonly known as U.S.C. prep.) is having a tough time finding games for its doughty pigskin warriors. The future Trojans have no regular schedule owing to the fact that they are a privately run institution, and report a great shortage of contests for the season. So far they have met Gardena, Inglewood and Jefferson, defeating the first of the three 13 to 6, and losing the latter two by tight scores. At present the preps are looking for games; they would like to hook up with any of the city high schools having open dates.

Harvard has 150 candidates for football teams.

LIGHTWEIGHTS IN MAIN BOUT

Eastern Star to Make Final Appearance Here

Tony Fuente and Goddard in Semi-Final Event

Record Attendance Expected at Vernon Arena

Glove battles at Vernon:

Sammy Mandell vs. Phil Salvadore, 135 pounds.

Tony Fuente vs. Jim Goddard, heavyweights.

Jimmy McLarnin vs. Frankie Dolan, 115 pounds.

Terry Adams vs. Dude Martinez, 145 pounds.

Morrie Engel vs. Louie Martin, 115 pounds.

Bob Bridges vs. Benny Kilroy, 138 pounds.

Jack Comby vs. Billy Montoya, 126 pounds.

Sammy Mandell starts at Vernon tonight in his final appearance on the west coast before starting his eastern campaign against the top-notch lightweights. Tony Fuente makes another battle to prove his claims to a shot at Floyd Johnson and Jack Dempsey, and Jimmy McLarnin, midget Oakland Irisher, is to make a bid for the first shot at Fidel La Barba, international amateur flyweight champion. There's a dish that Los Angeles fans crave, and Jack Doyle's famous Thirty-eighth-street arena will be packed to the rafters when the boys begin firing their heavy guns.

The Mandell-Phil Salvadore battle that is billed as the main event is attracting a lot of attention because the Rockford flash has yet to lose a fight on the Coast. Los Angeles fandom has seen the easterner clean up on Dick Hoppe, Frankie Burns and Johnny Adams, while the bay cities watched him trim Billy Wallace in finished style and every critic in both cities is ready to acclaim him the class of all the eastern lightweights to show on the Coast in recent years. Salvadore is given the best chance of any of the boys with Mandell, because Phil has a fast left hand and punches hard with his right. None of the other boys Mandell has met here makes any particular claim to boxing skill, and Phil has skill and experience to add to his hitting power as arguments for a Salvadore victory.

COP UNOFFICIAL TITLE

A win over Mandell would bring the Coast lightweight championship to Los Angeles, because Sammy copped the unofficial title from Johnny Adams when he whipped the San Bernardino boy last week at Vernon. That is another reason why Phil is so anxious to beat the Illinois marvel. The title is a bauble worth having on the Coast, and Dick Donald and Phil are laying plans to have it as a means to keep busy with this winter.

Tony Fuenta, the Mexican heavyweight, will spot Jim Goddard about twenty-five pounds in their semi-wind-up fuss, but "Silent Fred" is sure his latest star will come out ahead. The match, if Fuente wins, will clinch a main-event row with Floyd Johnson, New York heavy, at Vernon, October 21, so neither Fred nor Tony will lose any time in going after the 200-pound San Francisco boy. Reports from Montana and Idaho state that Goddard is pretty tough, though, so it may take Fuente longer than his customary two rounds to stow the big fellow away. The Mexican is a big favorite with Col. Doyle's cash customers, and they will flock into the arena tonight to see the new heavyweight perform.

DA BARBA CHALLENGED

A challenger for Fidel La Barba is appearing in the person of Jimmy McLarnin, Oakland vest-pocket edition, who is meeting Frankie Dolan. Pimmy trimmed Benny Dias last week, and when he heard the amateur flyweight champion and star of the Olympic games was going to enter the four-round game he immediately set sail to force Matchmaker Wadham to give him the first shot at La Barba. His work last week was impressive and he figures to whip Dolan in tonight's melee.

Harry Lee and George Blake will referee the show.

A new 18-hole golf course has been opened at Hastings, in the south of England. The clubhouse is 100 years old and is familiarly known as "Old Fishponds Farm," a resort in olden days of smugglers.

DUKE INVITED TO SEE BOUTS

The Duke and Duchess of Alba and party who yesterday arrived in Los Angeles, from Spain, have been invited to be the guests of Jack Doyle at the Vernon Coliseum boxing festival tonight. The Spanish nobles are the house guests of Mary Pickford during their sojourn in this city. Marquis de Vianna, Marquis de Coquille and the Duke and Duchess of Pemeranda are in the Alba party. Mrs. Don Hutchison will accompany the royalists to the fistic emporium.

Mr. McElwyn Sets World's Trotting Mark

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

LEXINGTON (Ky.) Oct. 6.—Mr. McElwyn, bred and owned by W. H. L. McCourtie, Dallas, Tex., and driven by Ben White, won the thirty-second renewal of the Kentucky Futurity here today. The first heat, trotted in 2:03 lowered the world's record for 3-year-old trotters and the second equaled the former world's record and lowered that for 3-year-olds in a race.

Second in each heat and putting up a stubborn resistance was Guy Richard, driven by W. T. Crozier. Third went to Erla Guy, driven by Walter Cox.

Oscawana, heavy favorite, disposed of his field in the 2:11 trot without a great effort. John Spencer secured the place in the opening heat and Costa Jay in the second.

The 2:19 trot at 7-8 mile heats proved a stubborn contest. Crawford, from the Murphy stable, was beat, but was hard pressed by Coleman in the first heat and still harder pressed by Peter Wooster in the second. Coleman choked up on being taken back out of a pocket in the second heat and fell, throwing driver Crozier high into the air. He landed on his feet and was uninjured.

Ban Johnson Seeks Probe by Grand Jury

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS (Mo.) Oct. 6. — In an interview given here today Ban Johnson, president of the American League, said he will instigate a grand jury investigation and criminal prosecution against the players who are involved in the recent baseball scandal. He will also insist, he said, on a thorough investigation of the scandal charges designed to reveal every ramification of alleged crookedness.

Mr. Johnson denounced Baseball Commissioner Landis as incompetent and a menace to the national pastime, adding that the former Federal judge must be banished from the game.

HAMMOND LUMBER IN VICTORY OVER OILERS

With a terrific ninth-inning rally that netted four runs, the Hammond Lumber baseball team came from behind to beat the Gilmore nine by a 5-to-4 score. The rally came like a bolt out of a clear sky, since the Oilers had a two-run lead and Wallace looked as steady as ever, but the Lumbermen crashed out four hits for that many runs, and took the game by a one-run margin after the Oilers had hit twice for one run in their half of the ninth. Mits were scarce, none of the players getting more than two. No extra-base drives were hit. The score:

POOR PITCHING MARS CONTEST

Jawn Says Was Worst Ever in World's Series

Veteran Lauds Grand Work of Frank Frisch

Second Sacker Looms Big at Critical Points

BY JOHN J. McGRAW,
Manager of New York Giants
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—We are naturally happy over a second victory over the Senators. But I can't say that I am proud of that ball game. Stanley Harris, I am sure, will agree with me. Of all the bad pitching in a world's series game, when taken as a whole, that was the worst.

I can sympathize with Manager Harris. Nobody knows better than Stanley and myself just what a mess of bad pitching can do to a ball game. It was terrible.

The feature of the ball game, therefore, was the bad pitching. In all my life I have never seen anything like it. It got to be epidemic and was just as bad on one side as on the other. John Watson luckily came in at the last minute and steadied up enough to stop the Washington rush. Ten minutes before that I was sitting thinking just what would give me a good start on this article. I had intended complimenting the work of Rosy Ryan. Then all of a sudden he lost control.

But this game was not without its thrills. In fact, I think the individual work of Frankie Frisch alone makes up for the record of bad pitching. I am perfectly sincere in saying that I have never seen any one man show as much brilliancy in a ball game as Frisch showed in beating Washington. While at the bat he had the opposing pitchers—and there were so many I can't count them—constantly worried—but his work in the field was little short of miraculous.

The fans are still shouting, I imagine, about those two catches he made by running into center field. Both were made off Goslin and nine players out of ten would have missed them both. Running with the crack of the bat Frisch never stopped or turned until he was within reach of the ball. It was perfect timing.

But to the ball players Frisch's work on handling grounders when things looked critical were even better than the catches. It is too bad that Gowdy couldn't score on that last bunt of Frisch's but I have just learned that the official scorers gave him a hit. The ball was placed perfectly.

Our team showed a clean superiority over the Senators in hitting and were entitled to a win on driving power alone. I don't wish to detract from Washington's efforts but their runs resulted from wildness by our pitchers.

OAKLAND WINS TWO GAMES FROM MORMONS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

OAKLAND, Oct. 6.—Both of yesterday's postponed games were won by Oakland from Salt Lake, 1 to 0 in twelve innings, and 6 to 4. Boehler in the first game, held the Bees to three scratch hits in the twelve innings. In the second game Foster only allowed two hits until the ninth. Then, with two men down, he wavered and the Bees put over four runs with five hits and tied the score. The Oaks came back in the last half of the ninth when Flowers got a home run with one man on. Salt Lake won the series four out of seven.

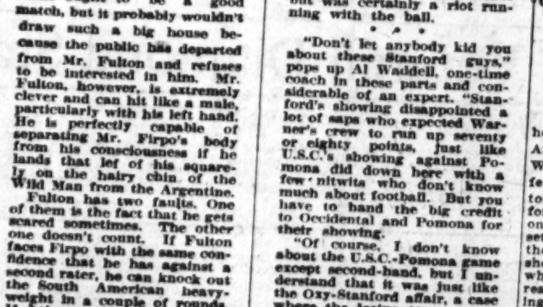
FISHING GOOD ALONG COAST AT NEWPORT

Burt Stevens, who runs the "Tackle Box" at Balboa, reports to the B. H. Dyas Company that some of the best salt-water fishing is going on this fall along the Newport coast. Good catches are being made daily from the pier and boats, including yellowtail, mackerel, sea trout, halibut and jacksmelt. Some croakers are being caught in the bay.

Stevenson also declared that he would remain open all winter, and that two boatmen, "Mac" Nally and "Pep" Page, are guaranteeing this winter "fish or no pay," and are the only boats in the United States sailing under those terms. Last winter the two boatmen never went a day without pay. On to Balboa.

OBSERVATIONS

BY THE INNOCENT BYSTANDER
BILL HENRY



Now they're talking about matching up Freddy Fulton, the plastering plasterer, and Luis Angel Firpo, the man who made Canon Chase famous. That ought to be a good match, but it probably wouldn't draw such a big house because the public has departed from Mr. Fulton and refuses to be interested in him. Mr. Fulton, however, is extremely clever and can hit like a mule, particularly with his left hand. He is perfectly capable of separating Mr. Firpo's body from his consciousness if he lands that lef of his square-lt on the hairy chin of the Wild Man from the Argentine.

Fulton has two faults. One of them is the fact that he gets scared sometimes. The other one doesn't count. If Fulton faces Firpo with the same confidence that he has against a second rater, he can knock out the South American heavyweight in a couple of rounds. If he's as scared as he was when he fought Dempsey, Firpo will win the first time he throws a glove in Fulton's general direction.

The days of Mr. Firpo's prominence in the fistic world are close to an end. The public is getting next to him and the first thing we know he'll be getting next to himself and that will be the end of it. In the general opinion of numerous experts, Firpo is without question the rottenest fighter that ever got a crack at the big money.

All that Gus Henderson has to worry about for the present is building up and co-ordinating an attack for his Trojans. Their showing against Pomona rather confirmed than counteracted the impression of power they gave against Caltech. The Trojans have lots of good material and will be even stronger on defense this year than in previous years. They are certainly not shy of good linemen nor of good backs. This man Cole is every bit as good as Fay Thomas and in addition is a fine kicker.

Henderson has two fine booters in Cole and Dorsey, although both have the disadvantage of playing line positions ordinarily so that there is little or no threat of anything but a punt when they get back into kicking formation. This, however, is easily overcome by running line plays from punt formation and slipping the ball to Earle or Riddle or Lefebvre. Lee didn't look any too good as a kicker but was certainly a riot running with the ball.

"Don't let anybody kid you about these Stanford guys," pops up Al Waddell, one-time coach in these parts and considerable of an expert. "Stanford's showing disappointed a lot of saps who expected Warner's crew to run up seventy or eighty points, just like U.S.C.'s showing against Pomona did down here with a few nitwits who don't know much about football. But you have to hand the big credit to Occidental and Pomona for their showing.

"Of course, I don't know about the U.S.C.-Pomona game except second-hand, but I understand that it was just like the Oxy-Stanford affair, a case where the losing team was a bearcat. Stanford is better than she was last year and has the toughest offense of any team on the Coast unless I miss my guess. I saw U.S.C. play Caltech and Stanford play Occidental and on the showing of the two teams in those games I'd pick Stanford to beat U.S.C. because of its terrific offense."

According to Waddell, Occidental pulled a huge surprise on the Cardinals by its fierce tackling, something that Occidental teams haven't been so noted for in the past few seasons. One Stanford player told Waddell that the Tigers, the lightest team in recent history, tackled harder than any team that Stanford had met in two years. Mike Godsett tackled one man so hard that the Stanfordite dropped the ball. Both players were knocked completely out.

Occidental used four ends and so did Stanford and all came in for great praise from the northern critics. It was rather generally admitted that Mike Godsett, Bud Teachout, Bullet Haseltine and Persell were every bit as good as the Cardinal quartet headed by Capt. Lawson. Waddell says that Stanford has an offense that is simply pulverizing and that the Cardinal reserves are stronger proportionately than U.S.C.'s, which will be bad news to Henderson.

PLAY BY PLAY OF THIRD GAME

First inning, Washington—Liebold, first man up, stalled around until two strikes and two balls had been thrown, and then hit to Frisch, who threw to Terry for the first out. Manager Harris of Washington was next up and got a great reception from the crowd. The photographers rushed the field to immortalize his first appearance and the game had to be halted while the police stood the cameramen from the vicinity of the plate. The noisy reception didn't help much as Harris, after watching four strikes and two balls, slammed out a long fly to Meusel. Rice stalled around until there was two and three and then teased McQuillan into a walk, one end walked to first. With Goslin at bat the Giants evidently feared that Rice would try to steal second, McQuillan tossing up a wide one to Ferrell for the first ball. Goslin hit the third ball pitched and lined perfectly to Frisch, but was thrown out at first, Frisch to Terry. No runs. No hits. No errors.

First inning, New York—Lindstrom, 18-year-old schoolboy, who plays third base for the Giants, was the first man up. It looked as though Mc-Graw had ordered his team to wait out Marberry in his attempt to beat Lindstrom, but Marberry was all at sea with his control and on the second pitch he lost how wild he was. With his last chance gone, Lindstrom saw three balls in succession float by, but the next two were all strikes. Frisch let two wide ones go by and then hit a swift grounder to Ryan, who scooped it up and threw Young walled for strike and a ball, and then smashed a long liner into left field for the first hit of the game. Kelly was an easy victim, Harris throwing him out at first. No runs. One hit. No errors.

Second inning, Washington—Judge walked for the first time he batted and with the count two and two, hit a short single over second base. Bluege, however, hit a short bounder to McQuillan and a double play resulted, McQuillan to Frisch to Terry. Peckinpaugh popped out at first. No runs. One hit. No errors.

Second inning, New York—Terry smashed the first ball pitched for a sharp single into right field. Wilson, with a chance to be a hero, struck out. Bluege took Jackson's grounder and tossed to Harris for a double play, but Harris dropped the ball and Terry was safe on second and Jackson on first. Hank Gowdy hit a screaming liner to Goslin, who scored Terry, Jackson went to third on the play and Gowdy was out trying to reach second on the hit. With McQuillan at bat, Marberry took issue with a wild pitch, Jackson scoring. Marberry continued to pitch and gave a walk to McQuillan on four straight balls. Lindstrom also walked, McQuillan going to second. Barnes struck out, with a pitched ball and the bases were full. Marberry bucked up after losing two more wild balls to Young, and threw three successive strikes across the plate. Two runs. Two hits. One error.

Third inning, Washington—Rice started the inning auspiciously for the Senators by getting a pedestrian contact out of the game. Goslin, Frisch cheated him out of a hit by a beautiful catch on the dead run. Judge crashed the ball into left field for two bases, Rice going to third on the play. Bluege got a base on balls, filling the bases. Rice pattered across the plate with Washington's first run on Miller's sacrifice fly to of the home crowd, masking all possible noise. McQuillan filled the bases by giving Ryan a base on balls. This was promptly rashed by Manager McGraw in favor of Ryan. Young was no batter, walking Judge across the plate when he forced Tate, who batted for Marberry. The bases were still densely populated. Liebold ended the inning by knocking a high fly to Wilson. Two runs. One hit. No errors.

Fourth inning, New York—Russell relieved Marberry in the box for Washington. Gowdy, after getting in a hole with two and nothing, crashed a long drive into Liebold's mitt. Ryan duplicated the feat, but could not hit it be right-field bleachers. Lindstrom lifted one into the deep center for what appeared to be another homer, but Rice made a desperate lunge, and caught the ball just as he crashed into the concrete stand. Frisch singled over second, but Young ended the inning for the Giants by popping to Goslin. One run. Two hits. No errors.

Fifth inning, Washington—After being in the doldish predicament of three and two on, Mark Harris lifted a short fly behind second, which Kelly gathered in. After a world trip from right field to first base, Lindstrom forced Rice at first. No runs. One hit. No errors.

Fifth inning, New York—Terry opened the inning auspiciously for the Senators by getting a single into left field and took second on Terry's sacrifice to Bluege. Russell relieved Kelly at bat and fanned for the third out. Meusel popped out to Harris. No runs. No hits. No errors.

Sixth inning, Washington—Judge lined out to Kelly. Ryan pitched three balls to Bluege, who played a waiting game until it was too late. Ryan retiring three batters over the past and sending Leibold hit. Young retired Washington with a fast catch of Rice's apparently perfect single. No runs. One hit. No errors.

Sixth inning, New York—Miller let Gowdy's hot grounder leak through his legs and the Giants had a man on first. Gowdy took second on Ryan's sacrifice hit. Russell to Judge. Lindstrom, the baby wonder, smacked a two-bagger to right, while Gowdy tramped across the plate. Frisch fouled out to Miller. Young grounded out to Harris. One run. One hit. One error.

Seventh inning, Washington—Harris sent Mc-Neely in to bat for Russell and he filed out to Wilson, Liebold for the second time was presented with a free ride by Ryan, who passed him with the count three and two. Both Harris took three wild pitches at the unfortunate and walked back to the dugout to the accompaniment of the jeers of the New York fans. Rice singled, Liebold taking second. Frisch retired Goslin for the third time in succession, scooping up a hard drive and starting his out. No runs. One hit. No errors.

Seventh inning, New York—Martina took the mound in place of Russell for Washington and forced his right in consideration by fanning Young. Wilson walked, filling the bases, but Kelly caught the ball after a long run and Frisch filed out to Goslin. No runs. No hits. No errors.

Eighth inning, Washington—Terry put Judge out, unassisted. Bluege hammered a terrific drive to left, Miller walked to the ball and Bluege was safe on second. With an opportunity to be a hero started in, but Ryan settled matters by a grounder to Jackson, who threw him out at first. Peckinpaugh and Miller took advantage of a base on balls issued Shirley's last pitch and filled the bases. Lindstrom lingled Shirley's last pitch and filled the bases. Lindstrom lingled Shirley's last pitch and filled the bases. Lindstrom lingled Shirley's last pitch and filled the bases. Bluege and Miller took advantage of a base on balls issued

The Southern California Intercollegiates will swing into action Saturday with two games [illegible]. From his distance it looks like the big affair of the day as [illegible] grid fans are concentrating on the battles between Occidental and Whittier. The game [illegible] scheduled — for Pasadena — and the teams will enter the contest as practically even terms. Occidental journeys to Redlands in the other contest of the afternoon.

Although the Engineers were walloped by U.S.C. ten days ago, they are still very much in the conference race. In Alderson, Potter, Baker and Stanton, Caltech has a very neat backfield and a combination that will do a lot of damage. Baker's injury to his ankle, received in the Oregon game, has not allowed him to work in the last week, but is expected to be in shape for Saturday.

VETERAN LINE

Caltech has a veteran line which is probably stronger heavier than Occidental will in the conference. With such big fellows as Allen, Ford, the Behnke brothers and others to open up holes, the Techs are going to cause others plenty of trouble. In the backfield Coach Eesk Perry has most veteran material. "Puss" Johnson will take Big Ed Sugden's place very nicely, while such backfield stars as Denny, Ferguson, Clough and Wightman ought to provide plenty of punch. When it comes to direct the attack the Techs are sure of no small amount of drive, especially as Russell Wilson is giving all his time to the coaching of offensive play. Last year the Quakers beat the Engineers, 3 to 0, it being the only defeat suffered by the Pasadena team during their conference season.

STRONG SHOWING

Occidental will be favored to win the Bulldogs mainly by virtue of the Tigers' strong showing against Stanford last Saturday. It ought to be a great battle, however, and [illegible] a cinch Coach Sid Gillis will not have his men working as they are slated for an easy game. Cecil Cushman had a rough time in his first year at Redlands last season, but his [illegible] with seven or eight veterans this fall and may have enough to surprise the Bengals, although the 54-0 tie with the Sherman Institute last week doesn't indicate much strength.

The Bulldogs were hit hard when they lost their fresh players but it may take them a few weeks to get straightened out. Occidental will probably be outweighed in the line but if the Stanford game is to be taken as any criterion that won't bother the Tigers at all.

BELVEDERE GARDENS DOWNS MONTEBELLO

Belvedere Gardens yesterday defeated Montebello a 7-to-1 beating. The Gardens nine outplayed the semi-championship contenders in every branch of the game and won a one-sided victory. The lone Montebello tally came in the eighteenth inning on a single. Belvedere batters only got one more hit than Montebello, but clever base running and headwork in general gave the Gardens nine runs. Crowley, Belvedere first baseman, smashed out a pair of home runs in three times at the plate. The score:

SAGEHENS AFTER BEARS

Coach Nixon Getting Pomona Gridders Ready for Clash With California Eleven Saturday

BY BRAVEN DYER

Coach Eugene Nixon gathered his Pomona College gridders about him at Claremont yesterday afternoon and began to lay plans for Saturday's game with the University of California eleven at Berkeley. There will be only light work this week.

Although Sagehen supporters are not given to claiming moral victories on many occasions the Blue and White backers are regarding last week's battle with the meaty U.S.C. outfit in such a light. Although outweighed, the Pomona athletes held the Trojans to a pair of touchdowns and but for the loss of Borey Bell might have scored once themselves in the second half. For the past three years the Sagehens have managed to shove over a touchdown on U.S.C., and in each season the score came in the second half of the game. With Bell out the long passing attack of Nixon's machine just naturally could not function.

HAS TOUGH JOB

The Pomona mentor faces a tough assignment in the Golden Bears. Andy Smith's teams always start slowly and gain better form as the season progresses. On the other hand it is doubtful if the Pomona men will ever show better than they did last week—at least defensively. Nixon knows his offense will work well against teams of his own weight.

It looks as if Bell and Lee Baynham, the big tackle, will both be out of the game with California. The former's shoulder won't permit of his playing, while Baynham was crushed under several tons of Trojans. On the same play Ranney Draper, end, was squashed all out of shape, but two or three hours of deep breathing shifted his wrecked organism back into condition and he will be ready for the northern scrap. All of the other athletes are set for action.

To take Bell's place Nixon has four men. The most likely choice is George Stone, who fitted into the big halfback's shoes in the second half against the Trojans. Stone can be used in the combination without any noticeable change in smoothness, because he has seen three years of service. The other three subs are new, and it will take time for them to fit in without some hitch.

CAN'T BE HURT

Brick Smith, a red-headed sophomore, is the toughest of the bunch. He can't be hurt. Gerwin Neher, captain of last year's frosh team, is the best line plunger of the lot and is sure to see action against the Bears. Gus Kaiser, a junior, has been showing up extremely well. He played on one of the strong Pomona High School outfits several years ago, but was not out for the Sagehen eleven last year, his hitch hard and knows the game.

Baynham's understudies are Leavitt and Hezmahalch. The former played the second half last week and showed all kinds of stuff. In addition to Hazmahalch, who is a sophomore, Line-coach Heath has Hall, another second-year man. All three will probably make the trip north.

Nixon and his charges will leave here Friday night on the "Owl." Enthusiasm is high over the team's showing against the Trojans and a large delegation of undergraduates will go to Berkeley.

William Finn in Pagoda at Phoenix Races

Cecil Boyce and William W. Finn, both of Los Angeles, the latter one of the best known racing men of the Pacific Coast, have been named officials at the twenty-four days' running race meeting at Phoenix, Ariz., to open November 10.

Finn was an official at the Culver City race meeting last fall and has been connected with racing for more than twenty years, having been a judge at Salt Lake City, Denver and throughout Idaho when racing flourished in those States.

He will serve as racing secretary and will also be Boyce's aide in the judges' stand, along with E. C. Smith, a judge at the Belmont, Saratoga, Empire City and Aqueduct race tracks around New York this summer, who will complete the triangle of stewards.

According to Finn, horses are pouring in from all parts of the country, large quotas having already arrived at the Phoenix fair grounds from Vancouver, Chicago, Cleveland and Akron race tracks. More than 400 horses are already working out at the oval, which is pronounced one of the best and fastest in the country. Even more horses than at Phoenix's first meeting last fall, when extra stables had to be erected, are expected to be there by opening day, according to Finn.

Rockson and Mexico Stage Ring Wind-up

All fandom is talking about the wonderful three main-event boxing show to be dished out Wednesday night at the Wilmington Athletic Club. The top notch of the three main events brings together that old war horse, Kid Mexico of Huntington Beach, and Mickie Rockson of Los Angeles at 158 pounds.

The second spot of the three main-event exhibitions for Wednesday night as dished up by Matchmaker Doc Moffett will see in action none other than Joe Schlocker of Los Angeles and Johnnie LaMar of Los Angeles at 135 pounds. Schlocker beat Jordan in a main event at Wilmington, September 24; he had Jordan on the mat for the count of nine in both the third and fourth sessions.

The third of the three main events will bring together Dandy Dillon of Minneapolis and Billy Hogan, big Long Beach favorite, at 124 pounds.

Quite above the average are the four remaining bouts, which follow:

Jimmy Dunn of Los Angeles vs. Young Denney of New Orleans at 145 pounds, Champ Monroe of Los Angeles vs. Young Garcia of Los Angeles at 128 pounds, Roy Moore of Huntington Beach vs. Al Cramer of Long Beach at 145 pounds, Young Polo of Los Angeles vs. Kid Henry of Los Angeles at 112 pounds.

REDUCING Article CXIX

In this age of unnatural living one is very apt to do many things that have a tendency to put on fat. Such as continual riding and sitting. And then we eat such hearty food, and from lack of proper exercise to burn up this food there is no alternative but to get fat. Nothing that science has discovered up to date will enable one to keep normal weight if one fills up three times a day on fat-producing foods, then refusing to indulge in enough exercise to assist nature in the work of digestion, assimilation and elimination.

There is a reason why people who have allowed themselves to get overweight dislike to do the things that normal people do. Any slight exertion on the part of a fat person will cause immediate fatigue. Their breathing is interfered with by the excess fat, also the heart is affected.

Then comes the subject of reducing. How can I get rid of this surplus fat with the least inconvenience? I love to eat, and I am too busy to walk. The writer can answer that question without any hesitancy; you will not only keep your fat, but you will add to it daily.

WEAKEN THE BODY

But there is a class who go on a fast and starve the body cells, weaken the entire body and in many cases are permanently affected. It is foolish for a person to allow oneself to accumulate fat until if is not only burdensome, but becomes a danger signal to health. Yet, if one has reached that stage, it is just as foolish to go to the other extreme and starve. If moderation would keep one in good condition, why not adopt the same method in getting back to condition? The person who has lived a life of moderation, being moderate in everything he does, is seldom affected in old age with the common ailments, nor is he overweight to any alarming extent.

The rules for reducing apply to one wishing to prevent excess weight as well, the only difference being the person who is normal in weight has less trouble ahead of him and has the easiest task before him. To be frank, a fat person has a job staring him in the face for some months to come if he wishes to reduce without injury to himself. And that is the object of these articles, to direct its readers aright and not mislead with wild statements such as are used in fake reducing advertisements.

No apparatus has ever been placed on the market for the purpose of reducing that can begin to do what you personally can do if you learn what to avoid in your diet, and would exercise properly without any apparatus whatsoever, combined with proper breathing. I will tell you frankly that it will take you many weeks longer, but instead of being a physical wreck in the end, you will be stronger and healthier than you have been in years; and there will be no excuse for ever getting fat again as long as you live, and you will stand a better chance of living longer; also getting more out of life.

LACK OF ELIMINATION

Fat is the accumulation of waste products, and by unnatural living there is a lack of proper elimination, therefore the accumulation. In conjunction with the error, as stated above, one eats a surplus of fat-producing food. So we learn by eliminating the cause we remove the effect. And the only way this can be accomplished is through natural laws and not by artifical means. And the natural way is by a slow process; for the simple reason that the accumulation of fat is a slow process.

It is strange how human beings will overeat for years, bring on a condition of discomfort, and reaching the danger point, will suddenly decide to reduce by artifical means because they are led to believe it can be done quickly with little or no exertion on their part. The common-sense part of it is lost sight of, because it is not common sense to expect to reduce through artifical means any more than it would be to keep alive through the same process.

Our bodies come into this world through natural laws, they are maintained through the same laws, and to the extent that we obey those natural laws depends our physical fitness. Nature will not allow us to disregard those laws that we may satisfy our selfish desires, then come to our rescue when we are past middle life and rebuild our entire bodies for us in a few days.

However, nature is kind, and if we are willing to make a sacrifice, faithfully following natural laws as to eating and exercise, a new body can be rebuilded in one year that will be so far ahead of the one we discarded that we will not know ourselves. But it means work, and regularity. Common sense with no extremes, moderation and watchful waiting, but in the end a joyful satisfaction of knowing what real health means.

COMMISSION TO GOVERN SPORT

Congress Will be Asked to Name Baseball Body

Believes Pastime Too Big for a Dictatorship

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Baseball will be governed hereafter by a Federal commission instead of a voluntary, self-imposed dictatorship if Congress enacts a bill to be introduced in the next Congress by Representative Sol Bloom, Democrat, New York.

Mr. Bloom, himself a ball player on the California sand lots in his youth, here today announced that when Congress reconvenes he will take steps to provide Federal regulation for the national game as well as endeavoring to stop future baseball scandals.

TIME HAS COME

"The nation-wide interest in the world series now in progress, combined with the national chagrin that one of the participating teams is involved in a scandal convinces me that the time has come when the Federal government should maintain a supervisory interest in baseball," Mr. Bloom said.

"Baseball is a matter of interstate commerce. The two major leagues and most of the minor leagues, including all of the larger minor leagues, are interstate affairs. Congress has power to regulate the interstate operation of railroads and the interstate movement of foodstuffs, medicines, etc.

HAS HOLD ON PUBLIC

"If Congress can do this it can regulate interstate baseball. The sport is a national pastime and it has taken such a hold on our people that the government should provide some sort of regulation for the good of the sport as well as the protection of the public. Baseball magnates recognized the demand for some sort of super regulation when Judge Landis was chosen as czar, but the game is too big for one-man control. When Congress reconvenes I shall introduce a regulatory bill and I believe it will be enacted into a law."

All Stalls at Tia Juana Are Already Taken

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 6.—Although the annual race meeting at the Tia Juana course will not be opened until Thanksgiving Day, it was announced today by officials of the Tia Juana Jockey Club that all of the 1442 stalls at the track have already been reserved by horsemen. This number of stalls will take care of about 1000 thoroughbreds, some 400 stalls being required as storage room for feed and riding equipment, also quarters for trainers and grooms.

The disirtbution of thousands to horsemen throughout the long meeting of about 125 racing days, together with the six stakes which have a total of $90,500 in added money, have elicited a flood of applications for stabling for the last few weeks. The track will be open for the training of horses the 20th inst., it is announced.

Many applications for stabling from horsemen in various parts of the country are being turned down and accordingly the Jockey Club men say that the belated ones will not be able to get accommodations.

TROJANS WORKING HARD

Coach Henderson's Charges Down to Brass Tacks in Preparation for Arizona Game Saturday

The Trojans have their feet back on solid earth again. Last Saturday's game with Pomona, in which the U.S.C. athletes were able to win only after a battle royal, did the local players a world of good in the estimation of Coach Elmer Henderson.

"It is the best thing that could have happened to my team," said Henderson last night, while his charges went through their paces at Bovard Field. "After running over Caltech for such a large score they naturally got the idea they were sitting on top of the world and I am thankful that the Pomona athletes put up such a wonderful battle. I have nothing but praise for Coach Nixon's men, who showed us a warm afternoon."

WORKED HARD

Henderson's linemen were working overtime last night. Leo Calland, line mentor, had his charges bowling through opposing forwards with their heads down low. He wants a lot of drive on the offensive. The Pomona forwards outcharged the Trojans and Calland doesn't want that to happen again.

Punting came in for a lot of attention also. Bob Lee, hampered by a bad heel, was getting off some nice boots, although Otto Anderson was showing much better distance and height than either Lee, Dorsey or Cole. Dorsey still is bothered by a charley horse, but it is gradually working out.

Henry LeFevre and Maurice Badgro are probably out of next Saturday's game. The former has a bad leg, while the Pomona men hit Badgro hard enough to dislocate one of his knees. He may be on the bench for a month. Bill Cook has yet to get into a game, while Fay Thomas's charley horse prevents his doing anything violent. Hawkins's hand is still swollen badly, while Johnny Riddle has yet to get rid of his boils.

BIT WORRIED

Although the Trojans are not doing a great deal of worrying about the Arizona game next Saturday the individual players are a bit uncertain of their respective positions. No one but Henderson will know who is going to start against the Wildcats and there are rumors that the line-up will be considerably changed.

Last season the U.S.C. eleven waded through the border State athletes for a 66-to-6 victory. There probably won't be such a massacre Saturday, but the Wildcats don't figure to beat the locals.

PASADENA WINS FROM SOUTH PASADENA

In a desperate last-quarter rally Pasadena High School's football team scored a lone touchdown against South Pasadena yesterday and won a practice game by a 6-to-3 score. The South Pasadenans had been holding the heavier Bulldog eleven throughout, but a long pass to Phelps, right end, gave the Millionaires a touchdown in the last few minutes of play and offset the three points scored by Mullins's drop kick in the first quarter. South Pasadena looked good for a victory in the last quarter, when they stopped play after play behind the lines and made yards at will themselves. The score:

Pasadena		South Pasadena
Bell	L.E.	Taylor
Dishner	L.T.	Rabe
Bodily	L.G.	Hoagner

Kid Evans Is Victorious at Newsies' Club

Kid Evans, the 112-pound newsboy champion boxer, carried off the honors at the semimonthly newsie bouts last night by defeating Young Kid Jackson (colored) substituting for Rudy Benton. Although Jackson proved to be a rather tough nut, Evans won every round. Morris (Mushy) Levenson, protege of Fidel La Barba, world's amateur flyweight champion, defeated Ralph Bennett in four rounds. Levenson was a little late in getting started, but milled his way to a draw in the third round and then won the extra round. He hails from Lincoln High School.

Herbert Turchi won over Al Garcia by a technical knockout in the third round with a right to the jaw. The other results were as follows: Jimmy Adams defeated Ralph Volke, Del Gonzales won a four-round decision over Carman Makdale, Luez Leon beat Mike Rivers—decision, Julius Mitchell, little colored flash, was too much for Bernie Einstein, winning all the way; Alec Uran hung it on Willie Cooper in four rounds.

The referees were Sammy Mandell, Spike Robinson and M. L. Rubin. Edward Traub did the Dan Tobeing; Gig Roncey furnished the card, which proved to be a corker, and that hustling little newsie, Carlo Curtis, managed everything in tip-top fashion. Deacon Pyle, president of the club, was on hand as usual.

Complete Story is Given on First Questioning

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—Liborio Miceli, a dentist, had killed a man and blood and it preyed on his mind. For months he wandered about St. Louis on the verge of confessing to the first man he met. Detectives pondered over his actions and called it unexplainable. He had spent his money freely and without regret for moonshine whisky, between sprees he worked as a bartender. Twice he was arrested by police raids.

"But they knew," Miceli told police. "They will ask me about the murder of old John Fral, and I will tell them everything and then I will be sober up right." But they did not ask him. Detectives gave him the customary once-over and set him free again.

THERE WAS MYSTERY

The murder of Fral in his soft drink parlor at 2212 Washington ave., was an unusual mystery. He was killed on October 24, 1922, and there was not a sign of a clew to the slayer. On September 23, 1923, Sam Sass, Fral's partner, was shot and killed in the same place. A whisky feud, said police, established that Fral and Sass had been making and selling whisky.

Fral, Jr., was questioned but he was watched. He was suspected after a mysterious trip to Illinois. "I was looking for the man who killed my father," he explained. After much questioning he named Miceli, who, he was known as Leo Mitchell.

In the meantime Special Officer Quinlisk had been doing some detective work in the case. He had met Miceli was friendly with Fral and that the slain man had objected to him as a companion for the youth.

Two other Quinlisk and Sergt. Hangler met Miceli on a street. Miceli was drunk. They came to the holdover and kept him up and then questioned about the Fral killing. He confessed immediately.

STORY OF SLAYING

"I killed him because he had been out looking for me," Miceli said. "I knew young Fral and his old man accused me of killing him astray. I thought it over a while, then I got full of booze and went to see him at his home. I asked him about the matter and he admitted he had been looking for me.

"He didn't run try to kill me when I asked him and he made a move like he was going to get a revolver, so I pulled out and had three shots at him. Then I got sobered up and drove to Alton. I came back last February and went out several times to see Fral. I wanted to get the thing off my mind, but I was afraid to tell."

"Why didn't you confess when you were arrested before?"

"I started to, but nobody said anything to me about it, so I didn't say anything. I am ready to take my medicine. (The old man would have been killed if I hadn't got him.)

PETROLEUM FROM PLANTS

France Interested in Process for Obtaining Oils Artificially from Fibrous Vegetation

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Prof. Mailhe, who demonstrated his artificial process for the manufacture of petroleum before the Manufacturers' Congress yesterday gave full details of his plans today in an interview.

Prof. Mailhe began his long series of experiments by adopting as the basic principle that petroleum could be made artificially from so-called "ether salts." The most complicated varieties of ether salts—found in the broom plant and other fibrous and textile vegetation—yielded an excess of procarbon, from which Prof. Mailhe easily extracted petroleum.

He declared gasoline was obtained from this process "exactly like the gasoline produced in Pennsylvania, and equally good for use in motors." His synthetic gasoline gave 10,818 calories, his synthetic kerosene 10,916 calories, and his heavy oils 10,800 calories—or roughly equivalent to the heat force product of natural oils.

DISCOVERY IMPORTANT

Industrially and politically—to France, at least—this discovery is of enormous importance, Prof. Mailhe believes. He considers the problem has been solved technically, and he has convinced government experts who have followed his recent demonstrations.

What remains to be done is to commercialize the project on a vast scale by the government itself. Prof. Mailhe's plan, which is now being studied, consists of plantations of palm trees and other fibrous plants over about 500,000 acres in Western Africa. This would produce for France approximately 90,000,000 gallons of petroleum annually.

HUGE SUPPLY POSSIBLE

By further utilising the fibrous by-products in France's great silk industry and in various paper mills, Prof. Mailhe believes it is possible to give France an independent petrol supply.

The process can only be made economical by huge plantations, however, as small-scale production costs twice as much as American petroleum in the European markets. Prof. Mailhe's discovery is receiving the closest attention by government experts. If the plan is feasible it will be drawn up for presentation to Parliament, as the petroleum supply represents one of the greatest industrial problems of the country, especially in the event of war.

A detailed announcement by Baron Goffinet, master of ceremonies to the Empress, shows that the aged woman, who has been insane for fifty-seven years, still owns one of the greatest treasures of jewels in the world. Baron Goffinet says the jewels were secretly transported from Mexico in 1818, and never had been outside of the Empress' palace near Brussels since. Their value is approximately $8,000,000.

ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA in a New Form at a saving of 46%

THE publication to-day of the Encyclopædia Britannica in a New Form at a sweeping reduction in price marks a new epoch in the history of this great work.

To-day you can obtain one of these wonderful sets, the latest edition, in large type, complete and unabridged, for 46% less than the famous Cambridge issue. Here at last is the ideal Britannica at a price so low that every home can afford it.

This is perhaps the most important announcement that has been made in the 156 years that the Britannica has been published, and it records one of the greatest publishing achievements of all time.

Summed up, it means that it is now possible for us to offer you the complete Britannica printed in large type from the original plates at a reduction of nearly one-half—by far the lowest price at which the newest and latest large type Britannica has ever been sold to the general public.

This Handsome
BOOKCASE FREE!

This handsome bookcase, in dark mahogany finish, especially designed for us by Maple & Co. of London, will be given free with each set of the Encyclopædia Britannica in the New Form while this offer lasts. But you must act promptly—mail the coupon to-day.

Revolutionary Changes in Publishing

THE steps by which the New Form has been made a successful reality is a fascinating story. Leading printers and publishers said: "If you can do it, it will be a big success." Here was an entirely new idea involving revolutionary changes in the publication of the Britannica.

But we knew we were right. This idea was the logical outcome of years of experience; it crystallized the recommendations of thousands of users and owners of the Britannica. We gave the specifications to our experts and told them to go ahead. Their success has been beyond all expectations.

These were the specifications—and they have been carried out to the letter:

[1] Large type, easy to read.
[2] Complete and latest text. (Nothing omitted, nothing altered.)
[3] Fully illustrated. (All the original plates, maps, etc.)
[4] Sweeping reduction in price.

Why the Price is so Low

FIRST OF ALL, the experts made a striking innovation—they decided to bind this issue of the Britannica in 16 double volumes instead of 32 single volumes. That one change enabled us to save nearly 50% of the binding cost.

This innovation was made possible by the use of the famous Britannica Opacity Paper, which is very thin but beautifully white and opaque. We placed an order for 1200 tons—sufficient for 10,000,000 books of ordinary size—at a time when prices in the paper market were at their lowest.

Then it was determined to print this issue from the plates of the famous Cambridge issue, which sells for nearly twice as much. By doing this it was possible to save thousands of dollars, because we did not have to reset 33,000 pages of type.

Contents Identical with Issues Selling for Twice as Much

The use of these plates is your guarantee that the text is identical with that of the finest de luxe sets.

The Encyclopædia Britannica in the New Form is the newest and latest issue, containing not only a full and authoritative account of the World War and its momentous consequences, but all the latest developments in industry, art, science, invention, etc. It contains 49,000,000 words, 33,000 pages and 15,600 illustrations—as much material as 476 books of average size printed on ordinary paper.

Only a Limited Edition at this 46% Saving

Only 20,000 sets of the Encyclopædia Britannica in the New Form have been printed and more than 3000 of these were sold before a single volume was off the press!

Announcement of the New Form is being made in London, Paris and other capitals simultaneously with this announcement in America. Of the 17,000 sets hardly more than half will be available for the United States. The sets will go fast. The first subscribers will, of course, be served first. We urge you, therefore, to mail the coupon to-day for full particulars if you want to get one of these sets at the unprecedented saving of 46 per cent.

But you must act promptly! The special Handy Volume issue (which was offered last fall and which will never be reprinted) was sold out long before the date originally fixed for the end of the sale, and thousands of people who meant to order but put it off were disappointed. There is no doubt that this present issue in the New Form will be sold just as quickly.

Easy Terms—Small First Payment

A very small first payment will put the complete set of 16 double volumes in your home immediately and you can pay the balance in easy monthly payments, so small that they will never be missed.

Seize this opportunity before it is too late. The time is now—it is the opportunity for which you have been waiting—to-morrow may be too late. We have only 17,000 sets to fill a world-wide demand. TWO NEW SHIP LINES WILL CALL AT HARBOR

CANADA VESSELS ON EUROPE-MEXICO VOYAGES WILL GET CARGOES HERE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Oct. 6.—Two new services are to be inaugurated by the Canadian government merchant marine that will affect Los Angeles, as in both cases calls will be made at that port. B. C. Keeley, Pacific Coast manager of the line, made the announcement on his return from Montreal.

One line will be to London and Antwerp, in addition to the present service to Glasgow, Liverpool and Avenmouth, and both going from here to Europe and returning the boats will call at Los Angeles.

Boats will load here with lumber, concentrates and general cargo, and will then go to Los Angeles for canned goods and other commodities for London and Antwerp.

Coming this way the first call on the Pacific Coast will be made at Los Angeles, where discharge will be made of cargo from Europe, before coming on to the home port.

The other service will be to Mexico.

It is the intention of the Canadian government to inaugurate a Mexico-Central American service from here and, as southbound cargoes are light, lumber will be carried to Los Angeles and cargo taken there for the southern ports. Northbound Los Angeles will also be a port of call. Combination passenger and freight boats are to be put on this service in the spring.

RAILROAD WILL BUILD NEW WATER TERMINAL

LARGE WHARVES ARE PLANNED FOR HOUSTON SHIP CHANNEL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CLINTON (Tex.) Oct. 6.—It is announced by President W. R. Scott of the Southern Pacific Lines in Texas and Louisiana, that new wharves and deep-water terminal facilities on the Houston Ship Channel at Clinton will be constructed at a cost of more than $1,000,000. All plans have been approved and the construction work will be started immediately, he said. The steamships of the Morgan Line, subsidiary of the Southern Pacific, will be routed to Clinton, the gateway to Houston, when the improvements are finished. The docking space will accommodate six vessels. The docks will be of reinforced concrete, and these, as well as the sheds and warehouses, will be fireproof. The shipside tracks will accommodate 140 freight cars set for loading. One warehouse will be 400 by 70 feet and the other 400 by 60 feet. Oil loading and unloading facilities will be installed. The trucking platforms will be forty feet wide and 500 feet deep. The water front will be served with 22,000 feet of track. Other units to the new terminals will be built later, Mr. Scott said.

For traveling distances of 500 miles or more, dirigibles are favored over airplanes or railroads, according to recent tests regarding cost and time saved.

Catarrh Must Be Healed!

You'll never be free from catarrh until you heal those raw, inflamed patches in your nose and throat that are out of reach of liquids and sprays.

Step into any first-class drug store and get a 50-cent tube or jar of "Dee" the famous Dennis's Eucalyptus Ointment. Heat a spoonful in a tin plate and inhale deep breaths of the soothing vapor. Do this night and morning, and you will experience the greatest relief you have ever known. No more nasty dripping in the throat, no stopped-up feeling, no buzzing in the ears. You will feel better, breathe better and sleep better. The vapor deposits an antiseptic film of oil over diseased membranes, destroying germs and gradually healing raw spots.

ELECTION SEEN NEAR IN BRITAIN

MacDonald Government to Accept Challenge

Final Decision Reached at Cabinet Meeting

Test Vote in Commons Will Come Wednesday

BY JOHN STEELE

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Late tonight it appears highly probable that the government has reconsidered its decision and has decided to accept the challenge of the opposition and go down before a vote of censure Wednesday and immediately appeal to the country in a general election. At an all-day Cabinet meeting the whole position was finally reviewed and at the conclusion the Cabinet concurred with Prime Minister MacDonald's view that the present moment was the best in which to go to the country and get the inevitable campaign out of the way.

It is understood that the government's final rejection of the suggested proposal that a judicial commission of inquiry be set up to inquire into the Communist editor case was vetoed because it was considered that the functioning of such a commission would in effect constitute an expression of censure on the government's act.

LABOR OBDURATE

The Labor leaders are not content at all. They decline to accept a compromise on the matter, but will give a challenge to turn them out in the House of Commons. The speeches of reliable Labor spokesmen tonight are also more bellicose and hinting at an immediate appeal to the country. Ben Spoor, chief government whip in the House of Commons and one of the principal organizers of the Labor party, speaking at Ealing tonight said:

"The time for undoing the foolish comment or preventing criticism has passed. Let the country say whether it wants the Liberals, the Tories, or us."

WEBB THREATENING

Sydney Webb, president of the Board of Trade, speaking at Cambridge tonight, was no less threatening in his language, declaring there had never been a government persecuted with quite the same amount of enmity as the Labor party had been.

The objection to a select committee, originally proposed by the Conservatives, is that under the rules it must be packed against the Labor party. It consists of ten members, selected according to the representation of the parties in the House, and there would be seven Conservatives and four Liberals to three Laborites.

There was a rumor in political circles in London today that Moscow may reject the treaty recently negotiated on the ground that the Russian delegates made too many concessions to capitalism.

French Papers Advocate Bars on Immigration

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Premier Mussolini's speech in Milan yesterday is commented upon by today's press in Paris as extremely significant, particularly the passage in which he declares Italy has a 440,000 excess of births every year, and the only way out for the surplus population is a war or new markets.

In view of the new immigration restrictions, the French press asserts that Italian emigration to the French colonies, already large, and even dangerous, especially in Tunis, will greatly increase. To combat this three most important Conservative organs advocate restrictions along the lines of the American plan as the best comment on Premier Mussolini's warning.

DR. FOSDICK QUITS PULPIT

Modernist Leader Resigns as Fundamentalists of Presbyterians Win Two-Year Controversy

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The controversy between Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, modernist, and the Presbyterian General Assembly was closed today by Dr. Fosdick's resignation from his pulpit. Dr. Fosdick, who is a Baptist, has occupied for some time the positon of assistant minister of the First Presbyterian Church and has been for two years the storm center of the modernist-fundamentalist dispute.

The fundamentalists, led by W. J. Bryan, triumphed in the last general assembly and a resolution was passed requiring Dr. Fosdick to leave the Baptist Church and subscribe to the Presbyterian confession of faith, or resign. He tendered the resignation to the New York presbytery.

The issue had been clearly drawn, both in the dictum of the general assembly and a subsequent communication formally tendered the minister by the presbytery of New York. It was considered reasonably certain the resignation would be accepted.

That it had been tendered was made known in statements issued today by Dr. Edgar Whitaker Work, chairman of the special committee of the local Presbytery, designated to deal with the Fosdick case. There was set forth the text of the decision of the judicial commission of the General Assembly at Grand Rapids, Mich., last May 2, formal notification Dr. Work sent Dr. Fosdick last September 1, and the pastor's reply dated today.

In declining to become a Presbyterian Dr. Fosdick wrote he was not moved by denominational reasons, for he had no sectarian loyalties. He was convinced, however, that he would be guilty of "moral surrender" and a "violation of conscience" if he subscribed to the confession of faith "after two years of vehement personal attack from a powerful section of the Presbyterian Church."

Young Women Lead Strikers in Police Fight

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PATERSON (N. J.) Oct. 6.—Refused permission to meet in Turn Hall tonight 2000 striking silk workers, led by two young women, waving American flags marched to the City Hall and engaged in a battle with squads of police officers when ordered to disperse. A score of men were injured and thirteen arrests were made.

Fists and clubs were used promiscuously in the fighting and it was half an hour before the police could subdue the crowd of men and women.

The strikers in their parade to city hall were led by Louise and Alice Kimball. John Butterworth, who started a speech at City Hall was arrested. Police Sergeant Kelliher ordered the crowd to disperse and when booed he led the police into action.

Refugees From Turkey Present Greek Problem

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SALONICA (Greece) Oct. 6.—What to do with the vast refugee army pouring into Greece through Thrace because of the expulsion by the Turks has created a problem that so far has baffled the Greek government.

Nearly 200,000 arrived in one month, it is estimated, and their huts and ramshackle temporary homes spread out for miles over the lowlands down by the water's edge.

A total of 1,200,000 is expected. To provide work and homes for them large projects are contemplated, including the drainage of the valleys of the Vardar and Struma rivers.

Every effort is being made to prevent the outbreak of a disease epidemic this winter.

Tom Alley on Way to Enter Race at Ascot

Tom Alley, veteran auto-racing pilot, holder of many world's records for dirt tracks when he was the star of the Deusenberg racing team, is en route from his home in Chicago to Los Angeles to drive over the Ascot Speedway. The daring fellow will make his initial start in the night races scheduled for next Saturday evening, piloting a Fronty Special pending the arrival of an eight-cylinder French racing creation which Alley has had shipped from New York via the Panama Canal.

Alley has not driven in Los Angeles since the old Ascot days when he was a team-mate of the late Eddie O'Donnell. The Chicagoan graduated into the racing game from the mechanical seat of Ralph De Palma's Fiat car more than ten years ago. De Palma declared him to be the best riding mechanic in the game, and Alley verified Ralph's boosting by becoming a sensation as a driver after Fred Duesenberg placed him as captain of the "Deusie" team.

LUMBER FREIGHT RATE INCREASE IS HELD UP

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Proposed increase in freight rates on lumber from Pacific Coast points to Arkansas, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, West Virginia and Wisconsin were suspended today by the Interstate Commerce Commission from October 7 to February 4. Similar proposed increases from Pacific Coast points to Bedford and East Bradford, Pa., also were suspended. During the suspension the commission will conduct an investigation as to the reasonableness of the new rates.

Mr. Crowe was a devout churchgoer. The young minister of his church was also devout, but easily embarrassed.

BRITAIN IS AVERSE TO PROTOCOL

High Official Says Geneva Pact Unlikely to Obtain Parliament's Sanction

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—"No British representative has signed, and it is extremely unlikely that any ever will sign the Geneva peace protocol." This answer was given today by a high British diplomatic authority in reply to the question, "What is England going to do about it?"

"There has been a lot of uninformed talk about this protocol," the official continued. "Even had Lord Parmoor signed, which he didn't, in accordance with instructions, it would have been purely conditional and would have committed England to nothing unless the protocol had been ratified by Parliament.

"Even then it would have been conditional on the success of the arms conference, which may modify the objectionable clauses in the protocol. It is unthinkable that any British Parliament would ratify the instrument which is so bitterly opposed not only by America, but by Britain's own dominions."

England has done nothing more than to refuse a meaningless signature, and nothing more will be done until Parliament meets in regular session at the end of the month. Then it is practically certain that whatever government is in power Parliament will refuse to ratified it unless the objectionable clauses are withdrawn."

An old man was asked what he did when he bowed his head in church so reverently just before the service began.

"Well," replied the old man, "that's a fair question an' I'll give you a fair answer—I don't know what other folks do, but I always count forty myself."—[Epworth

GEN. CALLES TO DO AWAY WITH COINS

New President Plans to Substitute Paper Money for Gold and Silver

BY JACK STARR-BUNT

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 6.—One of the first financial moves planned by Gen. Calles to follow his accession to the Presidency December 1, will be the replacement by bank bills of the present gold and silver currency, which Gen. Calles regards as clumsy. It is stated in official circles that a portion of the Arlitt bond issue, not needed for the payment of foreign debt, will be used to strengthen the present Monetary Commission and convert it into the sole bank of issue on the date of Calle's inauguration.

If the Arlitt issue does not produce sufficient funds, it is added, the Monetary Commission will be converted into a bank of issue with its present capital.

All the banks here, Mexican and foreign, including the British and the American, favor the plan and have agreed to accept the bank's bills.

Home Products Not Under Ban in Bush League

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

AUSTIN (Tex.) Oct. 6.—Juan Icaza, special agent of the Mexican government, arrived here today to supervise and check the printing of the $50,000,000 gold bond issue placed on the market last week by J. L. Arlitt, Austin investment broker.

Local boys, returning home from various leagues in the East this winter, will not be confronted with the ban on professional players in local winter baseball as in previous years, according to Frank Kerwin, secretary of the Managers' Association.

In the Managers' Association's winter leagues it had been the custom to limit the teams to two Class Double-A professional players. The purpose was to keep the clubs having the money from loading up and making the league races uneven. It was successful in that way, but it kept many returning players, whose homes were here, from making enough money for expenses during the winter, and for this action the league received much criticism.

Correcting this mistake the six-club Southern California Winter loop, which gets started this month and will be composed of such clubs as Hollywood, Glendale, Pasadena, and the St. Louis Colored Giants, will allow any number of Class Dougle-A leaguers on a team. For this reason more stars from the Coast League than ever before are expected to perform in the circuit. Each of the clubs, Glandale, Pasadena and Hollywood, will have at least six big timers on the line-up in order to compete with the powerful St. Louis Colored Giants, a club composed of some of the fastest players in the East.

Filipino Gets Chance Against Eddie McKenna

The most popular little boxer who has ever performed at the Hollywood American Legion stadium is young Nationalista, the colorful Filipino bantamweight who is booked to box Eddie McKenna at the regular Friday night show this week.

So many requests have been made to Manager Al Masters and Matchmaker Tom Kennedy that Nationalista be seen again at the stadium that the boy who made such a sensational stand in the bantamweight tournament is going to get another chance. Nationalista is out of the tournament, but Eddie McKenna is trying to work his way into the bantam tourney, and if he gets over Nationalista, he will have a mighty good chance of having his name placed on the eligible list.

McKenna has a twelve-round draw with Joe Lynch, former world's bantamweight champion. Any boy who has that much class is good enough for a main event at the Hollywood stadium or any other four-round boxing club.

Friday nights card is a better one than Hollywood has been offered in weeks. Sailor Melchoir, who kayoed Red Uhlan recently in San Francisco, is another attraction. He meets Sailor Foster in the special event.

Stolen Autos Held in Mexico to be Returned

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 6.—Chief of Police James Patrick announced tonight that five Mexican officials left Tia Juana, Mex., tonight for Ensenada, Mex., to return to Tia Juana a number of automobiles asserted to have been stolen in the United States.

Chief Patrick said that tomorrow there would arrive in Tia Juana representatives of the theft bureau of the Pacific Coast Automobile Underwriters Conference and of other insurance companies for the purpose of identifying, if possible, the cars in question.

The Mexican officials, it is reported, have located recently between twenty-five and thirty automobiles stolen in the United States.

MAN GORED TO DEATH BY BULL

Wife Escapes to Fence as Animal Kills Rancher Near Santa Rosa

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SANTA ROSA, Oct. 6.—Augustus Pedrotti, a rancher living three miles from here, was gored to death by a bull on his ranch today. Pedrotti and his wife had gone into the field to lengthen the bull's rope. The bull broke away and charged them. Mrs. Pedrotti escaped to a nearby fence, but the bull caught and gored Pedrotti before he could reach safety.

tinguished from prices paid to farmers.

Exact recommendations of members of the Tariff Commission are referred to in the President's letter to the commission.

"It is my earnest wish strongly to uphold a scientific tariff, based on the true difference in cost of production for our own industries," says President Coolidge in his letter to the commission.

"There is, however, a wide conflict of opinion within the commission over the question at issue. These differences appear to be based upon different methods to use and different interpretation of the cost and other data collected by the commission and from these differences arises the conflict as to whether there is indicated a difference in cost between Cuban production and United States production of 1.75 cents or 1.23 cents per pound."

VETERANS SALUTE DAWES

Members of G. A. R. Post in Wisconsin Pay Tribute to Candidate on Campaign Tour

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DULUTH (Minn.) Oct. 6.—Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for Vice-President, battered today at the bulwarks of the La Follette stronghold.

Penetrating Wisconsin for the third time in almost as many weeks, the Republican nominee attacked the La Follette independent movement in speeches at Eau Claire, Rice Lake and Superior, and then came to Duluth tonight to speak in the city armory.

In all his speeches during the day he declared it to be Senator La Follette's "proposition to have us change the form of government under which we have lived for 135 years and make the judicial and executive powers of our government subordinate to Congress—in other words, make us a government of Congress."

Acceptance of such a proposition by the American electorate, he contended, means chaos.

The feature of the day's campaigning, in the opinion of the Vice-Presidential nominee, was a greeting he received at Eau Claire from a score of G.A.R. veterans, members of the famous Eagle Post of that city.

The veterans stepped forward when Mr. Dawes appeared on the platform and stood rigidly at salute. Mr. Dawes inquired if any members of his father's old regiment, the Sixth Wisconsin, were present, and was told by Capt. C. H. Henry, leader of the delegation, that "there is just one, Jerry Murphy, who is carrying a bullet now that he received at Gettysburg," but Mr. Murphy could not be found.

SEIZED RUM CRAFT OWNERS QUIT FIGHT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The owners of the Grace and Ruby, a British schooner seized outside the three-mile limit as a rum-runner, today abandoned in the Supreme Court their effort to have the ship released. An appeal docketed by them was dismissed on motion of their counsel. At the time the appeal was instituted it attracted wide attention because it involved the jurisdiction of the United States to seize vessels outside the three-mile limit. Since then, however, the United States by treaty has extended its sea jurisdiction in prohibition cases.

EL PASO BORDER SPAN REOPENED BY MEXICO

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

EL PASO (Tex.) Oct. 6.—Mexican officials today reopened the international bridge at 7 o'clock, after it had been shut down Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock, due to the refusal of gambling concessionnaires to close the public games. R. C. Lecada, personal representative of President Obregon, was in charge of the bridge closing, which marooned about 300 American men, women and children on the Mexican side of the river.

"My father is a physician and naturally, I was opposed to all patent medicine. So when a friend told me to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy for my stomach trouble, I laughed at him. All my symptoms have now disappeared." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. THIS BRIGHT BABY GIRL

Brought Joy to Home. Mrs. Price's Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scootac, Pa.—"I never felt like working, and when I would try to do any work standing on my feet, I would just drag around all day long. At times I would have terrible pains and would be in bed three or four days. I was in this condition about a year when I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the papers. I had heard different women say it was good for women's troubles, and my aunt thought it would help me as it had helped her. So I took the Vegetable Compound and it brought things right, and I was in good shape before I became a mother again. I believe it helps at birth, too, as with both my other babies I suffered a great deal more than with this one. I thank you a thousand times for the good your medicine has done me."—Mrs. ROBERT PRICE, Scootac, via Lockhaven, Pa.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, 98 out of every 100 report they were benefited by its use.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Home-Made Mixture

Joicey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair, and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."—[Advertisement.

HOOVER OFFERS NEW RADIO PLAN

Proposes National System of Programs

Addresses Third Annual Conference

that the greatest advance in radio since our last conference is the complete demonstration of the feasibility of interconnection. We owe a debt of gratitude to those who have blazed the way. The pioneers have been the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in wire interconnection, and the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company in radio interconnection through the use of short wave lengths.

"It is our duty to consider the possibilities and potentialities of of interconnection as a regular daily routine of the nation. Unless it be systematically organized, we cannot expect its continuation. I realize this matter, except in so far as it may be fostered and encouraged, does not lie in the government. It would be unfortunate, indeed, if such an important function as the distribution of information should ever fall into the hands of the government. It would be still more unfortunate if its control should come under the arbitrary power of any person or group of persons.

"Radio has passed from the field of an adventure to that of a public utility. Nor among the utilities is there one whose activities may yet come more closely to the life of each and every one of our citizens, nor which holds out greater possibilities of future influence, nor which is of more potential public concern. It must now be considered as a great agency of public service, and it is from that viewpoint that I hope the difficult problems coming before this conference will be discussed and solved.

WHAT REALLY COUNTS

"In the whole history of scientific discovery there has never been a translation into popular use so rapid as in radio telephony. So late as the year before I became Secretary of Commerce there were no broadcasting stations. At the end of four years 530 are in operation, making radio available to every home in the country. The sales of radio apparatus have increased from $1,000,000 a year to $1,000,000 a day. It is estimated that over 200,000 men are now employed in the industry, and the radio audience probably exceeds 20,000,000 of people.

"We may well be proud of this wonderful development, but in our self-congratulation let us not forget that the value of this great system does not lie primarily in its extent or even in its efficiency. Its worth depends on the use that is made of it. It is not the ability to transmit, but the character of what is transmitted that really counts.

"I would be most unfortunate if control of the functions of radio should come under the arbitrary power of any person or group of persons. It is inconceivable that such a situation could be allowed to exist. But I am not now dealing with monopoly. Nor is this a question where anyone lays claim to a monopoly. Interconnection is going on to local extent and over the wires of the telegraph companies, and by radio itself. We have promises of super radio and we have promises of interconnection of wired wireless. If there are several methods, it means that we might have several alternative programs always available. But whatever the method of interconnection may be, we are lacking in a definite organization of a national system of programs and a basis of support.

NOT FOR ADVERTISING

"I believe that the quickest way to kill broadcasting would be to use it for direct advertising. The reader of the newspaper has an option whether he will read an advertisement or not, but if a speech by the President is to be used as the meat in a sandwich of two patent medicine advertisements, there will be no radio left. To what extent it may be employed for what we now call indirect advertising I do not know, and only experience with the reactions of the listeners can tell. I do not believe there is any practical method of payment from the receivers. I wish to suggest for consideration the possibility of mutual organization by broadcasters of a service for themselves similar to that which the newspapers have for their use in the press associations, which would furnish programs of national events and arrange for their transmission and distribution on some sort of a financial basis just as the press associations gather and distribute news among their members.

"It may be that we cannot find a solution at this moment, but I believe that one result of this conference should be not only the consideration of this question, but the establishment of a continuing committee for its further consideration.

WAVE LENGTH PROBLEM

"One of the most important subjects for your consideration is the providing of operating channels for broadcasting stations. Of the present 530 stations, fifty-seven are Class B, operating on from 500 to 1000 watts and having a wide range, and 387 are Class A, many using small power and covering small areas. There are still eighty-six Class C stations, most of which have low power, all on a wave length of 360 meters. Our chief trouble is with the Class B situation.

"They are all assigned within the band of 288 to 545 meters, within which there are, under the present system of allocation and excluding the Class C band, only forty-four available channels, and only thirty-three that seem desirable at present. To assign these among the fifty-seven stations necessarily means duplication, although it was the theory of the last conference that individual wave lengths could be assigned to each. At present, twenty-three stations either have exclusive wave lengths or are sharing with stations so distant that both may operate simultaneously, while the remaining thirty-four are compelled to divide time. The greatest congestion is in the large cities, New York and Chicago particularly.

"Another question of importance is the limit of power to be used in broadcasting. Most Class B stations are now operating on 500 watts. A limitation of 1000 watts is imposed in the license. I understand that there are several stations erected or in course of construction which contemplate the use of power up to 5000 watts, and I am aware of the suggestions of those who would go beyond even this.

"There is opposition to the plan. Its advocates tell us of the great advantages in the way of louder signals and more distant transmission, while opponents complain of interference and the drowning out of other stations. The latter fear is particularly acute when the powerful station is located in a congested receiving center.

"From the viewpoint of nation-wide broadcasting, the question becomes as to whether we should aim to cover a large territory through a single powerful station, or through a number of interconnected smaller ones. We must not stifle progress in any direction. We must not do anything that will interfere with the programs of local stations on which many of our people depend, nor with the wide selective range which they now have. It may be that both purposes may be accomplished without loss to either.

"There seems at present some tendency toward a decrease in the total number of broadcasting stations. September 1, 1923, there were 563 licensed stations. On the same date this year, the number had fallen to 533, a loss of thirty. This decrease, however, has occurred entirely among the smaller stations in Classes A and C. The more important stations, those of Class B, have substantially increased, the number then having been forty-four as against fifty-six at present, with forty-six others either under construction or proposed.

"So far as is known to the department, of the present stations, 196, or over a third, are owned and operated by manufacturers of or dealers in radio apparatus, whose interest is of course apparent. Department stores and similar mercantile concerns add thirty-nine to this number, and publishers, forty-one, making a grand total of 276 known stations, of which forty-four are class B, which may be said to have a direct interest in the publicity legitimately resulting from their own broadcasting. On the other side we have eighty-five educational institutions, thirty-five churches, twelve city and State agencies, twelve clubs of which seven are class B, (four schools, two State or city agencies, and one church,) all of which may be said to operate from more altruistic motives.

"Those who are engaged in the use of radio for marine services between ship and shore and ship and ship feel that the present band devoted to their use is too narrow. We must not forget that what is a convenience o ra pleasure for us is a necessity for them and that life may depend on the efficiency of their communication service.

"There is undoubtedly congestion along our coasts, particularly in the vicinity of such harbors as New York, Boston, and San Francisco. There are two fundamental troubles in the situation, and they are interdependent; first, the character of the apparatus used; and, second, the fact that most ships operate on only two wave lengths, 600 and 706 meters. Practically all marine radio equipment is of the spark type. There can be no economical use of wave lengths until this condition is remedied.

"One matter that must be dealt with some time, but over which there is no means of control at present, is the interference from nonradio sources. We listeners have all experienced frequently and to our great disgust the squeals and roars which we are told come from electrical devices of various sorts in which there is no purpose to cause audible disturbance. The department has received a vast number of complaints based upon trespassing noises of this character. It is hard to trace them to their source and difficult to deal with them when found. Some branch of our radio industry certainly should investigate and study them. Harmonics, too, are troublesome. It is useless to assign a station to a definite wave length if its signals go out not only on that one but on three or four others. Our amateurs, who make up by far the largest element in the radio family outside of the listeners as a whole, are particular sufferers since the harmonics from many stations have an especial tendency to invade the amateur band. Accurate and sharp transmission must be insisted upon."

PARIS BODY FAVORS RED RECOGNITION

Debt Rights Will Not be Surrendered, Herriot Committee Decides

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Premier Herriot's committee studying means of recognizing soviet Russia met throughout this afternoon and evening and decided that the government should extend immediate de-jure recognition of the Bolsheviks without further ado.

At the same time the committee believes a letter should be attached to the document extending recognition. Such a letter should declare that France does not surrender any part of the rights of its citizens to their portions of the czarist debt and private claims arising out of the French properties in Russia and Siberia which were confiscated by the Bolsheviki.

All decisions taken today by the committee will be transmitted to Washington in view of the unwritten agreement existing between France and America regarding a common attitude toward the soviet.

of Visalia, Hanford, Tulare and Porterville, and the towns of Woodlake, Exeter, Terra Bella, Pixley, Delano and McFarland.

DRAINAGE INTO LAKE

At 6 o'clock last evening reports from the Big Creek-San Joaquin district, where the company has a chain of its largest powerhouses, showed that up to noon there was a precipitation of .8 of an inch at Huntington Lake with six inches of snow standing on the ground.

Down the San Joaquin Canyon, the precipitation was in the form of rain, the noon report showing from .2 to .7 of an inch.

The 6 o'clock report from Huntington Lake country showed there had been no precipitation during the later afternoon and that the snow was turning to slush with considerable drainage into Huntington Lake. There was a dense fog over Huntington Lake and it was raining at Shaver Lake, nine miles across the mountains at a slightly lower altitude.

RELIEF FROM STORM

From the Giant Forest district, where the company has four powerhouses on the Kaweah and the Tule rivers, there was no snow, but a rainfall averaging .25 of an inch.

Reports from the San Bernardino Mountain country were that there had been no rainfall or snowfall, but the conditions at 6 o'clock last evening indicated that there might be some precipitation during the night.

Reports from the Kern River show that rain commenced to fall at the lower plants of the company in the vicinity of Bakersfield at 5 o'clock. Reports from the two upper plants, one of which is in the vicinity of Kernville, showed cloudy conditions, with indications of rainfall during the night.

The rainfall has already done something to alleviate conditions, as yesterday's reports show that the load in the agricultural district has been reduced considerably over 50 per cent, this being directly traceable to the storm.

FORESTS OPENED AS NORTH IS DRENCHED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—Restrictions placed upon travel in all national forests in California north of the Tehachapi, excepting the southwest portion of the Plumas Forest, were removed today by the United States Forest Service, following reports sent in by supervisors indicating that the rainstorm which began early Sunday morning had drenched the reserves and removed further danger from fires.

The storm, believed by United States Forecaster George Willson, to be over as far as Northern California is concerned, hit Southern California today without severity. While some slight damage will be suffered by wine and table grape growers and by tomato farmers, the benefit from the heavy rainfall will be tremendous, he declared.

Through the northern and eastern parts of the Sacramento Valley the storm was at its height. At Nevada City the gauge showed a full two and one-fourth inches, while at Chico there was a fall of 2.01 inches and at Red Bluff 1.64 inches.

Tremendous value will come to the live stock and dairy industries, which have been hard hit through the drought, by being forced to feed their stock on cultivated fodder. It is believed that the storm will produce enough grass within ten days to put the cattle on the ranges and in pastures again.

SOME FRUIT LOSS

The San Joaquin Valley, parched for many months, received enough rain to produce an optimistic feeling among the farmers. At Modesto the storm started at 3:45 o'clock Sunday morning, continuing until 2 p.m. for a total precipitation of almost an inch. While rain did not appear today at that city, the skies were overcast and threatening. Damage there only to beans was negligible. The reports showed that Fresno received .2 and Merced .4 of an inch fall in the San Joaquin Valley.

Some damage has been done to fruit growers at Auburn, principally to the peas and cherry orchards, which will bloom prematurely if the storm is followed by warm weather, causing the trees to be sterile next summer. It was the first rain since June and the first important rain in the Auburn district since April.

At Red Bluff the storm was the first since February 7, and was more severe than the previous one, with a reported precipitation of 1.64 inches in comparison to 1.45 in February. A drizzle occurred there in May and no rain has fallen since. The storm will permit dry-land farmers to start plowing.

SNOW IN SIERRAS

Reports from other points showed the following precipitation: Colusa, 1.13 inches; Sacramento, 1.1; Point Reyes, 1.1; San Francisco, .55; San Jose, .55; Eureka, .34; Santa Rosa, .83; Santa Barbara, .22; Mt. Hamilton, .90; Paso Robles, .12; Mt. Wilson, .01; Stockton, .54.

The storm, it was declared by experts, was caused by a depression area over southern Nevada, which is continuing and has made but little change in the past twenty-four hours.

Snow fell during Sunday morning on altitudes in the Sierras above 7000 and 8000 feet. The rainfall at Summit was reported as being .20 for the storm.

Heavy rainfall in the mountains was reported to the Forest Service officers here by the forest supervisors located at Porterville for Sequoia National Park, Placerville for Eldorado National Forest, Nevada City for Tahoe Forest, Quincy for Plumas National Forest, Susanville for Lassen National Park, and Ukiah for California National Forest.

Practically 700 members, composing the emergency force of the Forest Service, will be discharged this week, it was officially said.

MAN BADLY HURT IN FALL ON WET PAVEMENT

The light coating of rain on the sidewalks last night caused Charles McMillan to slip while walking in front of 121 South Spring street and to strike his head on the pavement with such force as to fracture his skull. McMillan, who lives at 310 North Hill street, was attended by Police Surgeons Dorn and Dodge at the Receiving Hospital. They said his condition was serious.

Richard Atkinson, 2½ years of age, of 139 West Twenty-second street, was seriously injured late yesterday afternoon in a traffic accident in front of his home. The boy dashed into the street and directly in the path of a machine driven by Archie Kats of 804 East Forty-second street. He was removed to the Receiving Hospital to be treated for a basal skull fracture and broken leg. Later he was transferred to the General Hospital. Physicians said he may die.

The local fighting in the Shanghai area was confined today to the area south of the city in the vicinity of Sungkiang, where heavy fighting was in progress all day, with the Chekiang troops falling back steadily in the direction of Shanghai.

The distance between the fighting lines and the foreign areas has narrowed to practically a dozen miles and all interests are watching the consular body to see what action it will take to prevent fighting on foreign territory.

The Wrath to Come

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

They descended to their taxi and drove away. Both men were silent. Grant was filled with a sense of horror. The sordidness of the little scene, its atmosphere of tragedy, its cruelty, had brought the tears into his eyes.

"If ever I get my fingers on the throat of that brute Itash," he muttered. "I think that I shall kill him. What did you think of the matter, Hodson?"

"I think that Poynter was entirely right," was the confident reply. "And every moment I am coming round to your point of view. I am beginning to believe that this conspiracy really exists."

"You're coming in?" Grant inquired, as the taxi drove up to the Grant Central Hotel.

Hodson shook his head.

"You'll see nothing of me for twenty-four hours or so," he announced. "I am going to work in directions you can't approach. You and Stoneham go on with your propaganda, even though the thing looks hopeless. Let your friends think that's all you've got to depend upon. Don't go away from your rooms for more than an hour or two without leaving word where you're to be found. There may be some big things doing when I get started."

Grant made his way through the crowded vestibules of the hotel and down the main lobby. On one side was the supper and dancing room, and, as he passed the entrance, he came face to face with Itash, who had apparently just arrived. A few yards away Yvonne was handing her cloak to the attendant. Grant hesitated for a moment and then came to a standstill, affecting not to notice Itash's outstretched hand.

"I have a piece of information which may be of interest to you, Count Itash," he said.

"You are very kind to trouble," was the studiously courteous reply.

"I have just come from a very sorry apartment in a squalid part of the city," Grant went on. "I was summoned there to identify the dead body of Mlle. Cleo."

If Itash felt anything, he effectually concealed it. He passed his fingers over his sleek black hair and bowed slightly. A gesture of his hand kept someone from advancing.

"This is very terrible news," he said. "I had noticed that the young lady seemed to be in a very depressed state. It is to be feared, perhaps, that she took her own life?"

"Nothing of the sort," Grant answered bluntly. "She was murdered."

Then, for the first time, Itash showed signs of feeling. His eyes glittered, his lips seemed to grow tight against his teeth.

"That is very terrible," he confessed. "In Japan we do not think so much of suicide. One leaves life when one is tired. But a murder is a terrible thing. Who, in this country, would dream of murdering poor Cleo? She had no money, but little jewelry."

"She might have had something more valuable than either," Grant observed.

Itash shook his head.

"Oh, no," he murmured. "I know what you mean, but those were fancies of hers. If she has ever imagined that she heard anything from my lips of import, she has been mistaken. My country has no secrets, neither have I. I grieve for your sad news, Mr. Slattery. I thank you."

"You are dancing?" Grant inquired.

"I am dancing," Itash acknowledged, offering his arm to Yvonne. "This is the last night in New York of my friend, Mlle. Yvonne. She is summoned back to Paris and sails tomorrow."

Grant remained perfectly immovable, regardless alike of Yvonne's proffered greeting and Itash's low bow. They passed together into the ballroom. Grant watched them with a strange inexplicable disgust, a disgust which seemed to be born of his passionate but silent anger. In his mind he saw Cleo followed home from the Police Court to her dreary apartment, saw her walk into the little chamber of death, into the toils prepared for her. She was, after all, very young, and she loved. She was still lying in that little chamber with a sheet over her face—and Itash danced.

"I think," Grant said to himself, as he turned away, "that I shall certainly kill Itash."

The next morning there were no sensational headlines, even in the most melodramatic of the newspapers. In two or three of them was a short paragraph, headed:

"SAD SUICIDE OF A FRENCH DANSEUSE"

Not a single newspaper gave more than a few lines to a description of the event. The New York was perhaps the fullest. It told how, after being very leniently treated by the judge at the Police Court, she had been discharged on a promise to leave the country within a week and not to molest Mlle. Yvonne again. She had then, the paragraph continued, apparently gone straight back to her apartments, had locked the door, turned on the gas, attached a piece of rubber to the jet, fastened the window and lain down to die. A more determined suicide, the police reported, they had very seldom come across.

Chapter XIV

It was three whole days before Grant saw anything more of Hodson. Then the latter, appeared in his room about 7 o'clock in the evening and demanded a cocktail.

"Glad you've remembered my existence," Grant grumbled good-humoredly, as he gave the necessary orders. "Stoneham and I have been pegging away. There are heaps of things I want to know about."

Hodson nodded.

"There are big events close at hand," he announced. "A great deal of what you suspect is true, with a few other trifles thrown in. Can you go to England, tomorrow?"

"England!" Grant exclaimed. "Why, the Limitation of Armaments Conference starts here in a little over a fortnight."

"You'll be back for it," the other assured him. "I want you to catch the Katalonia tomorrow morning. She sails at 8 o'clock. Let me see, tomorrow's Saturday. You'll be in Plymouth Wednesday, and in London Wednesday night. Lord Yeovil will be expecting you. You can sail back on Saturday in the Sefalonia. You'll probably return with Yeovil and his staff."

"What am I to do in England?" Grant asked, trying to keep back an alien and most disturbing thought.

"Deliver dispatches from Washington," was the prompt reply. "I have them in my pocket. I came through from Washington today. Great Britain polices the eastern waters for the Limitation of Armaments Conference, and we want a seaplane patrol over certain specified districts. There are a few other little matters to be inquired into, too."

"Look here," Grant expostulated. "You're not sending me over to play messenger boy, are you?"

"Not likely!"

"What's the game then? Do you want to get me out of the way?"

"Not precisely that. Where are you dining?"

"With you, anywhere. I was going up to the Lotos Club. Stoneham generally drops in there."

"I'm tired," Hodson confessed. "I'd like to hear some music and look at some pretty women. I'll go 'round and have a bath and change and call for you in half an hour. We'll get a corner table at Sherry's. I think, as we are saving empires, we can afford some terrapin and a bottle of champagne."

"You're serious about that trip to England—because I must have my fellow pack?"

"Serious! My God, I am!" was the emphatic answer. You'll be the chief spoke in the wheel for the next ten days. You won't miss anything here, either. I'm gathering up some wonderful threads, but I'm doing it silently. I'll come 'round in half an hour. I'm on your floor."

A fit of restlessness seized Grant. He gave his servant the necessary orders, interviewed the travel manager in the hotel and secured the best accommodation possible on the steamer. Then he permitted himself to think deliberately, opened up the closed chambers in his mind, welcomed reflection and memory. He would see Susan. He would find out what her silence really meant, what she thought or believed about him. In a sense, it was all very hopeless. He had been forced into an accursed position. He scarcely knew even now how to appraise it. And yet the big things remained unaltered and still seemed to tower over everything else—he loved Susan. There was not a grain of affection in his heart for anybody else. She was his only possible companion. Was he so much less fit for her than any other of the young men by whom she was surrounded? He tried to judge himself and his position fairly. The trouble was that it could never be represented to anyone else in the same manner. He remembered and brooded with gloomy insistence over that slight vein of prudery in Susan, something altogether unconnected with the narrow ways, or any unduly censorious attitude toward life, which seldom, in fact, expressed itself in speech, but was more a part of herself, a sort of instinctive and supercilious shrinking from the small licenses of a world which she never judged in words. Perhaps he had fallen forever in her esteem; perhaps the one sin recorded against him would have cost him already what he had sometimes fancied that he had won. Now that he was going to see her so soon, he wondered how he had been content to wait to know the truth. Next Thursday he would be in London. It was the height of the season and she would certainly be there. Next Thursday or Friday they might meet. He told himself that he would know in the first ten seconds whether his disaster had been irredeemable.

The two men dined at Sherry's in a retired corner. They dined, as Grant complained, like profiteers and gourmands. Hodson ordered caviare and lobster Newburg, terrapin, saddle of lamb, asparagus and champagne.

"A disgraceful meal," Grant declared, as he sipped his cocktail. "Do you really think we shall get through it?"

"Of course, we shall," Hodson laughed. "To tell you the truth I've scarcely eaten anything for two days. They were a tough lot on the trains to Washington and back. I can manage better in the cities."

"What do you mean?" his companion asked curiously.

"Well, the same powers that murdered that poor girl and translated it into suicide were out for me," Hodson explained. "If they had known that it was you who started me off, I expect you'd be in the same position. My own little crowd are pretty useful though. And Poynter's men are wonderful. There are two of them at the next table. They look all right, don't they?"

"They look just like two successful business men talking over a deal," Grant observed.

"Well, they aren't," Hodson assured him. "They're two of Poynter's shrewdest detectives. They've got guns in their pockets and their job is to see that no one tries to steal a march on me from the lounge. One of my men is down in the kitchen. I dared not eat anything on the train, for they were in with the chef there. I've been shot at twice in the last twenty-four hours. They nearly got me, too. It's a great storm that's gathering, Grant."

"Exactly why are you sending me to England?"

"Listen," was the earnest reply. "This is official. It comes from the White House. You know who owns the New York now. You know the power at the back of the greater part of our press. They want to make bad blood between Great Britain and this country. You can guess why. They're at it already, and the British press, quite naturally, is beginning to take it up. Use all your influence with Lord Yeovil. Tell him the truth. Get him to take you to see his own big newspaper people and try to keep the feeling down. Beg him to disregard any attacks upon him personally, either before he comes or directly he lands. It's all part of the game. It will all be over, tell him, in two months, and for heaven's sake do what you can to stop trouble."

"I certainly will," Grant promised. "I used to have a certain amount of influence with Lord Yeovil."

"That's why we're sending you. One reason, at any rate. Then—Hullo! Another farewell party, I see."

"Why farewell?" Grant asked, looking curiously at the newcomers.

"I hadn't come to that. Cornelius Blunn is sailing for England tomorrow. He'll be your fellow-passenger."

"Where the devil is he off to?"

"A dozen of the most astute brains in the States, besides my own, have tried to solve that question," Hodson replied. "At present, I must frankly admit that we don't know. I have a theory. He's getting a trifle shaken up in New York. Not exactly scared, but nervy. He wants to re-establish confidence. There's a dinner of German bankers in London at which he is advertised to take the chair. He imagines that his attendance at the function just now will put us off the scent. He'll probably come back by your steamer."

"Is he taking the casket with him, I wonder," Grant reflected.

"I may consider some day," Hodson said deliberately, "that within the last few hours I have made the mistake of my life."

CONFESSION OBTAINED IN FAST TRAIN WRECK

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CARLISLE (Ill.) Oct. 6.—Sheriff William Regan announced this evening that George Williams, a negro, had confessed that he had broken the switch near Aviston, Ill., where the fast Baltimore and Ohio train No. 13 was wrecked late Friday evening, resulting in the death of Engineer Carl Van Altman and injuries to a number of passengers.

Princess Igrid of Sweden is now 14 and wears her long fair hair down her back tied with a bow of ribbon.

Well Known and asked for in Every Community

How many men can you name who are known and remembered throughout the nation?

We are all familiar with the prodigious effort required to make a candidate for President known to his countrymen. There are many distinguished provincials, but only a few national figures.

It's a big job for a man to win the favorable attention of the public. But it's a bigger job for a commercial product. And when you include every community in the land, it becomes a tremendous task—the ultimate in modern merchandising.

Thousands of products are offered the public with this object. Shining out from the many, a few are living reminders everywhere for purchases.

And one is Coca-Cola. Its cheerful colors brighten the streets and corners of thousands of cities and towns, its name more familiar than the names of the streets themselves.

Millions, representing every community, see this name—find the beverage served at cool and cheerful places—learn it is "delicious and refreshing"—realize it is pure and wholesome—remember to ask for it again when they're thirsty.

And Coca-Cola has come to be the most widely distributed product, manufactured by a single company, in the world.

You'll be interested in some facts about the merchandising plan by which 415,000 retailers have won a market for Coca-Cola.

There are 20,000 Coca-Cola walls and bulletins in the United States. Three million pieces of window display, signs and other dealer help advertising are being distributed in 1924. Two and a half million 1924 Coca-Cola calendars were given away. Coca-Cola's message is carried in millions of copies of magazines and newspapers.

In developing Coca-Cola's merchandising plan through the 38 years the beverage has been on the market, more than $40,000,000 has been spent in advertising.

The United States Supreme Court, in a case involving an infringement on the trade-mark, Coca-Cola, said:

"The name (Coca-Cola) now characterizes a beverage to be had at almost any soda fountain. It means a single thing coming from a single source, and well known to the community."

By "the community" the Supreme Court meant "every community."

Only a pure and wholesome beverage of the highest possible quality could have attained this standing throughout the land.

LINCOLN MIND TEST BEGUN

Man Who Killed Two and Put Heads in Concrete Insists He Is Ready for Murder Trial

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

AURORA (Ill.) Oct. 6.—Warren J. Lincoln, attorney-florist, who slew his wife and her brother, cut off their heads and imbedded them in a block of concrete which he used several months as a support under his sleeping porch, said today he did not want to be tried for his sanity.

He insists he is sane and ready for trial on the murder charges, but he was overruled and the trial of his sanity was begun at Geneva. Seven jurors had tentatively been chosen when court adjourned today. Should this jury find Lincoln sane, he will be tried for the murders. If he is found to be insane, he will become a prison-mate of Gene Geary, notorious gunman and murderer, who escaped the noose by the "insanity" route and is now in the asylum at Chester.

Farmers drawn for the jury displayed their impatience with the delay. They say Lincoln has confessed the murder, one of the most atrocious in history, so why drag them away from their crops at the busiest season to help him dodge punishment.

Lincoln, after the murder of his wife and Byron Shoup, disappeared, leaving bloody clothing, letters and other things tending to show that he had been kidnaped by his wife and her brother, who had fled to avoid punishment. Months later he turned up in Buffalo and came to Chicago with a weird tale of being abducted and held prisoner. Aurora officials arrested him in a Chicago hotel and after considerable questioning he confessed the double murder. He incased the heads in a block of concrete, sawed up the bodies and burned the fragments in his greenhouse furnace. Months later he removed the block containing the heads and threw it in the city dump, where it was found.

Weekly sessions have been resumed and during the future will be held each Monday evening instead of once a month.

REDEEMS HIS PROPERTY

PORTERVILLE, Oct. 6.—Porterville's tax money comes from the four points of the globe, according to William R. Means, City Clerk. He reports that Sid Coughland of Chile, South America, has redeemed his real estate in Porterville, which was sold by the city for unpaid taxes. Coughland owns several lots in Porterville and was under the impression that they were being cared for. He is employed as a civil engineer with a large copper concern in South America and word of the city's action finally reaching him, he sent a check to redeem his property.

ALI MAKES TRUCE WITH TRIBESMEN

Scion of Deposed King of Hedjas Abandons Claims to Caliphate

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

JERUSALEM, Oct. 6.—Emir Ali, eldest son of former King Hussein of the Hedjas, who abdicated last week, has concluded a truce with the Wahabis tribesmen, according to the terms of which Ali, who today was elected King of Hedjas, promises to abandon his claims to the Caliphate and agrees to pay a year subsidy to the conquering power.

Ali, who is 42 years of age, is a practical politician. He concluded the truce quickly. According to reports received here, Ali is on good terms with Ibin Saud, leader of the victorious Wahabis, and will meet Ibin next Friday in Mecca. It is also reported that opposition to the dynasty now in power is noticeable.

Ali is recalling the delegation of five sent by Hussein to Moscow to ask aid from the soviet in his fight against the Wahabis. Ali, it is said, will sign the Anglo-Herjas treaty as proposed by the British government. Hussein had refused to affix his signature to this document on account of a clause recognizing the British mandate in Palestine for the realization of the Jewish national homeland there.

INGENIOUS IDEA

Mrs. Suburb was always very anxious to do the right thing, and she lost no chance at all of showing her neighbors that she was a real, genuine, dyed-in-the-wool lady.

Recently some new people had moved into the neighborhood, and Mrs. Suburb was discussing them with her daughter.

"Well, Mary," she said, "I suppose we shall have to call on those people. Just take your scissors and cut some sort of hole in one of our visiting cards, will you?"

"Whatever for, mother?" asked Mary. "What will that mean?"

"It doesn't mean anything that I know of," replied mother, "but they'll think it does and feel rather small to find out that they don't know as much about society ways as we do."—[Exchange.

HIS WAR STORY BRINGS REUNION

Pennsylvania Editor's Tale Seen By Comrades

Civil War Survivors Meet After Sixty Years

Only Three Left of Company That Fought in '61

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PITTSBURG (Pa.) Oct. 6.—An article by Francis S. Reader, Civil War veteran and editor of the Beaver Valley News, New Brighton, written for the National Tribune, was responsible for one of the happiest occasions in the lives of three men, all Civil War veterans, and the last survivors of their company, when they met at the Fort Pitt Hotel.

The veterans, all past the four-score-year mark, are E. F. Wise, Waterloo, Iowa; O. M. J. Hutchinson, McKeesport, Pa., and Francis S. Reader, New Brighton, Pa. Mr. Wise, who had not seen his comrades for more than sixty years, read the article and immediately wrote to Mr. Reader concerning the possibility of arranging the reunion.

So the men met at the hotel and talked over the war for which they offered their services as boys.

Originally these men were members of Co. I, Second Virginia Infantry, organized at Coal Center, Washington county, Pa. This regiment was the first one in the Union Army to serve for three years. It was mounted and became the Fifth West Virginia Cavalry in July, 1863.

These men were messmates for more than two years. After the regiment was mounted Mr. Reader was transferred to headquarters of the assistant provost marshal's department.

Mr. Reader has been the owner and editor of the Beaver Valley News for more than fifty years and retired from activity only last year.

Mr. Wise was supervisor of buildings and bridges on the Illinois Central Railroad for nearly fifty years, having begun work in the West shortly after the war.

Mr. Hutchinson has been engaged in the shipbuilding trade and retired only a few years ago.

TELEPHONE FACTS

There is enough telephone wire in the United States to make a net that would hold the earth like an egg in an egg-cup. Besides putting one span around the equator, this net would consist of 6584 strands joined at the South Pole and spreading gradually until they were slightly less than four miles apart at the equator.

Ten American States have, between them, more telephones than all foreign countries combined. These ten States are New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Massachusetts, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Iowa, Missouri and California.

During the last ten years the number of telephones in service in the United States has increased by 5,827,000. This increase alone is more than five times the total number of telephones now in use in the whole of Great Britain.

Chicago has one telephone for every four people.—[Telephone Press.

FRANKIE HAD A REASON

As Frankie stood beside his mother, who was making some purchases, the grocer told him to help himself to a handful of nuts. But Frankie shook his head.

"Why, what's the matter?" asked the grocer. "Don't you like nuts?"

"Yes," replied Frankie.

"Well, go ahead and take some."

Frankie hesitated, whereupon the grocer put a generous handful in Frankie's pocket.

When they had left the shop his mother turned to her small son and asked:

"Why didn't you take the nuts when the kind man asked you?"

"'Cause his hand was bigger than mine!" Frankie replied.—[Exchange.

School Humane Societies

More than 25,000 small animals were rescued from the New York city streets by school children last summer, says the annual report of the director of the department of humane education of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. This work by children shows that the teaching of humaneness, which is now a part of the curriculum of the schools, has had practical results, according to the director. Establishment of the subject in the curriculum has been largely the result of efforts by the State department of education, which has frequently advocated this step. Humane societies have been organized in about 100 schools of the city. Many school magazines have devoted occasional numbers to humane activities of pupils.

OWN DEATH NOTICE MADE FOE HIS FRIEND

Sir Charles Phillips distinguished art critic who died recently, had the unusual experience once of reading the proof sheet of his own obituary notice, thereby finding that the writer, who had been a life-long enemy, could be fair in death.

On the staff of the newspaper for which Sir Charles wrote art criticisms was another critic whose work invariably clashed with Phillips'. So antagonistic were their views they ceased to be on speaking terms. The day came when Sir Charles was seriously ill, and, to be prepared for eventualities, his obituary was written, and by his old-time antagonist.

This notice, by reason of its slug line, "Phillips," and through one of those accidents which happen on the best-regulated newspapers, was mistaken for one of Sir Charles's own contributions and forwarded to his home for correction.

When convalescent he was allowed to see the correspondence which had piled up and among it was the proof sheet. Sir Charles found his enemy not only had been eulogistic but particularly sympathetic and discerning. For years afterward this writer of the notice and its subject were fast friends.

REFORESTATION

Athol and Framingham, Mass., Plant Thousands of Pine Trees

The spirit of natural resource conservation is gripping many just now, and reforesting is being undertaken not only by private owners of land, but also by towns and cities of our commonwealths.

In Athol and Framingham, Mass., town property is being reforested; in the former town 10,000 white pine seedlings will be put in on the town farm this year, and the same number of pine and spruce seedlings next year, and the following year 10,000 white pine seedlings, 30,000 in all. In addition, five days will be spent in reforesting the Newton reservoir property this year. In Framingham fifty-seven acres are to be reforested. Five thousand red pine and 5000 Norway spruce will go in on the town farm this year, and each following year 15,000 white pine will be set until the entire acreage is covered. Pride in the coming forests is being exhibited by these communities, and this augurs well for such enterprises in the future.

BAND STRIKES DISCORD-NOTE

Kansas City Police Players Called to Account

Played National Anthem for Klan Meeting

Mistaken, Says Leader, Thought 'Twas Legion

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 6. — The Kansas City Police Band has been called on the carpet by the Police Commissioners to explain the playing of a number at the klonvocation of the Ku Klux Klan in Convention Hall last week.

Band members say "the band got into the wrong meeting."

John E. Wilson, police commissioner, said he was conducting an investigation of the affair to determine whether the band's visit to the Klan session was intentional or unintentional.

Several members of the band, questioned by the commissioner, said the band went to the street in front of Convention Hall last Friday afternoon, believing the klonvocation had adjourned earlier in the day.

The band had been given official permission to play at the reunion of the Eighty-ninth Division. Two members of the department, Medal of Honor men, were to attend the veterans' reunion.

While the band members were assembling in front of the hall, Mr. Wilson was told, a man came out of the hall and asked the bandsmen if they would go inside and play "The Star Spangled Banner."

A former member of the police department who served as a bodyguard to H. W. Evans, Imperial Wizard of the Klan, is said to have escorted the band into the hall. Mr. Wilson said he was told the band left the meeting immediately after it played the national anthem.

Mr. Wilson referred to the band's action as a "blunder." He said he intended to find out if the blunder was intentional.

"The police band has explicit instructions to play only when given permission to play," Mr. Wilson said. "The board has made a rule the band may play only for funerals and charitable and patriotic events. There are Jews, Gentiles, Protestants and Catholics in the band, and I cannot conceive how the band could commit such a blunder.

"The band had been given permission to play for the reunion of the Eighty-ninth Division. It had no permission to play for any other organization, and certainly not the Ku Klux Klan."

TOLD THE TRUTH

The farmer met the horse dealer at the market a few weeks after they had transacted some business.

"Look here, you," said the farmer, heavily, "that horse you sold me bites, kicks, runs away and even tries to tear his stable to pieces. You said when I bought him that I wouldn't part with him for $500."

"That's right," said the dealer, moving away, "you won't."—[Exchange.

TEN YEARS SHOW BIG ADVANCE

NATION'S DEMAND FOR LONG LINES SERVICE MORE THAN DOUBLES

Ten years ago, at the beginning of the World War, the completed telephone calls handled on an average business day by the Long Lines department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company amounted to slightly less than 40,000, whereas during the present year the number has averaged approximately 100,000.

The decade which began with the World War has witnessed a larger growth in Long Lines plant and Long Lines business than was experienced during the previous three decades from the organization of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in 1885 to 1914.

One of the outstanding features of this decade has been the cable development. Ten years ago most of the Long Lines business was handled over open wire lines. The total Long Lines wire mileage in cables in August, 1914, was only about 94,000 miles and constituted about 18 per cent of the total Long Lines mileage. Today over 600,000 miles of Long Lines wire are in cables, of which more than 250,000 miles are in the aerial cable system, which is now approaching completion between New York and Chicago. The present Long Lines wire mileage in cables is more than 50 per cent of the total mileage of the Long Lines department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Another feature of the growth is the increase in the number of miles of Long Lines phantom circuits during the decade. The phantom circuit was first introduced for commercial use about 1904, and at the end of the first ten-year period there were some 50,000 miles of Long Line phantom circuits available for use. This has been increased to more than 250,000 miles during the past ten years, or five times the mileage at the beginning of the period.

To carry on this rapidly increasing business it has been necessary to more than double the number of employees. In 1914, 3655 employees were required to take care of the construction, maintenance and operation of the Long Lines plant and traffic. The number has now grown to approximately 10,000, representing an increase of nearly 150 per cent.—[Telephone Press.

Francia en Favor de la Entrada de Alemania en la Sociedad

PARIS, Octubre 6.—El gobierno francés ha aprobado hoy la admisión de Alemania en la Sociedad de las Naciones. El Primer Ministro Herriot ha entregado ya al Embajador alemán su respuesta al memorandum de Alemania relativo a la incorporación de ésta en la mencionada sociedad. Dicho diplomático declaró que era satisfactorio el contenido de la nota francesa.

Aunque señala el Primer Ministro Herriot que todas las naciones, grandes y pequeñas, se hallan en la Sociedad sobre el mismo pie de igualdad, manifiesta en su nota la buena disposición de Francia para reconocer al Reich como una gran potencia y para otorgarle uno de los sillones permanentes en el Consejo. En la nota francesa, sin embargo, se pone de resalte el hecho de que Alemania no puede gozar de ninguna excepción, y debe asumir cuantas responsabilidades han asumido las otras potencias, y compilr, como éstas, todos los compromisos internacionales que se contraigan.

Lo anterior quiere decir que Francia espera que Alemania firme el protocolo de garantía de seguridades, sin reserva alguna, y que cumpla con los requisitos de admisión, que consisten en el cumplimiento de todos los tratados.

El Quai d'Orsay cree que la Comisión Interaliada de Inspección del Desarme, que está ahora contrastando el desarme y desmovilización alemanes, de acuerdo con el Tratado de Versalles, terminará sus labores dentro de un mes, y, caso de que el informe que rinda sea favorable, la admisión de Alemania será quiza el asunto que se trate en asambles especial que se convoque para mediados de Diciembre. En esa misma reunión quizá se delibere también sobre la admisión de Rusia y de Turquía.

En el próximo mitin, que va a celebrarse en Roma, esperan los franceses enmendar el reglamento del Consejo, derogando la disposición acerca de la unanimidad. De ese modo, cuando Alemania sea miembro del Consejo, no podrá suspender los procedimientos de éste con su voto solitario.

El Soviet Pide Socorros para los Damnificados de la Inundación

MOSCU, Octubre 6.—El Soviet de Leningrado ha apelado con encarecimiento al resto de Rusia para que preste auxilios a la gente arruinada por la reciente tormenta e inundación, haciendo ver que los daños materiales se estiman en millones de rublos. La ciudad necesita hogares, reparación de las obras de avenamiento, nuevos puentes, compostura de calles, combustible y muchas otras cosas, así como también socorros para los que han quedado sin techo debido a las inundaciones.

"Con solos los recursos de Leningrado no podemos llenar estas necesidades, y es preciso que se nos ayude," dice el soviet en su manifiesto. Agrega que, para que sea eficaz, la ayuda tiene que llegar pronto. En estos últimos tres días los sindicatos obreros rusos han mandado 176,000 rublos oro ($88,000) para socorrer a Leningrado.

Medidas Económicas y Financieras que Proyecta Calles

CIUDAD DE MEJICO, Octubre 6.—Uno de los primeros actos que, en punto de finanzas, pondrá en ejecución el General Calles, tan luego se reciba de la presidencia el prodximo primero de Diciembre, será la austitución por billetes de banco de la actual moneda circulante de plata y oro, que considera de incómodo manejo. Dícese en los círculos oficiales que la parte de la emisión de bonos Arlitt que no se necesite para el pago de la deuda exterior, se aplicará a fortalecer la Comisión Monetario y convertiria en el único banco de emisión desde el día en que Calles tome posesión de su cargo.

Si la emisión Arlitt no produjere fondos suficientes, la Comisión Monetaria se convertirá en banco de emisión con su capital actual. Esta institución ha sido ya vigorizada, según se dice, por varias medidas de economía gubernativa, y hay informes de que maneja 40,000,000 de pesos diariamente.

Todos los bancos de ésta, incluso los ingleses y norteamericanos, están en favor del referido plan, y se han comprometido a aceptar los billetes de ese banco. Durante la reciente convención de banqueros celebrada aquí fue discutida y aprobada esa cuestión.

Habrá un Lujoso Restaurante y Cabaret Flotante a la Altura de Redondo

Ayer ha comenzado en el Puerto de Los Angeles la adaptación y acondicionamiento del "William Bowden", goleta de cuatro palos, para destinarlo a lujoso restorán y salón de baile. Cuando la adaptación termine, se anclará el barco frente a la playa de Redondo, y a cinco millas mar adentro, según ha anunciado el señor F. C. Bogler, de esta ciudad, que acaba de comprar la embarcación mencionada.

El "William Bowden" es uno de los más famosos veleros del Pacífico, y ha tenido en esta una carrera llena de aventuras. Hace poco que Bigler lo compró en San Francisco y lo envió a Los Angeles, a cuyo puerto llegó el sábado.

"Cuando la transformación del buque quede concluida", dijo el señor Bigler, "no habrá en toda la costa del Pacífico salón de baile más hermoso que el Bowden." "Un restorán y cabaret palacio en el mar es una novedad que creo aceptará el público con entusiasmo. El William Bowden es un buque tan seguro y digno de confianza como la mejor embarcación que surque los mares. Podrá alquilársele, por supuesto, para fiestas particulares, y, en otras ocasiones, quedará abierto al público en general. Vamos a gastar mucho dinero en adaptar el barco, y todo su equipo y mobiliario será de lo más fino."

Baseball

NUEVA YORK, Octubre 6.—Nueva York ha derrotado a Washington esta tarde en el tercer juego de la serie mundial, y el primero que se celebra en el campo de polo. La anotación fue de 6 a 4. Resultó el conflicto cansado e innecesariamente prolijo, y no hubo más amenaza que en en turno noveno, en que los Senadores pujaron para lograr otro triunfo. Fracasaron, sin embargo, porque John Watson, que violentamente fue enviado al rescate, después de que Jonnard no había tenido éxito en igual misión, se negó a dejarse intimidar por los gritos de los aficionados y los sarcasmos de los jugadores adversarios.

DAM LOWER ST. LAWRENCE

The diversion of water of the Great Lakes by the Chicago drainage canal, causing a large flow into the Mississippi River that normally belongs to the St. Lawrence, has altered the problem of maintaining the channel for ocean-going shipping below Montreal. In consequence it is now seriously proposed by Col. W. I. Gear, president of the Canadian Shipping Federation, to construct a dam across the St. Lawrence between Champlain and Cape Rouge—about half way between Montreal and Quebec.

Such a dam should be high enough to give a depth of thirty-seven or forty feet in the ship channel, and it would also serve to develop an immense block of hydroelectric power. The structure would have to be massive enough to withstand the movement of ice in the spring. It is believed that it would cost less to build the proposed dam than to dredge the thirty-five-foot ship channel, as planned by the Canadian government.—[Compressed Air Magazine.

EX-SULTAN ADMITTED BY FRANCE

Former Turkish Caliph Given Permission to Bring His Three Wives

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The French government gave the former Sultan of Turkey and Caliph permission to enter France today with his three wives, although the French law prohibits polygamy. The former Sultan will leave Monte Rux, Switzerland, tonight with a train of personal servants and his three legal wives, with whom he will take up his residence in a villa near Nice.

Negotiations to get this permission had been going on for several months, the French government being uncertain whether the former Sultan and his three wives would make desirable guests on the Riviera.

The arrangement now made gives the former Sultan the right to spend his English money—all owed him by the British government on a life annuity arrangement in France.

That inducement overcame the objections raised to the three Sultanas, the only remaining members of the former Sultan's once flourishing harem.

PLAN UNIQUE CELEBRATION

San Diego Remembers Great Exposition

"Ten Years After" Banquet to be Staged

Balboa Park to be Scene of Program

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 6.—Plans for a fitting observance of the tenth anniversary of the opening of the Panama-California Exposition will be outlined at a mass meeting of citizens Tuesday night. Sponsors of the movement said today that an attendance of several hundred persons, including representatives of all civic organizations, county communities and the Army, Navy and Marine Corps was expected.

It was proposed to make the "ten years after" celebration an event unique in the history of the city. The inaugural banquet on New Year's Eve, 1914, will be reproduced as nearly as it is possible to do so and the program which officially started the exposition, it is planned, will be duplicated in the same setting. The celebration would start on December 31 and carry over into the new year.

Co-operation of the Navy has been pledged by Rear-Admiral Ashley B. Robinson, commandant from the Eleventh Naval District, and assurances of support have been received from the principal civic organizations. Cities in the Southland will be invited to participate as will the executives of Western States.

Balboa Park, where the exposition was held, and where the more important buildings have been preserved, is much more attractive and charming than ten years ago and would provide a setting of rare beauty for the tenth anniversary celebration and, according to the leaders of the project, would appeal particularly to the large numbers of visitors who would be expected to come from all parts of the West.

REDLANDS, Oct. 6.—The registration of all minors in the city of Redlands will be taken next week, H. P. Clement, Superintendent of Schools here, has announced that the registration will be taken at the grammar school buildings in the city.

Annual registration of minors is in accordance with the State law and the principals of the grammar schools will have charge. No child is exempt from registration and all children between the ages of 3 and 18 years are required to register.

The fact that a child may not be in the public schools does not have any bearing. Information in regard to employment of the children must be given and all the reports must be filed with the County School Superintendent.

The registration is taken in order that the school heads may check up on the child labor.

Hold Up Plans for Reception of Dirigible

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 6.—Pending definite word of the start of the navy dirigible Shenandoah's transcontinental flight to San Diego and Seattle, officials at the Naval Air Station here decided today to make no further plans for the reception of the big airship.

Originally it had been planned to stage an aerial demonstration when the dirigible reached its mooring mast on North Island. The date was tentatively set for next Saturday. Word received yesterday, however, indicated the Shenandoah would be delayed in starting until probably Tuesday morning. If the original schedule were followed, the airship would arrive late Saturday or early Sunday.

Naval Air Station authorities said this afternoon that as soon as the Shenandoah got under way, and the time of the flight across the country to San Diego by way of Fort Worth could be estimated with some degree of certainty, the plans for the aerial demonstration would be announced.

MAN HUNT CONTINUES AT TULARE

Murderer Believed to be Hiding Near Scene of Crime of Saturday Night

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TULARE, Oct. 6.—Unofficial local reports are that tonight will bring interesting developments in the search by Sheriff R. L. Hill and a posse of county and local officers for Charles Journey of Tulare, who shot and killed his father-in-law, Peter C. Jacobsen, 77 years of age, at the latter's country home near here Saturday evening following refusal of Mrs. Journey to return to her husband.

Mrs. Journey had been living at Long Beach for some time, returning to attend the funeral of her mother, who died a few days ago. Journey, returning from placing flowers on his mother-in-law's grave, found the Jacobsen family at supper. He is said to have attempted to effect a reconciliation with his wife and to have exhibited a revolver when this failed. Jacobsen interfered and was killed. Journey is reported to have been drinking.

Heavy vegetation in the section has hampered the search which has continued since Saturday night. One of Journey's sons is said to be aiding the officers, fearing his father will return and kill his mother. Journey is believed to still be in this vicinity.

Train, Truck, Steam Shovel All in Smash

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

POMONA, Oct. 6. — A twenty-two-ton steam shovel, a large Union Pacific freight locomotive and a heavy auto truck were badly damaged and a ten-ton trailer was almost demolished in an unusual grade-crossing accident at Hamilton avenue and the Union Pacific tracks late yesterday.

The steam shovel on an eight-wheel trailer was being towed north on Hamilton avenue by two large trucks and because of the immense weight the vehicles were moving very slowly when a long Union Pacific freight approached from the east, traveling down grade.

Unable to move their vehicles off the crossing in time, three men riding on the steam shovel leaped for their lives. The heavy train was unable to stop in time and moved two car lengths after the crash. The steam shovel was badly damaged, the trailer, which it was hauling, was wrecked, the rear end of one of the trucks was damaged and the locomotive with a smashed pilot, steam and air pipes ripped off, number plate and headlight smashed, was put out of commission and had to be taken away by a wrecking train.

DEATH CALLS TWO PIONEERS

Old-Time Friends Die Same Day at Redlands

Both Took Active Part in Early Developments

Each Aided in Building of Present City

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

REDLANDS, Oct. 6.—Two well-known men of Redlands, pioneers of the city and having had a large part in the affairs of the community, died at their homes here today. Fred Herrmann, for thirty-one years a member of the Redlands fire department, was the first to go and soon after his friend, Samuel Houston Wright, died at his home.

Fred Herrmann came to Redlands thirty-five years ago and four years later joined the Redlands fire department as the first paid member. Jack Levy, who is still with the department, was then the chief. Herrmann was for years driver of the horses of the hose wagon and about fifteen years ago, when the horses were replaced by automobile trucks became the driver of the first truck.

He was with the department on active duty until two years ago when he became ill and was retired. A year ago he suffered a paralytic stroke and has been seriously ill for some time. He was a member of several fraternal orders and is survived by his widow. He was 67 years of age.

Samuel H. Wright was 77 years of age and had lived in Redlands for thirty-four years. He came here from Illinois and was one of the well-known carpenters in the early days. He built many miles of the wooden flumes that were used in irrigation and was one of those employed in building the Casa Loma Hotel, Redlands' first big tourist hotel.

Mrs. Wright died about eight years ago. Mr. Wright has not been engaged at his trade for several years because of ill health. He is survived by one daughter, who lives in Illinois, and a son, L. E. Wright, who lives in Redlands, and is a member of the local fire department.

GERMAN LOANS MAY AID COPPER

Price Unchanged; Few Sales Under Thirteen Cents

Domestic Consumers Watch for Buying Move

Expatriated Capital Need is Drawback

BY CHARLES F. WILLIS

Copper continues to hover around the 13-cent mark with small sales made at an eighth under that figure. No relief is expected until the announcement of the German loan which will probably come early in November. The reports relative to this loan are such as to induce domestic consumers to feel out the market and a few orders of consequence might easily precipitate a buying movement in advance of the prospective foreign demand.

Regarding the expected effect of the German loan, the situation is analyzed by Daniel Guggenheim, of Guggenheim Brothers, in a recent interview when he said, "Germany will not start buying until money gets cheap over there. Money will not get cheap in Germany until expatriated capital returns. I expect expatriated capital to begin to return to Germany a short time after the loan goes through. This will stimulate large copper buying on the part of Germany. Russia will be developed electrically through German manufacturing because Germany is in a better position to supply finished copper products than any other nation in the world, manufacturing facilities being far superior. Russia has no electrical development, and there is room for tremendous work there. As soon as expatriated capital returns to Germany money rates will drop from 25 to 30 per cent. Germany will also get the business of the world. She won't have any such things as labor unions over there and her workmen will work from ten to twelve hours a day."

CO-OPERATION LACKING

The lack of co-operation on the part of American selling agencies and some of the South American producers has permitted the European speculators to keep copper prices down, irrespective of favorable statistics. The breaking of the Copper Export Association has permitted of a competition and tactics unfavorable to the copper market. A system of foreign dealers has developed who buy from American selling agencies and South American producers on the London Metal Exchange and they can conduct operations in such a way as to permit of depressing the market while buying operations are in process.

It is due to the fact that there is always some low-cost copper to be had at almost any time that permits of the dealer having the advantage on transactions.

IMPROVEMENT SEEN

With the governmental restrictions that have been placed upon Cerro De Pasco and the probable tax increases that are coming upon Chili copper and Braden because of the promises being made during the governmental change in Chili, the United States copper stands in a little better shape from the point of view of competition with the foreign-produced metal. However, no such improvement is expected regarding Katanga, which, in July became the world's largest producer of copper.

Katanga production for 1924 will probably exceed 185,000,000 tons, half of which is marketed in the United States. About 100,000,000 pounds of this are new production this year and thus Katanga is looming up strong as a competitor in the sale of its metal.

BAD CHECKS

A number of worthless checks are being issued by a man who is thought to have stolen the blanks from the home of the secretary of the Los Angeles Soccer Association. These checks are in the 400 series, and the criminal generally uses the signatures of J. H. Goodman, John Adams and Earl Harris. In most cases this man gives an address in the vicinity of the store in which he cashes his check, and it later proves that the address is a fictitious one. He enters a store, buys merchandise amounting to two or three dollars, presents a check for about $20 and receives the balance in cash.

Following is a description of this man: American, age 22 to 25 years; height 5 feet 5 or 6 inches; weight, 135 pounds; blond hair; thin face and smooth shaven; wears ordinary clothes and is driving a Ford coupe; license number not known.

These Important Factors Insure Lasting Success

AGE, prestige, ample capital, efficient management, large earning power, diversified territory—all these factors contribute to the success of the Dohrmann Commercial Company, largest crockery concern on the Pacific Coast, which owns the entire capital stock of the Parmelee-Dohrmann Company of Los Angeles; Nathan-Dohrmann Company, San Francisco; Yost-Dohrmann Crockery Company, Stockton; Trinkler-Dohrmann Company, San Jose; Alfred Stahel & Sons, San Diego.

And also owns and operates the crockery and household departments of the Emporium, San Francisco; Kahn Brothers, Oakland; The Fifth Street Store, Los Angeles; H. C. Capwell Company, Oakland; E. Gottschalk & Co., Fresno; Olds, Wortman & King, Portland, Oregon.

The bonds of this Company are exceptionally desirable for safe, conservative investment, and are obtainable now on a very advantageous basis.

UNION OIL POSSIBILITIES

Directors Silent on Developments Anticipated by Stock Market; Pacific Oil Meeting Today

Several developments anxiously awaited by the market as the result of the recent distribution of a large block of Union Oil of California stock through the medium of a nation-wide banking syndicate still remained yesterday in a nebulous state after the Union Oil directors held their quarterly meeting. The regular dividends of $1.80 a share on Union Oil and $1 cents on Union Oil Associates were declared by the respective boards.

Stockholders in both corporations and the speculative community generally have expected several important announcements to emanate from the parent corporation ever since the successful flotation of the stock bought by the bankers from the Shell-Union Oil Corporation, which owned approximately 24 per cent of outstanding capitalization of the Union Oil Company. These conjectures have taken the form of a possible increase in the dividend rate on Union Oil, a dissolution of Union Oil Associates, and the disposition of the 80 per cent stock dividend received by the latter company from the parent organization.

EXCHANGE OF SHARES

The market has also expected an announcement on almost any day of the date on which the $100 par value stock certificates may be exchanged at the ratio of four to one for the new $25 par value stock of the Union Oil Company. The directors have previously stated their intention of making this reduction in the par value, and of listing the new shares on the New York Stock Exchange.

The explanation for the delay in the exchange of stock and the listing in New York is credited in the market to the report that the banking syndicate has obtained an extension of sixty days in which to distribute its stock to investors in a more thorough manner. This period, it is believed, will expire around the end of November.

The company has been liberal with stockholders in the past and may conceivably continue this policy. It has paid cash dividends each year since 1899 with the exceptions of 1914 and 1915. Cash payments in this period have averaged almost 7 per cent annually and in addition stock dividends of 300 per cent, 10 per cent and 80 per cent have been paid. Prior the issuance of the last stock dividend the company paid for two years an annual cash rate of 12 per cent, and for three years 10 per cent or more.

GOOD SHOWING

Any contemplated increase in the present rate may, however, be held in abeyance because of conditions in the oil market. Union Oil is, nevertheless, experiencing a relatively satisfactory year on the basis of six months' activities, the statement showing earnings at the annual rate of $13.50 a share on the outstanding stock. The nine months' report, usually the first issued on the Pacific Coast, is expected in a few days, and it is understood that it will show a healthy condition.

As soon as the distribution of the bankers' stock is actually completed to the satisfaction of the syndicate, and the danger of foreign domination of the company removed, the general opinion is that the directors of Union Oil Associates will quietly retire from the field and dissolve their corporation. This organization was formed at a critical juncture in the affairs of the Union Oil Company and its success in forestalling the activities of the Royal Dutch interests is a monument of achievement to its originators.

If this company is dissolved and the stock exchanged into the new $25 certificates of the parent organization, the share owners generally anticipate the distribution of the 80 per cent stock dividend received from the parent company in 1922. This stock has been held in the treasury and never parceled out to Union Oil Associates share owners.

PACIFIC OIL

Another matter of interest to traders, generally, and stockholders in the Pacific Oil Company specifically, is the annual meeting of the company, scheduled for today in San Francisco. There is little hope of the restoration of the $3 dividend rate, which was reduced last year to $2 because of the chaotic state of the industry. Pacific Oil is primarily a producing company and its earnings closely reflect the fluctuations in the price of crude oil.

Its chief subsidiary, Associated Oil, is performing satisfactorily, but the sale of refined products this year has not met with the expectations of the industry. When the gasoline business emerges into something like a normal condition, Pacific Oil should receive much better earnings from its ownership in Associated Oil and be in a better position to stand the strain of a higher dividend rate.

MARKET IN IMPROVED CONDITION

Moody's Weekly Review of Finances Reports August and September Better

Moody's Weekly Review of Financial Conditions in its current issue reports in part:

"Trade improvement was continuous and substantial during August and September. The betterment really began in the latter part of June. Wholesale and retail trade shows marked expansion, freight-car loadings, and commodity prices have been rising.

"Re-employment of labor in some sections began to show itself in August. This means larger purchasing power, and if the re-employment goes far enough it will be the best of helpful influences; but it is doubtful whether it will go far enough.

"One may fairly say that uncertainty prevails. Industrial profits are running well under last year, and leading shares have risen above the 1923 prices in anticipation of larger earnings which may or may not materialize.

"Under the conditions it seems wise to remain hopeful, but to be cautious and conservative. It can do no harm to exchange now into high-grade bonds, notes and investments which could be relied upon in any event to hold firm.

"Our quarterly average of the price of capital has fallen to 5.89 per cent—the lowest level since the war. The main trend should still be downward, subject perhaps to a temporary rally in the case of any unsettlement."

Stock Exchange Is Suggested by Control Buyers

The United Light and Power Company, which recently acquired more than 75 per cent of the common capital stock of the Continental Gas and Electric Corporation, has now informed the remaining common stockholders of its desire to acquire their holdings. It has offered, according to advices received in Los Angeles over the private wire of Peirce, Fair & Co., to exchange for each share of Continental common stock one and one-fourth shares of the United Light and Power Company Class "B" preferred and one share of Class "A" common stock.

Class "B" preferred stock is paying cumulative dividends at the rate of $3.50 per annum, and an extra dividend of 50 cents a share whenever the common stock of the company pays dividends in excess of $1.40 per share per annum. Class "B" preferred is now paying $4 per share. Class "A" common stock is now paying dividends at the rate of $1.40 per annum in cash and an extra dividend in Class "A" common stock equal to one-twentieth of a share per annum, which at present market prices is worth $2.50. The dividend return on stocks of the United Company offered in exchange for the Continental Company produce an income of $6.90 per share, of which $6.40 is in cash, the balance being in Class "A" common stock.

The offer of exchange is to stockholders of record on October 7, and expires at the close of business the 30th inst. The designated depositories for the exchange of stocks are the New York Trust Company, New York; Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago; the Cleveland Trust Company, Cleveland; Old National Bank, Grand Rapids.

There will be no change in the executive personnel of the companies composing the United Light and Power Company, which will be under the direction of C. S. Eaton of Cleveland, as chairman of the board, and Frank T. Hulswit of Chicago, as president.

SPOT COTTON QUIET; FUTURES REGAIN LOSS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Spot cotton quiet; closed 35 points net lower at 26.25 cents.

Cotton futures recovered moderately after an initial break of substantial proportions today. Favorable weather in the belt was responsible for early selling. The steadier undertone was displayed under scattered short covering and commission house buying. After the early afternoon rally, however, the list again turned reactionary under further liquidation by Wall street interests who were evening up accounts prior to the government crop estimate. Final prices were some 13 to 17 points above the day's low leve..

RE-EXPORT GAIN FOR YEAR GREAT

Nation's Position as Trade Exchange Grows

War Causes Other Countries to Buy Through America

Canadian Activites at Head of List; England Second

Foreign merchandise re-exported from the United States in the fiscal year just ended exceeds in value that of any year since 1921 and is more than double in value that of any year preceding the war. It totaled, according to the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York, $827,589,000 in the fiscal year 1924, against $770,051,000 in 1923 and an average of about $35,000,000 a year prior to the World War.

Whether it is a persistence of the "habit" which the adjacent countries formed during the war of drawing their supplies direct from the United States instead of bringing them across the ocean can hardly be determined, the Trade Record continues; it is a fact that our re-exports of foreign merchandise to our near-by neighbors did increase tremendously during the war, and that a large share of this increase in our foreign export trade still remains in the hands of our importers and exporters.

Whether it is due to the opening of the Panama Canal, which gives us a new and shorter route to the countries fronting on the Pacific, is also an open question, but it is a fact that the foreign merchandise exported to the South American countries fronting on the Pacific in the latest year for which figures are available was nearly $1,000,000 against only $163,000 in the year preceding the opening of the canal, and in the latest year available the foreign merchandise exported to Asia and Oceania was about $1,500,000 value against about $225,000 in 1914.

ENGLAND BUYS

Our next-door neighbors, notably Canada, Mexico, Cuba and Central America, are large customers for the foreign merchandise we bring into the country and send out again. The total of foreign merchandise re-exported in the latest year for which details are available was, to Canada, about $23,000,000; Mexico, approximately $4,000,000; Cuba nearly $4,000,000, and to South America over $2,000,000.

England took from us over $8,000,000 worth of foreign merchandise in the year in question, including meats, hides and skins, furs, fruits, tobacco and silk. France also took of our re-exportations about $5,000,000 worth, Germany another $5,000,000, and other European countries took limited quantities.

TOTAL VALUE

The total value of foreign merchandise re-exported from the United States since 1900 is about $2,000,000,000. Wool, cotton, silk, rubber, coffee, tropical fruits and art works are the chief artieles re-exported. The wool comes largely from South America and Australia and passes on to Europe and Canada; the cotton is chiefly from Egypt and it is handed over to our neighbors in Mexico and Canada and a limited quantity to the Orient; the hides and skins are largely from Latin America, Asia and Australia and go to Europe; the rubber comes chiefly from the Orient and goes largely to Canada and Latin America; and the coffee which comes from South and Central America passes to our next-door neighbors in Canada, Mexico, Cuba and considerable quantities to Europe.

BOND QUOTATIONS

Rail Lines Attacked

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Heavy liquidation of the St. Paul issues, several of which fell to new low prices for the year on the revival of doubts concerning the road's ability to arrange its financing program without reorganization or the selling down of its capital structure, overshadowed all other developments in today's bond market. Prices in the general list were reactionary.

St. Paul 4's of 1925 broke more than 8 points to 63 and then rallied to 64 1-4. Net losses of 1 to 3 points were registered by the convertible 4 1-4s, refunding 4½s, convertible 5s, 4½s of 1932, 4s of 1934 and the Puget Sound division 4s.

Obligations of the New Haven Railroad, which also will be called upon to meet heavy maturities next year, reacted in sympathy, but the net losses were held in fractions.

Industrial mortgages held relatively firm. United States issues eased slightly in reflection of a temporary stiffening of the call money rates. Foreign government liens held steady on reports that the flotation of the German loan would come next week with a 7 per cent coupon and an offering price to yield 7½ per cent. Belgian 6½s touched a new high record at 98½.

Public offering will be made shortly of a $13,700,000 issue of secured 6½ per cent gold bonds of the Continental Gas and Electric Corporation by a banking syndicate headed by Otis & Co. The price is 99 and interest to yield 6.65 per cent. The new financing is in connection with the recent merger of western public utility companies serving Kansas City, Mo.; Columbus, O.; Lincoln, Neb.; and about 190 other communities.

Following are yesterday's high, low and closing prices at Leeds at the New York Stock Exchange, and the total sales of each bond. This market is our Associated Press wires and is supplied transmission the closing is omitted when it is the same as the low, and both low and close are omitted when they are the same as the high.

NEW YORK CURB

Realizing Operations

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Irregular fluctuations marked today's quiet and featureless curb market, recessions in the oil shares on profit-taking contrasting with the upward tendencies displayed by some of the radio and baking shares, which moved within narrow limits.

Prairie Oil and Gas lost two points and the recent advance in Vacuum Oil was checked by profit-taking, the stock recovering, however, from an earlier decline of about two points, closing one point lower on the day.

The radio group showed early strength, but yielded to selling pressure in the late trading.

The reactionary trend of the public utilities was reflected in a decline of more than two points by Middle West utilities, dullness marking the transactions in the group. The industrial shares were less active than usual. Gillette Safety Razor responding to the declaration of the regular quarterly $3 dividend with a gain of two points.

Following are the closing quotations on the New York Curb Market, furnished by Logan & Bryan, members of the New York Stock Exchange, 638 South Spring street:

METAL MARKETS

Daily Review

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CLEVELAND (O.) Oct. 6.—Daily Metal Trade today reports that a leading wire maker has named southern heat at Fairfield, Ala., works at advance of $3 above Pittsburg. New England cold rolled strip steel market is upset by discovery of new base at Worcester, Mass., at $2 ton higher than Pittsburg, Cleveland base. Steel bars are sold into New England by Buffalo makers on mill base, which makes price cheaper than from Pittsburg. Youngstown district sheet makers add six active mills, making seventy-five active out of 119. Copper, steady at New York at 13 cents. Zinc, firm at 6.17½, to 6.20 cents, and lead stronger at 7.87½. St. Louis Tin, firm at 64½.

LOS ANGELES INVESTMENT COMPANY

1016 S. Broadway TRinity 0251

BY ROBERT J. PRITCHARD

The Barnsdall Oil Company yesterday completed its second well in the Rosecrans field, bringing in its O'Dea No. 1 with an initial flow at the rate of 1000 barrels a day, according to company officials. The well was brought in barefooted, starting to flow during the water test, after the crew had drilled only five feet below the shoe. Gravity of the product was reported at 38.2 degrees, uncorrected, the cut being 3.4 per cent emulsion. A shutoff was approved by the Mining Bureau, and the well will be allowed to produce without interference for the present, officials report. Bottom of the well is at 4658 feet. Good gas pressure was reported, the gauge registering 200 pounds in the casing, and 325 pounds in the tubing.

The O'Dea No. 1 is in the northwest corner of the O'Dea lease, offsetting the General Petroleum Corporation's Vaughn No. 1, and almost half-way between the Union-Athens No. 1, and the Superior Oil Company's Maxwell No. 1. The O'Dea lease comprises eighty acres, most of which, according to operators, is likely to prove productive, geological indications placing it on or near the crest of the anticline.

The Barnsdall yesterday spudded in its O'Dea No. 2 on the east line of the lease, next to Main street, and offsetting the Union Oil Company's Gray No. 1.

Pacific Starts Well

Success of the Standard Oil Company in bringing in its Los Angeles Investment No. 1-1 wildcat well in the Baldwin Hills district last Sunday, has inspired the Pacific Oil Company to enter the field activity, and a party of surveyors visited the Pacific's 1500-acre Anita M. Baldwin leases yesterday to stake a location for the first well. The Pacific-Baldwin No. 1 will be located exactly 1244 feet north of the Standard Oil producer, according to an agreement between the two companies. The well will be drilled by the Amazon Drilling Corporation which drills by contract for the Associated and Pacific companies in Southern California. It is understood that the derrick is to be built immediately and drilling started as soon as possible.

The south line of the Anita M. Baldwin lease is located exactly 672 feet from the Los Angeles Investment Company No. 1-1. The location for Pacific-Baldwin No. 1 is 4809 feet west of the Stocker No. 1, which the Standard is rigging up to drill on the Clara Baldwin Stocker lease.

An interesting feature of the situation in the Baldwin Hills district is the fact that Mrs. Anita M. Baldwin, owner of the lease on which the Pacific is preparing to drill, is a sister of Mrs. Clara Baldwin-Stocker, owner of the Standard Oil Company's Stocker lease. According to report, the two sisters divided the Baldwin estate in Montebello many years ago, the division resulting in the acquisition by Mrs. Anita Baldwin of the property upon which the Standard Oil Company later obtained its productive wells, while the Stocker share proved to be barren of oil. With two large corporations now drilling on the property of both sisters in the Baldwin Hills, it is expected that a few months at most should determine whether either or both of the sisters are to benefit by the proverbial "Baldwin luck."

Start Second Well

The Standard Oil Company is surveying for a location for its second well on the original Los Angeles Investment Company lease, according to official reports. A clause in the lease provides that wells may not be drilled within 200 feet of a highway, and definite location for future wells is awaiting the completion of the county's survey for the new Redondo Boulevard which bisects the property.

The Standard's discovery well is pumping around 150 barrels per day, after being on production for a week, according to reports.

Water Kills Well

Water trouble which was the bane of the General Petroleum Corporation in the Domingues field, bobbed up to spoil temporarily, the General Petroleum's first Rosecrans well, the Vaughn No. 1, it was reported yesterday. After the well had been successfully completed, and was flowing around 1000 barrels of clean oil, the flow was suddenly converted to water.

It is believed the difficulty is due to a breakdown of the cement job which was effective at first, and the well was filled in order to recement. This will offsets the Barnsdall Oil Company's O'Dea No. 1, which was completed yesterday.

No Shutoff

The Bankline Oil Company failed to get a water shutoff in its Gordon No. 1 in the Rosecrans field, according to reports yesterday. During the test the well flowed 500 barrels of fluid, of which water comprised about 75 per cent, the rest being oil. The well was killed and the casing recemented.

Getting Deep

The Union Oil Company's Trust No. 1 in the western part of the Rosecrans field was drilling at 5143 feet yesterday, the General Petroleum Corporation's offset well, the Ernestoy No. 1, being down 5365 feet. No showings have been reported in either well.

Birch Well Deep

The Birch Oil Company's wildcat in the southwestern part of the Domingues field, near the L. B. Chase Oil Company's dry hole, is drilling at 5005 feet, in gray sand, according to field reports. The present depth is approximately the same as the final depth of the Chase well when it was abandoned.

DAILY MARKET LETTER OF THE NEW YORK COMMERCIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—There is little change in the local prune situation. Some buyers were more interested in offers today but there was no disposition to book for future positions. The Sun Maid Raisin Growers Association did not announce prices on the new crop today. There was a rumor, however, that it would be next week before the long expected prices would be made. The demand for 1923 crop offerings continued strong. Apricots are very quiet. Peaches are firm but dull.

Tomatoes continued to attract major attention today. Canners hold that not even the best weather breaks could pull the pack past the shortage line. Prices are steady at last reported levels. Indiana tomatoes are very firm. Prorating deliveries is a possibility. Last sales of 2s were at $1.15. The market in California is higher. This is a reflection of conditions in other markets as well as a scarcity in all sizes. Inquiries from other markets tend to bolster up the position of the holder.

Corn is likewise scarce and strong.

FISH MARKET

Red Alaska salmon of the new pack continues to show strength. Spot sales are fairly brisk with offerings light. Pinks are well maintained at present levels. Maine sardines are still holding down to the prices that accompanies piece-meal placements on the part of buyers. California ovals are not offered freely. White meat tuna and shrimp are firm. Other lines are unchanged.

There is little change in the general canned fruit situation. Peaches in No. 10 tins are well sought. Hawaiian pineapple is gaining strength as other fruits seem to be out of line with buyers ideas. There has been a rather strong interest displayed by distributors who are anxious to cover for futures.

SUGAR EASIER

The raw sugar market seemed to waver today and the undertone was easier. Despite the predictions that the spot market would advance, refiners were able to purchase at their own bid price of 4¼ cents at which figure some 32,000 bags sold. There were further buyers at the 4 1-4 cent cost and freight basis, but up to late afternoon no further selling offers came out under 4 3-4 cents. The Cuban situation appears to be strong, but its strength hinges on the needs of American refiners.

Demand for refined continues light. The little business in the last two days has been offered to the Federal on the basis of 7.15 to 7.20, but they are said to have confirmed less than half of the orders tendered. The range of prices is still from 7.15 to 7.50.

Raw sugar futures were nervous and uncertain and there was a further spread between December and the spot position. In heavy European liquidation of December, at the call, the option dropped 9 points at the opening. January came down with it 13 points. During the day there was considerable selling by long interests and the buying was influenced by the strong position of raws. The market closed 11 points advance for October and the other months at 1 to 2 points decline.

COFFEE UP AT CLOSE

Brazilian coffee cables came lower for both futures and exchange and prices here opened unchanged for July and other months at 4 to 12 points decline in comparatively light trading. Early liquidation was followed by a buying movement and brought on a reaction of 17 to 26 points, which was further increased on active bidding which forced prices up 17 to 75 points. The buying was influenced by a much stronger world statistical position as reported by cable, which places the visible supply at 2,000,000 bags below that of last year. The market finally closed at a net advance of 48 to 55 points. The spot market was firm, but not active.

The tea markets of the world are suffering from a shortage which seems to be growing acute. Prices are steadily advancing. London has been especially active in acquiring supplies at advancing prices. The shortage is not confined to China. India production has fallen below requirements and the demand for Ceylons and Javas has absorbed all that the growers could supply. As a consequence each successive cable from the Far East and from London announces a stronger position and steadily advancing prices.

The demand was fair for standard varieties of beans, but there were no material changes in prices. The weather is favorable for handling and shipping this commodity. The demand for red kidneys is improving. Limas are strong, with 14 3-4 cents asked.

BUTTER AND EGGS

The butter market is showing signs of weakness and with freer offerings of table grades and slowness of buyers in taking hold prices broke fully ½ cent. Extras in the creamery class settled at 38½ cents and a great many lots sold at that rate. The call was very quiet.

The egg market shows no important change so far as fresh eggs are concerned, especially in view of the fact that there were no changes reported in last prices.

The predicted advance in copper has not occurred as yet and at the close electrolytic was still quotable from 12 7-8 cents to 13 cents a pound, delivered. The market was very dull. The London market was off cables standing spot as declining 2s 6d to £62 2s 6d and futures 5s to £63, while electrolytic dropped 5s to £66 for spot and £66 10s for futures.

Lead is unchanged at 3 cents, New York, and 7.80 cents a pound in St. Louis. London spot advanved 5s to £33, 17s 6d and futures 2s 6d to £33, 2s 6d.

Zinc advanced 2 1-2 points to 6.20 cents, St. Louis, and 6.55 cents a pound, New York. London spot held unchanged at £32, 17s 6d, but futures advanced 2s 6d to £33.

TIN MOVES UP

The reaction in tin lasted but a day here and the upward movement in prices was resumed with straits advancing 1-4 cent but in London losses ranged from 2s 6d to 5s. All deliveries and positions of straits closed at 48 7-8 cents. London cables standard spots as declining 5s to £242, futures 2s 6d to £244. 7s 6d and straits 5s to £243. The Far Eastern market reacted for a loss of £4 10s Saturday but recovered 15s of this today when straits in Singapore closed at £245 10s.

The Magnolia Petroleum Company has met the price cut of the Prairie company in Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas. The new prices posted by Magnolia show a reduction of from 15 to 20 cents a barrel and are as follows: Under 30 degrees, 75 cents; 30 to 32.9, 90 cents; 33 and above, $1.25. The top grades 33 and above, are unchanged but the company previously quoted 90 cents a barrel for oil under 28 gravity; $1 for 28 to 30.9, and $1.10 for 31 to 32.9. As a result of the general reduction in gasoline prices last week, extending from Maine to the gulf, the average tank wagon price of gasoline for thirty principal cities is down to a little more than 13 1-2 cents a gallon, the lowest since October, 1923, and 4 1-2 cents below the high average for the current year. The reason given for the reduction is the large supply of gasoline in storage and the seasonal falling off in demand.

Gilt-edge bonds were firm but speculative issues continued weak under special pressure. St. Paul issues which have been under pressure off and on for a month or more, were subjected to fresh selling and broke badly. Belgian 6 1-2s, which have been advancing, made new gains and touched a record high. The activity in the Belgian 6 1-2s and other recently offered European securities is attracting attention in connection with negotiations that are under way regarding the terms of the German loan. In general the market was quiet and not inclined to move radically in either direction.

TWO REASONS

"When one meets one of the modern women one must be careful how one expresses one's self," remarked Binks.

"How do you make that out?" asked Smith.

"Why," replied Binks, "I was proposing to Ethel the other night and I said, 'My dear, I would go to the ends of the earth with you.'

"She said, 'No you wouldn't.' I inquired why not, and she added, 'One reason is that I wouldn't go and another is that there aren't any.'"—[Exchange.

Foreigners Buy Cash Wheat and Prices Go Higher

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Hysterical buying of cash wheat took place today on the part of foreigners, with sales estimated as high as 5,000,000 bushels, and with Liverpool 4@5d. Wheat and rye were rushed up to a new high for the year, with May wheat here 1.37 and May rye 1.40½, while at Winnipeg October jumped 7 cents, to a high of 1.49.

Offerings were limited at the start and the advance easily attained, but immediate profit-taking developed, and with some selling credited to a leading local long, prices declined around 3 cents from the top and closed 1@1½c higher on old crop deliveries, with July ¼ cent lower. Rye was ¼ cent lower at the last.

Corn showed fair strength early, with May selling up to 1.16½ in sympathy with wheat and on a snow report on Central Illinois, which suggested heavy damage, but when selling appeared, support was lacking, and the finish was 1¼@1⅜c lower, while oats were off ⅝@⅞, the latter on July.

Many leading commission houses advised extreme caution on the buying side of wheat on the early bulge, fearing that the situation was badly strained as the result of an advance of 20 cents per bushel here, as compared with the low of two weeks ago. Winnipeg advanced 32 cents during the same period.

Routine developments counted for little. Rains and snow in the Canadian Northwest were responsible for the sensational upturn in that market early, with the finish ⅝@1⅜c higher. Forecast there was for fair and warmer. An increase of only 238,000 bushels in the visible supply failed to have much effect on values, and the close was about the lowest figures of the day, with December 1.05¾@1.05⅝, May at 1.35⅞@1.36 and July at 1.32½.

An effort to secure profits on long corn, credited to a local long, disclosed a weak technical position and prices dropped 3@3½c from the high and closed at the bottom, with December 1.10⅝@1.10¾. May closed at 1.13@1.13¼ and July at 1.13⅝. Cash basis was ¼@½c lower, with a moderate demand. Receipts, 414 cars. Conflicting reports were received from the interior regarding the probable outcome of the new crop.

Immense profit-taking was on in oats after an advance of around 1 cent in the early trading. May sold up to 42 cents and was down to 41⅛@41⅜c at the last. Offerings to arrive from Illinois points showed an increase. Little was baked regarding export demand. Receipts, 540 cars.

Latest reports from abroad indicate that Germany needs all the rye the United States has to spare. In addition, Scandinavian and other countries need rye, and many in the trade figure that some sort will have to go without, as the United States is the only country with any material amount to spare. Profit-taking was responsible for a reaction of 5½@6c from the top, with May 1.37 at the close.

LOS ANGELES MARKET

CATTLE: Today's total offerings, estimated around 1800 head, including approximately 1000 held over from last week, met continued slow trade, excepting strictly good kinds, and less than half of the offerings had met an outlet at a late hour. Most early sales were around the steady mark; however, some sales, mostly in-between grades, showed slight declines under last week's close. Part load good 1441-pound northern steers topped at 8.00, while two cars of northerns averaging 1117 pounds turned for 8.00. Several loads 1059 to 1160-pound kinds cleared from 7.75 to 8.00. Common and medium steers, mostly light and handy weights, were fairly numerous from 5.50 to 7.25. Common light steers, mostly south-westerns, cleared from 5.50 to 5.75. Load of good 1039-pound northern cows topped at 5.00; however, the bulk of northerns cleared from 4.00 to 4.50, with light southwesterns largely from 3.25 to 3.75. Canners and cutters held about steady, most going over from 1.75 to 2.00, a few thin canners of doubtful quality selling downward to 1.50. Bulls ruled about steady, desirable bolognas turning from 3.50 to 4.00, while thin range bulls went over from 2.00 to 2.50.

CALVES: Buyers seemed to be well supplied with veal offerings, although the bulk of calves today were not highly desirable. Prices were generally steady with the bulk, common 180 to 240-pound weights, clearing from 4.50 to 5.50. A few hand-picked lots went over upward to 6.00. Heavies and "bobs" were fairly numerous from 3.00 to 4.00.

HOGS: Fairly active demand at 15 to 25 cents higher prices developed for today's moderate supply of butchers, and a fair clearance was effected. Today's top on desirable weight butchers was 11.75. However, some were held considerably higher, but remain unsold at a late hour. The bulk of good and choice 160 to 200-pound butchers turned from 11.50 to 11.70, most making 11.65 and 11.75. Packing sows advanced in line with butchers, the bulk going over from 8.00 to 8.90.

SHEEP: Brisk demand at around 50 cents higher prices developed for today's moderate supply and an early clearance was effected. A six-car string of strictly choice 77-pound wooled lambs cleared for 12.45 without a sort. Medium 79-pound clipped lambs made 10.90. Ewes held about steady, partbed good 112-pound kinds realizing 5.50.

COMING SOUTHWEST

Immigrants Entering at El Paso Surpassed Only at New York

When the word "immigrant" is used, an American involuntarily thinks of the ports: New York, Boston, San Francisco, New Orleans, Galveston. And yet there is a doorway to the United States in the Southwest—El Paso, Tex.,—through which more immigrants enter America every year than through any other port save New York.

For consider how much easier it is to get in through this doorway. Those coming to the ports must come by ship, a long distance, at great expense; those coming to El Paso merely cross a bridge often walking. Of course, the official restrictions there are the same as at other doorways, but the physical restrictions are not. In case an investigation might prove inconvenient to the immigrant, he finds that the river is in most places only knee-deep, wades are easily constructed, and of course every foot of the border line cannot be constantly guarded. No one knows this better than America's neighbors on the south.

Most of the immigrants, however, enter legally—some 20,000 a year at El Paso. Ninety per cent of these are Mexicans, 10 per cent of other nationalities. A part of this 10 per cent are people who have been refused admittance at other doors. Every year some of them are apprehended, often after they have been in the States for months. But this only proves that it is possible for undesirables to get in through this gateway.

With the Juarez-El Paso street cars coming over every fifteen minutes, more than ofte ncrowded to standing capacity, the immigration officials are far too busy to examine every passport thoroughly, and, with 100 drunken Americans in Juarez at any time, authentic-looking passports are easily procurable. That, in itself, is something to think about.—[E. L. R. in Christian Science Monitor.

WOULD STAY UNTIL MORNING ANYHOW

A harrowing, yet amusing, tale of an exciting voyage is told by Sergt. W. B. Beach in the Leatherneck, the journal of the marines. Sergt. Beach was a member of a detachment that returned from the Philippine Island on the Grant some time ago.

A few days out of Nagasaki, he writes, we ran into a typhoon and about the midwatch of that night we were shippin' 'em green at every plunge. But for a technicality we would have drawn diving pay! We had lost our wireless, and our screw was grinding halfway out of water, when an exceptionally heavy sea struck us amidships and battered in the bulkhead door of the forward companionway. In the roll that followed everything movable including rifles, sea bags, marines and several fathoms of chain "took off" and flew about the compartment. Incidentally half a fathom of chain wrapped itself round my neck, but that trifling impediment did not keep me from leading the rush for top side. Just then, however, in came several tons of water through the battered door, and things began to look serious.

One of the stewards went after the first officers, who was unknown to most of us. In a few minutes the officer appeared at the head of the gangway with a plank under his arm. "One young marine who had never been through such an experience before turned pale as a dreadful suspicion entered his mind. The officer was carrying a plank; planks float; therefore the officer was going to quit the ship! A bunch of helpless marines, women and children were to be left to the mercy of the waves. It was no time to stand on ceremony.

"'Hey, mister!' the little fellow piped out in a quivering voice. 'You ain't a-goin' to leave us, are you?'"

The officer glared and then grinned—for the first time in years, according to the steward—and said: "Well, I guess I'll stay with you until morning anyway, son." Then he proceeded to bar up the door with his splank. — [Youth's Companion.

SLAUGHTER IN GEORGIA IS PROVED

French Socialist Displays Soviet Papers Describing Death Orgy by Cheka

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Oct. 6.—A lively row is being engaged in all over Europe between Communists and Socialists on the question of Georgia, and there was a new outbreak today when Pierre Renaudel, secretary of the French Socialist party, produced documents proving conclusively that the Bolsheviki in Georgia had shot prisoners without trial or defense when the revolution broke out at the end of August.

M. Renaudel defeats the Communists' arguments by quoting Communist papers, printed in Georgia, showing that on August 30 and 31 and September 2, last, the soviet authorities caused their Socialist prisoners to be massacred without any form of trial.

An official communique issued by the Cheka afterward showed lists of Georgian Socialists and Liberals who died in a prison shamble on August 30, last. M. Renaudel also proves from Communist sources that the Cheka tortured the Georgian Socialist, M. Djouguel until he agreed to sign a document saying that he would never again oppose the soviets. When the Cheka obtained this and published it they immediately ordered M. Djouguel shot.

MAXIMS ON MONEY

Woman, Wife and Love Alone Have More to Their Credit

"Money does not get hanged," says an old German proverb. There is a queer psychology about money. It would seem on the one side that everybody hates it. Every crime in the calendar is laid to money. Money is the protector and promoter of all the evils and injustices. From all of which one would judge not only that money has a very wicked reputation, but that in itself it has an incurably malignant character and influence upon mankind.

But, on the other hand, everybody loves money, toils to get it, fights for it, praises it, dreams about it. These two extremes of infatuation and aversion, the same thing being reviled and eagerly sought after by the same person at the same time, make money not only a unique subject for speculation, but the most tormenting of all our economic and social problems. The power of money to behave wickedly and its uniform tendency to use that power to oppress and rob and throttle all honest efforts has been a tolerably constant article of our most aggressive political creeds.

In his compilations of the maxims and proverbs of the ages Robert Christy has found more of the minted gold of axiom and epigram based upon money than on almost any other subject. Wine, women and song, for example, have been played with for a long time by the wits and philosophers, but wine has achieved only sixty-three aphorisms and song only seven, while money runs up a total of 167. Woman and wife score a big beat, with 178 for the former and 214 for the latter. Love goes it nearly a hundred better with 261.

But some of the other renowns that have been memorialized in the apt phrase are poor seconds to money. Patience, for instance, with only sixty verbal laudations. Praying gets twenty, truth 131, and wisdom fifty-nine. If to money are added its cognate words, however, it jumps to the front and is exceeded only by wife and woman combined.

Riches, for example, musters 131 old saws; wealth, forty-two. On the other hand, want and poverty run up totals of twenty-seven and seventy-four, respectively, which are merely minor notes in the orchestration. It seems a little strange, however, that the proverbists have furnished only two decorative sentences for wages, and both of them are well worth printing. The Italian language is credited with this: "He cannot lead a good life who serves without wages." The Earl of Beaconsfield set going the very popular and up-to-date slogan: "Nature has laws, and this is one—a fair day's wage for a fair day's work."

Consider for a moment some of these condensations of the world's wisdom and experience about money. And first crack off the bat comes a slam in the best modern form: "A man who is proud of his money has rarely anything else to be proud of." The next one doubles back on the trail and runs in reverse form: "A man without money is like a bird without wings; if he soars, he falls to the ground and dies." That was the Rumanian way of looking at it.

Many nations have echoed that idea. The Dutch proverb puts it: "A man without money is like a ship without sails." Somewhere else it was stated: "A man without money is a bow without an arrow" and "A moneyless man goes fast through the market." This one looks English and sounds quite modern: "A thousand pounds and a bottle of hay are just the same at doomsday." Our old friend Horace long ago said: "All-powerful money gives birth and beauty."—[Philadelphia Ledger.

NATURE'S PERFECT SEPULTURE COPIED

Unique Construction of California Mausoleum Company's Beautiful Buildings Alone Makes This Possible

Those to whom a decent, fitting—and above all, natural disposition of the bodies of their beloved dead appears as a sacred charge, will find their requirements met to the full in the magnificent and stately buildings of the California Mausoleum Company. All Mausoleums are not alike—far from it. The enduring "Chaste Temples" erected by this Company at Hollywood and Inglewood are constructed under patent rights, embodying a unique dry air circulation to each individual crypt—a system impossible to equal under ordinary methods of construction. This permits the operation of Nature's own method in taking to herself the deserted mortal garments of those who have passed away; desiccation, evaporation and gradual attrition.

Contrast this age-old, reverent and sanitary method of the disposal of the dead with grave burial — or crypt-burial even, where ordinary methods of construction are followed. There is a vast difference.

The only way one can get an adequate idea of the beauty, dignity and permanency of crypt interment, where to proper Mausoleum and crypt construction has been added a discriminating sense of fitness in architecture and surroundings — and all of these have been perfectly worked out—is to visit one of these superb buildings and get an impression at first-hand. The short trip may be taken by automobile, by telephoning the offices of the Company, MAin 1534, or if one prefers to make the visit alone, the Mausoleums are open to visitors daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The building in Hollywood Cemetery may be reached by street car very conveniently, it overlooks the lake in the center of which is the artistically famous Clarke Memorial Mausoleum, and is a fitting companion structure to it.

Illustrated booklets may be had by communicating with the offices of the Company, 706 Harris Bldg., 110 West 11th St.—[Advertisement.

[illegible] against Dr. Gertrude Steele, naturopath and "beauty [illegible]" as the result of an investigation into the death several [illegible] ago of Mrs. Christina Leslie, an elderly and wealthy [illegible] owner.

Dr. Gertrude Steele

To probe into the facts surrounding Mrs. Leslie's death was [illegible] by the Police Department, the State Board of Medical [illegible] and the District Attorney's office, working in harmony with [illegible], these three law enforcement agencies brought to [illegible] not only the circumstances surrounding Mrs. Leslie's death but [illegible] an investigation into [illegible] in which persons are [illegible] mutilations for life, [illegible] in their quest for beauty.

NO MEDICAL LICENSE

Mrs. Leslie, who resided at 1251 Normandie avenue at the time of her death, was one of those victims of perpetual youth and beauty. Born of advancing years [illegible] 67 years of age—were [illegible] upon her features. For [illegible] of one hundred and [illegible], Dr. Gertrude Steele, [illegible] advertised head of the [illegible] Surgery Institute, [illegible] to restore to her cheeks [illegible] of youth, it is declared [illegible] investigators.

They told of a score or more persons who reported that they had been mutilated and disfigured for life by Dr. Steel's facial lotions and by her scalpel. Some of these patients sued for damages. Some reached the courts, while other suits were settled out of court.

All this information was laid before the District Attorney yesterday. Dep. Dist.-Atty. Dennison and Dep. Dist.-Atty. Harold Davis reviewed the evidence as presented by the investigators. Subpoenaes were issued for seven witnesses and today, at 2 p.m., the county grand jury will hear their stories.

LUDLOW ON JOB AS AIDE

Chief Engineer of Harbor Returns at Old Salary But as Second in Command

[illegible] E. Ludlow, formerly chief harbor engineer, returned to work [illegible] at his old salary but in the capacity of assistant harbor engineer at a meeting of the Harbor Commission Saturday. A few hours after the offer was made public Mr. Ludlow accepted, expressing satisfaction at the time that harmonious relations apparently had again been established among the harbor commissioners.

There were rumors yesterday that Harbor Commissioner Walter B. Allen would resign, as a result of the reinstatement of Engineer Ludlow in the department. Commissioner Allen brought about the summary dismissal of Ludlow and the commissioner gathered testimony which he presented at last week's hearing in an effort to show that Ludlow had made costly blunders, errors of judgment in harbor engineering matters.

It is expected that the major construction projects temporarily halted by the dismissal of Mr. Ludlow will be resumed under his supervision in very short time. Mr. Ludlow indicated yesterday

COMPROMISE IS AIM ON TRAFFIC

Downtown Association and Commission Confer

Opinions Differ on Hours for Parking Ban

Twelve Proposals in Butler Report Are Approved

The first conference between the Traffic Commission of Los Angeles city and county, and the Downtown Association tending to a mutual agreement on necessities for revised and simplified traffic legislation, was held yesterday at the University Club.

Representing the Traffic Commission were Paul Hoffman, president; Dr. Miller McClintock, traffic consultant; Harold Ryerson, secretary; Leslie Williams, Attorney David Faries, Alfred Adams, Maj. O. C. Wyman and C. R. Snethen.

The Downtown Association was represented by C. C. Colyear, president; Capt. John D. Butler, traffic consultant; W. A. Graham, secretary; Attorney E. J. Fleming, Dain Sturgis, O. B. Burdick, Vaughn Bell, H. C. Braden and H. J. Wambold.

COMPROMISES PLANNED

Some difference of opinion was expressed by representatives of the organizations as to the wisdom of prohibiting parking in the downtown section from 7 to 9 a.m., and further compromises were planned in an effort to come to an agreement on hours to be devoted to the delivery of freight. General approval was given to the recommendations of the Downtown Association as expressed by Capt. Butler in the following report:

There are a number of contributing causes to the present unsatisfactory conditions, that are purely matters of operating detail, and to us are of considerable importance in alleviating congestion. Any discussion tending to the solution of the problem involving street-car and automobile congestion would not be complete, if their shortcomings as well as those of the authorities charged with the direction of the operation of such vehicles, are omitted.

Therefore, in order to get this matter before you for discussion, and again assuring you that we do so in the most friendly manner, and with the sole object of bettering downtown congestion for all concerned, we offer the following tentative recommendations:

PROPOSED REGULATIONS

(1.) Such rerouting of westbound street cars on Second street as will enable the conversion of that street into a one-way street.

(2.) That Third street be converted into a one-way street as a companion street to Second street, the direction on each street to be governed by the most feasible plan.

(3.) That raised loading platforms for street-car passengers be erected wherever practicable at heavy loading points in the congested area.

(4.) That the standards carrying instructions as to the direction of vehicles at intersections display arrows indicating direction a vehicle may take, instead of the reading matter now displayed, and that such standards be displayed at all times when such rules regulating right and left turns are in effect.

(5.) That the practice of allowing motorists to indiscriminately pass to the left of safety zones be discouraged, and that they be allowed to pass to the left only upon permission of the traffic officer.

(6.) That a loading zone sufficient in length to accommodate at least ten delivery vehicles be established in front of and adjacent to the Grand Central Market on Hill and Broadway, other vehicles to be barred between 7 and 10 a.m., or longer if necessary.

ENFORCEMENT URGED

(7.) That the police department be requested to more strictly enforce the forty-five-minute parking restrictions, and also the provision against second-line parking.

(8.) That we urge the completion of Fifth street at the earliest possible moment in order that the congestion at Sixth and Figueroa streets may be at least partially relieved.

(9.) That we urge such regulations as are necessary to control the opening of manholes in the

DIVORCE-GIVING DOCTOR IS TAKEN IN FRAUD NET

Michael Crespo, Student of Occult, Nabbed While Taking Money for Ready-Made Mexican Decree

Dr. Michael Angelo Crespo, B.S., M.S., Ph.D., debonair graduate of two universities and deep student of occult and other sciences, and who for the past several months has been dispensing ready-made divorce decrees to all comers from a suite of offices in the Bryson Block, was arrested last night on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

The arrest culminated an investigation by City Prosecutor Friedlander and The Times, following the appearance of fraudulent advertisements in several local papers.

Crespo's seizure occurred as he still held in his hand $200 in marked bills which had been given to him a moment before by two Times reporters for the purpose of obtaining a divorce for a supposed Mr. and Mrs. Merle Carroll Richards under Mexican law and through an asserted conspiracy with Mexican officials whereby all statutes regarding residence, grounds and appearance in court could be temporarily abrogated.

HINT OTHER CHARGES

The money paid to him, Crespo had said, would have been used to not only purchase the services of necessary officials to achieve his purpose, but also the testimony of witnesses.

In addition to the complaint charging the obtaining of money under false pretenses, it was indicated by the prosecutor last night that others charging violation of half a dozen State statutes and as many city ordinances would follow. These include, he said, asserted violations of statutes covering the operations of clairvoyants, drugless healers, spiritual mediums, spiritualist churches, the State Medical Practice Act, statutes governing the registration and practice of attorneys and their agents, the dispensing and sale of drugs, love philters, charms, tokens and other paraphernalia of occultism, massage parlors—and other things in which Crespo, as doctor of philosophy and "miracle man" has apparently been doing a wholesale business of late.

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS

The plans of the prosecutor, it was announced, call for an immediate chemical analysis of the contents of numerous capsules which the "doctor" has been peddling at $2 a box; a searching inquiry into his methods of drugless healing which caused him to advertise that "after your health is gone and your doctor has given you up, call or write Dr. M. A. Crespo, B.S., M.S., Ph.D., famous gifted healer who has healed thousands and performed miracles."

Among the doctor's papers, the prosecutor found a list of clients numbering into the thousands, who in the majority of cases had given him $2.00 each that their future history might be foretold by the crystal or by intercession with celestial beings.

There was also found correspondence indicating that the "doctor" had planned shortly a great extension of his already large plan of operation; but that he hoped to establish such a volume of business through his overnight divorces that the majority of attorneys specializing in that line of court work in Los Angeles county would be forced into idleness.

ADMITS ACTIVITIES

In a statement made to the City Prosecutor shortly after his arrest, Crespo admitted the majority of his activities. That he realized the scope of his operations was indicated in his first remark following the announcement that he was under arrest:

"Well, you got me good this time!"

In his statement Crespo admitted birth in Porto Rico, an age of 32, graduation as a bachelor of science and as a master of science at the University of Porto Rico, and obtaining a degree of Doctor of Philosophy at the University of Oskaloosa, Oskaloosa, Iowa. He said that he had studied medicine under a brother who was a registered physician in Porto Rico; and that he had studied law and practiced to some extent while in the office of another brother who was an attorney there.

He came to Los Angeles, he said, about a year ago, after a three-year period in San Francisco in which he had alternately practiced drugless healing and taught Spanish in the Howard Mann Junior High School there.

After arriving here, he said, he opened offices at 115½ North Main street. Owing to a mixed parentage of Spanish and Italian, coupled with a knowledge of the customs of both races, he soon established a considerable clientele in his various arts.

Through the National Independent Spiritualist Association, he procured a certificate indorsing him as a spiritual medium. Later he organized a "church" of his satellites under the same organization, and culminated his spiritualist efforts by being ordained a minister by the association.

Thus to his professed clairvoy-

WIDOW ACCUSES WOUNDED MAN

Mystery Shooting Victim in Detention Ward

Police Say Woman Charges Attempted Attack

Also Claim She Confesses Firing Two Shots

Leo Mantell, reticent victim of a mystery shooting September 30, last, was transferred to the detention ward of the General Hospital last night on a charge of attempted criminal attack.

The order to place Mantell under arrest came from Detective-Lieutenants Hamilton and Jarvis shortly after they had taken into custody Mrs. Louise Reson, a pretty 26-year-old widow, on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. The detectives declared the woman confessed to them she had shot Mantell at her apartment at 2258 West Twenty-sixth Place after he had choked her and attempted to attack her.

Mrs. Reson told them, the detectives said, that she met Mantell at a downtown dance hall on the evening of September 28, last, and that after the dance hall closed he suggested that she accompany him to a cabaret.

GO TO CABARET

She consented, she said, and Mantell got his automobile and produced a quart of liquor. They then drove to a cabaret where they drank and danced, according to the woman's story to the detectives. Later they went to her apartment.

There, according to the detectives, Mantell seized the woman, who weighs but eighty pounds, and choked her unconscious. When she came to, she told the officers, she succeeded in reaching the revolver which she had kept under a pillow.

When Mantell attempted to attack her, she told the officers, she threatened him and then fired twice. One bullet lodging in Mantell's groin and the other just below his heart, according to the detectives.

REFUSES STATEMENT

Then the victim, according to her story to the detectives, staggered to his car. He drove to his home at 451 South Bixel street and was carried in by two women and a man whom he had asked for assistance.

Detectives summoned to his home were unable to obtain any statement from Mantell. He was treated at the Receiving Hospital and later removed to the General Hospital in a critical condition. Since then he has been recovering slowly.

BRILLIANT SCENE MARKS LOCAL OPERA OPENING

Beautiful Gowns Offer Picture of Rare Beauty

BY JUANA NEAD LEVY

Forming a picture of rare loveliness the grand opera at Philharmonic Auditorium last evening opened in a blaze of glory, with all society and her sisters, cousins, aunts, and beaux-gallants in attendance. Many beautifully-appointed dinner parties at the Biltmore, California Club and at the homes of the hosts preceded the long-looked-for and much-talked-of event while many of the hosts followed the easier plan of supper parties after the opera at club or hotel. The scene in the Auditorium was one of unusual beauty, the entire audience appearing in full dress, rivaling the famous Diamond Horseshoe of Gotham's Metropolitan Operahouse on its opening night of grand opera.

Among the many noticed in the exquisitely-gowned throng of enthusiastic music lovers who attended were Mrs. Dean Mason in an imported gown of black lace with wrap of fur, and her guests, Mrs. George J. Denis, in a French creation of moonlight green and silver, with insets of the shimmering silver and pearls, and Mrs. William A. Bryon in a gown of pale blue beaded in gold and blue over a yellow slip. Her wrap was an exquisite white shawl trimmed with white fox fur.

Mrs. Joseph Francis Sartori wore a green velvet gown with wrap of gray.

Mrs. Russell McDonnell Taylor was attired in a gown of white crepe de chine embroidered heavily in crystals and pearls, her wrap of ermine fur completing the costume.

Mrs. Lee Allen Phillips wore a gown of white brocade beaded with wrap of black velvet trimmed in broad bands of fur.

Mrs. Catesby C. Thom wore an imported gown of white Chantilly lace and pearls, a wrap of turquoise and ermine fur trimmings.

Mrs. Thomas J. Fleming wore an imported black jetted gown and a mole fur wrap.

Mrs. Thomas L. Duque was in a gown of lavender chiffon beaded in flowers and leaves and wore a

Real Voices and Real Art and Real Music

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

Real voices; real art; real music—that is the summing up of the first presentation under the auspices of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association.

The series of performances, which opened last night with "Andrea Chenier," promises to make musical history, and to begin fulfillment of the cherished dream for a permanent institution combining the beauty of song and melody, with the radiant spectacle of stage action.

The first venture has been taken, and has attained the impression of a superior achievement and, judging from the quality of the first audience, is attracting an interest more noteworthy than any similar event in years.

Philharmonic Auditorium, where the production was given, assumed a metropolitan aspect that outdid practically any occasion in the past. There seemed more of social elaborateness, more gorgeousness of raiment, even to an amazing display of the much neglected full dress suit and silk hat, to indicate that the full formality of the operatic function was observed.

HOPES REALIZED

The project of presenting opera with an organization formed right in Los Angeles has been occupying the attention of many prominent citizens now for many months, and the opening production was for them the realization of a very definite ambition. They had co-operated with the founders of a similar enterprise in San Francisco, aiming to bring forth an establishment that would mean something not only for a single series of performance but also for the future, and the popular reception indicated that they have gone a vast way toward the goal. The opening opera in many respects compared more than favorably with the performances offered even by so well equipped an organization as the Chicago Grand Opera Association.

UNIQUE HOMAGE TO OPERA

Homage declared unique in its enthusiasm in operatic annals of the West, if not the country, last night was vouchsafed the premiere of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Company at Philharmonic Auditorium.

It was the most brilliant audience, and the most ardent reception, that has attended a musical event in the Southland's history, according to the patrons and backers of the opera. Furthermore, in the words of Merle Armitage, business executive of the opera venture, the engagement marks the first time "that opera has ever paid in the United States — the first time that opera has not encountered a deficit."

Fifth street, between Hill and Olive streets, last night was a sea of people, enthusiasts and lovers of opera who were hopeful of gaining admittance to the Auditorium. But the box office announced itself sold out nearly an hour before the curtain went up.

Los Angeles' own opera, that is to say, its own operatic venture with a local chorus and local orchestra—the Philharmonic—everything concerned being native to the city except the principals, drew the support and appearance of society members, officialdom and inhabitants of the world of music, in an array that packed the Auditorium with its seating capacity of 3000.

The congestion of traffic in front of the Auditorium barely permitted the approach of costly limousines to the street in front of the foyer. It was a spectacle of luxury giving due honor to music of the degree intellectual. Women in costly garb, ashimmer with jewels and distinguished by their furs, provided a sort of fashion pageant as they alighted from their motors and passed into the theater.

U. Giordano's opera, "Andrea Chenier," a vocal drama of the French Revolution, was the opening attraction of the company, with such superlative principals as Beniamino Gigli, tenor of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, who succeeded Caruso; Giuseppe de Luca, superb baritone, and Claudia Muzio, acknowledged among the great sopranos.

Before the auditorium proper was darkened and the stage itself illuminated for the initial scene of the opera, the packed rows of music lovers and the boxes filled with notables, presented something impressive in the way of an audience. Every box and a good proportion of the seats, from orchestra to top balcony, had been reserved.

Tim Healey, manager of the opera company, said smilingly that it was an omen of similar audiences during the week the company will appear, before "Traviata" closes the engagement and the songsters of the classics depart for the open-

OPERA FOR TONIGHT TO BE 'MANON'

Famous Work of Massenet to Find Tito Schipa and Sabanieva in Leads

Tonight's performance by the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association at the Philharmonic Auditorium will be "Manon," an opera in five acts. It was written by Jules Massenet and was first produced in Paris in 1884. The first American production was in 1885 in New York, and since it has been in the repertoires of all modern opera companies.

Singing the leading roles will be Tito Schipa, tenor of the Chicago Grand Opera Company; Thalia Sabanieva, soprano, and Millo Picco, baritone of the Metropolitan Operahouse.

There will be no performance tomorrow night, but Thursday evening the popular "Romeo and Juliet" will be given, with Benjamin Gigli, tenor; Thalia Sabanieva, soprano, and Millo Picco and a large supporting cast.

Following is the cast of "Manon":

Le Chevalier Des Grieux	Tito Schipa
Manon Lescaut	Thalia Sabanieva

Le Comte Des Grieux	Francesco Seri
Guillot Morfontaine	Ludovico Oliviero

during its several recent visits to Los Angeles.

To be sure, there is not yet in the ensemble that unity of purpose and effort, that molding of the details of the performance older organizations achieve, nor in all aspects the spirit that they bring to a work, but there was the budding indication of these things, and in addition a generally excellence growing largely out of splendid principal singers, that meant much for the effect upon the audience.

The evening was practically won for the company when Beniamino Gigli sang his dramatic aria in the opening act, and throughout the evening he shone forth as the particularly scintillant hero.

CHORUS PRAISED

Gigli, Claudia Muzio and Giuseppe de Luca were the featured stars of the production, under the system which is embodied in the opera association's program, namely, bringing the leading singers for the operas presented from the East.

The orchestra is composed of Philharmonic members, the high degree of perfection to which this ensemble has been brought furnishing a good foundation for any undertaking of this kind. The chorus was locally assembled, and has been rehearsing for several months, and appears astonishingly well-routined in the business of the stage, as well as giving an exceptionally good account of themselves as to voice.

The only important fault that I would find with the performance as a whole was a certain lack of cohesion between the principals and the chorus. They did not at all times seem to mingle in a unified stage picture. This is to be expected, however, in view of the very short association that they had together before actually taking part together in the work. With another performance it is probable that this defect will be eradicated.

The orchestra began, perhaps, just a little uncertainly, too, but acquired power as the production went forward, and Gaetano Merola, who has been a moving force in the whole enterprise, as well as being conductor, merits especial commendation for the character of his work. I feel that he has shown a very distinct improvement with the better organization over what he accomplished during some of his past associations, say with the San Carlo.

ILLUSION SUSTAINED

The general impress of the production was in most respects colorful and brilliant—sufficiently so at all times to sustain the interest very agreeably, and without the intrusion of any appreciable minor blots that mar the effect of so much grand opera given under difficult conditions. This freedom from the usual exasperating minor circumstances is due chiefly, I feel, to the effort at building the grand work for the opera here, and having the authority of really prominent singers to lend an imposing grace to the entire structure. The outstanding result was that the illusion was sustained in its really metropolitan charm and excellence.

"Andrea Chenier" is not a work that arouses the strongest stimulus as a work, but it has a spectacular appeal that suits it well as a premier attraction. It has pageants and mob scenes that afforded especial opportunities to the chorus, and disclosed well, therefore, the fruits of their training. Its music and general appeal seem to me somewhat greater than that of "Fedora," which is the most familiar work among the others by the composer, Giordano. It is at the same time more taxing on the resources of an organization, because of its demands not only for acting and voice in the cast of the principals, but also for a generally well-rounded ensemble, and direction that detect the beauties that at times flare rather brightly from the musical score.

ALL BOWS TO MUSIC

The background for the work is the French revolution, and the events, which after the usual fashion of grand opera turn out to be tragic, center around the title character, noted historically as both a poet and patriot. There is much incidental politics that is talked about, and a mob scene or two that might make D. W. Griffith or Rex Ingram a little jealous, but after all these events have to give way sooner or later to the music, and particularly the arias of the romantic hero and heroine, and their duets, as well as several ensemble numbers that were well sung either by the whole chorus or by groups thereof.

Gigli's importance in the success of the performance can hardly be overestimated, since it meant so much for an excellent beginning. I don't know whether it is his voice or the fine measure of enthusiasm that he puts into his singing that means more. Certainly he has the immense power of a real dramatic tenor. He is one of the finest, in fact, to have been heard here in many seasons. He is not a Caruso, but his individuality of style, though he will never probably attain the summit that the "world's greatest tenor" did, entitles him to an especial approbation, and will contribute more and more, I feel, to his fame. There was a striking dramatic emphasis to every measure he sang that was compelling last night, and at times truly thrilling.

Miss Muzio was just a little disappointing in the early part of the performance, because she did not seem quite to find her voice. In the latter part there was a fuller and more complete revelation of its beauty. That beauty is of the rarest and richest type when it is completely revealed. In addition to which, she is a very lovely presence, with esprit especially in the episodes of romance.

The baritone voice of Giuseppe de Luca was excellent to hear even in a role which early in the evening did not afford him any great chance for vocal display except in his aria just after the first curtain. He attains a rare evenness in his song, a fine balance of quality, and imbues his scene with a rounded dramatic interest.

Very special praise also belongs to Ruth Shaffner and Myrtle Davis Aber who filled two of the lesser but very important roles. Miss Shaffner was particularly capable in her acting and her voice also rang forth with exceptional clarity. One can foresee an operatic future for her already.

A little unevenness marred Miss Aber's work at times, but her voice evidenced attractiveness.

Other roles were filled effectively by principals both brought from the East and residents, credit going to Francesco Seri, Louis d'Angelo, Paolo Ananian, Lodovico Oliviero and Leslie Brigham.

Armando Agnini's stage direction is to be commended, as is also again the excellent direction of Mr. Merola, the only detracting feature being his occasional overemphasis of the brass instruments that had a tendency to lessen the effectiveness of some of the singing. He was called to the stage to receive huge tributes of applause, and was indeed a figure of the occasion.

Both Claudia Muzio and Gigli received notable ovations, in one or two of which de Luca shared.

Alexander Bevani, who rehearsed the chorus here, was also given a big tribute of applause, as was Judge Benjamin F. Bledsoe, president of the association, when he made a speech between the third and fourth acts commending the work of those engaged in the enterprise.

I should mention incidentally that this was the first presentation here of "Andrea Chenier" in all of twelve years, the last having been by the Western Metropolitan. The work has only lately been reinstated in the repertoire of the opera organizations in the East.

It goes without saying that there will be a great interest in Massenet's "Manon" tonight.

VINDICATION

A very dignified looking gentleman stopped at a Park Row news stand and purchased two very staid, conservative newspapers, and an extremely literary monthly magazine.

He paid for them—but after a moment's hesitation asked in addition for a certain monthly bearing a decidedly zippy title.

It seems that he must have sensed something of the inconsistency of his purchase and felt that some kind of explanation was due—even to so unliterary a fellow as the particular newsdealer in question.

"Er—I hope," he said, as he laid down the necessary amount for the magazine, "that you don't think I read this paper. Er—I'm just a contributor."—[Judge.

BOY'S BODY IN SEA SEEN AS MURDER

Missing Youth is Washed Ashore Bearing Evidence of Foul Play

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Oct. 6.—Police here are investigating suspected foul play in the death of an unidentified youth who disappeared from the launch Moose two weeks ago while the little craft was en route from Pine-avenue Pier to a fishing barge three miles off shore. The youth, the only passenger on the trip, was missing when the boat arrived at the barge.

Attendants on the boat at the time told police that they were in the pilot house during the trip and did not see the youth after they left the pier. When they tied up at the barge he was missing.

This morning the body came ashore on the west beach. Police who investigated were surprised to discover a loaded revolver in one of the pockets and also to find two front teeth missing. The agent who sold the man his ticket for the trip to the barge, declares that the youth had a roll of money in his possession and that he is sure no teeth were missing. From the condition of the body, police believe it is possible that the youth may have been beaten up preceding his death.

Thus far no identification of the body has been made, a laundry mark furnishing the sole clew. The body is at the Patterson & McQuilkin chapel.

ing of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company in New York.

Following the opera last night, members of the company were guests at an informal reception at the Biltmore given by the executive committee of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Company.

The opera stars were welcomed by a crowd of several hundred persons when they arrived yesterday morning via the Southern Pacific.

After posing for a battery of photographers the singers were escorted by a squadron of motorcycle officers to the Biltmore.

The singers came from San Francisco, where they have been appearing for the past two weeks. Those making the trip were Gaetano Merola, conductor; Beniamino Gigli, tenor of the Metropolitan Grand Opera; Thalia Sabanieva, soprano, and Giuseppe de Luca, baritone of the same company; Claudio Muzio, soprano and Tito Schipa, tenor of the Chicago Grand Opera Association. Others from these two companies and the Bay City organization included Jose Mojica, Millo Picco, Lodovico, Oliviero, Louis d'Angelo, Paolo Ananian, Francesco Seri, Myrtle Donnelly, Margareta Bruntsch, Anna Young, Rene Lazelle, A. Frediani, Rhoda Dubain and Albertini.

The official welcome was extended by United States District Judge Bledsoe, who is president of the local opera association.

The crowds surging toward the box office paid scant attention to the rain. The lobby light went out three times before the performance began, causing some confusion. In the jostling, many women droppe dtheir purses and then there was scrambling to recover their possessions. Newspaper photographers were present, the boom of their flash guns adding to the excitement of the occasion. Yet, throughout the discomfort caused by the rain and the jostling, the crowds maintained a general good humor.

Mr. Ludlow also disclosed that he is to be one of the principal speakers at the annual convention of the National Association of Port Authorities, which convenes here on the 13th inst. for a three-day session.

The members of the Harbor Board are trying to secure the services of a nationally known engineer to take the position of Harbor Engineer, and President Colden of the board admitted yesterday that Gen. George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, had been mentioned as a possibility for the place. Gen. Goethals was in Los Angeles recently as consulting engineer for the county's flood-control projects, and has returned to New York.

It is said that Gen. Goethals is preparing to return to Los Angeles to remain here permanently. It is considered likely that he will establish engineering offices here. If he would not care to devote his entire time to the city as Harbor Engineer, he might accept a position as consulting engineer for the harbor, or after a year's residence might be willing to become president of the board. This latter position carries no salary. So far as is known, Gen. Goethals has not been approached on the subject.

VENICE, Oct. 6.—O. D. Williams, proprietor of the City Club Apartments, heard a noise in his hallway early today and looked out to see two men carrying out a trunk belonging to one of his guests.

Among the conveniences of the place is a resident policeman, Detective Johnson of the Venice force living in the apartments. Williams roused him from slumber and they pounced on and captured D. R. Veyos and Pete Weeds as they were about to drive away.

The men, police say, had trunks stolen from a hall closet in their truck. They were booked on suspicion of burglary.

STEEN DENIES ATTACK STORY

Last Defense Witness Tells of Automobile Ride

Declares Force Was Not Used Against Mrs. Hanley

Jury Expected to Get Case by Noon Today

Taking the witness stand in his own behalf, Robert D. Steen, young real estate operator, yesterday denied in Judge Keetch's court that he criminally attacked Mrs. Helen Hanley, wife of a Hollywood automobile salesman, the morning of June 29, last.

Steen was the last witness for the defense and, after the State adduced short rebuttal testimony from Mrs. Hanley, both Defense Attorney Lewis Powell and Dep. Dist.-Atty. Ostrom announced they were ready to begin arguments to the jury. Each side asked two hours in which to present arguments, and with the court taking a recess to read instructions, the case probably will be submitted to the jury by noon today.

SAYS SHE ASKED RIDE

Step by step, Steen told the jury his version of the asserted attack upon Mrs. Hanley. He first saw her about 1 o'clock in the morning of June 29, while he was returning home in his automobile from Lankershim, he said.

Mrs. Hanley was walking south on Western avenue near Santa Monica Boulevard, Steen testified.

"How did she first attract your attention?" asked Attorney Powell.

"She walked to the curb, put up her hand and I stopped," replied Steen. She asked me if I would take her home. I replied 'certainly.'"

STARTED FOR BEACH

Mrs. Hanley then got in the car, according to Steen, who stated he started driving south on Western avenue. Steen said he asked Mrs. Hanley where she lived and she gave no definite answer. He testified he suggested they drive to the beach and she agreed to this.

"Mrs. Hanley told me she had been walking three or four miles," said Steen. "She said she had been at a party at her sister-in-law's—that she had had a quarrel with her brother. She seemed very hysterical and excited over something. I proceeded to drive on Pico street. In the meantime she asked me to turn onto a side street. She gave no reason for this request."

DENIES FORCE USED

Steen testified he continued to drive out Pico street until the car reached a point about five blocks west of the end of the Pico-street car line. Here, he said, Mrs. Hanley told him she had changed her mind about going to the beach, that she wanted to go home. Accordingly, the witness continued, he turned off the highway with the intention of returning to the city. When they were about a block from Pico street, Steen said, he stopped the car. He stated he did not know whether he or Mrs. Hanley made the suggestion that they stop.

The witness denied Mrs. Hanley's statements that she screamed and fought for freedom, or that he choked her into remaining in his automobile. At the time she got into his car, he said, there were several other automobiles passing on Western avenue, and they also encountered several cars during the drive out Pico street. The witness admitted he had had "four or five drinks" two or three hours before meeting Mrs. Hanley, but he expressed the belief he was not intoxicated.

FIGHT DESCRIBED

Steen also described his asserted fight with Hanley three days after the asserted attack occurred. He said he was awakened by Mrs. Alice Lee Walker at about 10 p.m., and went downstairs and there met Hanley. Mrs. Hanley entered the room and identified him as her assailant, he said.

Steen told the jury he "did not know what it was all about." Hanley was armed, he said, and threatened to shoot him. He took the gun away from Hanley, he testified, adding they then engaged in a fight which terminated in his calling the police.

On cross-examination Steen stuck closely to his story, although he admitted he told the police he had never seen Mrs. Hanley before and that he was in bed by midnight the night of the asserted attack. He said he did not wish to implicate Mrs. Hanley at the time.

STEEN DENIES ATTACK STORY

Law Defense Witness Tells of Automobile Ride

Jury Expected to Get Case by Noon Today

Taking the witness stand in his own behalf, Robert D. Steen, former real estate operator, yesterday denied in Judge Keetch's court that he criminally attacked Mrs. Edna Hanley, wife of a Hollywood automobile salesman, the evening of June 19, last.

Steen was the last witness for the defense and, after the State offered short rebuttal testimony from Mrs. Hanley, both Defense Attorney Lewis Powell and Dep. Dist.-Atty. Ostrom announced they were ready to begin arguments to the jury. There, he said, Mrs. Hanley told him she had changed her mind about going to the beach. She wanted to go home. Accordingly, the witness continued, he turned off the highway with the intention of returning to the city. When they were about a block from Pico street, Steen said, he stopped the car. On cross-examination Steen held closely to his story, although he admitted he told the police he had never seen Mrs. Hanley before that night. He said he was in bed by 10 o'clock the night of the asserted attack. He said he did not wish to harm Mrs. Hanley at the time.

WILLS OF REPUTATION

Mrs. Myrtle Murch, mother of Earl Murch, one of the principal witnesses for the defense, preceded Steen on the stand. She said she knew Mrs. Hanley when she was the wife of Chester Swift, an insurance adjuster of Glendale. She testified Mrs. Hanley's reputation for morality and chastity in the community at that time was "very bad."

The defense also called several character witnesses who testified as to Steen's general reputation.

Charles R. Morfort, associate defense counsel, was scheduled to make the opening argument to the jury for the defense. He will be followed this morning by Attorney Powell and Dep. Dist.-Atty. Ostrom will make the closing appeal for the State.

HAND OF OLD SPAIN SEEN

Nobles of Alfonso's Court Inspect Missions and Other California Legacies from Their Native Land

California's Spanish background has made it stand out among the places visited in this country by the Duke of Alba, personal representative of the King of Spain and the leader of a party of Spanish nobles now visiting in Los Angeles.

"I find myself stepping in the footsteps of many generations of Spaniards here," declared the Duke yesterday as he interviewed press representatives at the home of Douglas Fairbanks in Beverly Hills.

GUESTS OF FILM STARS

The nobleman and his duchess, the Duke and Duchess de Penaranda and the Marquis del Merito, are being entertained by the actor during their stay here. The Marquis de Viana and the Marquis de Coquilla, his son, are at the home of Charles Chaplin. Other members of the party are Ricardo del Merito, brother of the Marquis; Mrs. Martha Hyde of Paris and Senor Antonio Escandon of Mexico City.

In addition to being the Duke of Alba, the nobleman is the tenth Duke of Berwick in England and the Count of Monterey. He is a descendant of James Stuart, of Christopher Columbus and of Gaspardo Acevedo y Zuniga, Viceroy of Mexico, and Count of Monterey. It was this nobleman for whom the Bay of Monterey was named.

The El Camino Real, over the California Hills, the ruins of the old missions, the Spanish names and traditions of the State have a special interest to the Duke. Even the topography of the country might be duplicated in Andalusia, he declared.

PRAISES HISTORIAN

In a tribute to the California historian, Dr. James Lummis, author of "Spanish Pioneers," the Duke of Alba declared this work was a true picturisation of the early Spaniards and had received much recognition in Spain.

"I do not think the Prince of Wales will visit Los Angeles on this tour," the nobleman declared. "We saw him in New York, both of us having come over to witness the polo matches, and at that time he said his plans would compel him to forego a visit to California."

The Duke of Alba is a polo enthusiast and a close friend of the Prince of Wales.

Relics of interest to Americans in the collection of the Duke at Madrid are twenty-two letters of Christopher Columbus and a map of the navigator traced on his visit of discovery to this country. A number of these relics were sent to this country by the Duke for the Columbian Exposition in 1892.

ART PATRON

As chairman of the art committee for the Prado Museum in Madrid, the nobleman is interested in the art of America. He visited the Metropolitan Museum in New York City and will see the Huntington collection here.

On foreign affairs he refused to comment. "I have been away from Spain so long anything I would say would be out of date," he said. But he denied there is any danger of a Fascisti movement in Spain or a Red revolution. "Spain is safe as long as Alfonso lives," he declared.

The size of American newspapers astound the Duke, he confessed. "I read the headlines alone, and collapse," he said.

TAKE UP GUM CHEWING

A habit acquired by almost the entire ducal party since their arrival in this country is chewing gum. The Duke and Duchess of Alba chew it incessantly and declare it is one of the pleasantest discoveries they have made over here. The Duke said yesterday he started it in hopes it would help him cut down on his cigarettes but now finds he smokes and chews at the same time. But he will not give up the habit, he said.

So many suggestions have been made about the entertainment of the visitors here that their program has not yet been definitely decided on. Yesterday they spent at the Fairbanks home and at the motion-picture studios, which aroused their special interest. At the Fairbanks studio a rodeo was put on in the morning for their entertainment.

Other possible trips will be to a camp in Catalina where the men will try deep sea fishing, to an island close by where wild boars may be stalked, or to a lake for duck shooting. In case fishing is not good off Catalina the party may go as far as Turtle Bay in the yacht of S. M. Spaulding, Mayor of Beverly Hills.

TO VISIT GRAND CANYON

The time of departure has not been set, but it will probably be within a week, the Duke declared yesterday. The party then will go to the Grand Canyon, to Detroit, Chicago, Washington, Philadelphia and New York. They probably will sail on November 22.

Six servants, fifty-two pieces of hand baggage and sixteen trunks are included in the equippage of the visitors.

Their trip has been across Canada and down to Victoria, San Francisco and Santa Barbara. The Duke of Alba arrived here by motor from Santa Barbara on Sunday. A part of the party had preceded him.

RESERVE TO USE AIR BASE

Double Squadron Planned for Terminal Island to Keep ex-Navy Pilots in Training

To keep in training, former naval air pilots, the United States Naval Reserve Force is to establish in the immediate future a double-squadron air base at Terminal Island, according to an announcement yesterday by Lieut. Esten B. Koger, acting under the direct command of Commander Woodbine of the second subdistrict.

The site on Terminal Island has been obtained from Los Angeles city. The area involved is approximately one-half mile wide and one mile long. The work of leveling the field started yesterday. Lieut. Koger said the specifications call for putting in a regulation landing field and also runways for seaplanes. Though the field is to be used by the United States Naval Reserve Force it will also be utilized by the Navy as a permanent base.

Capt. Stanford E. Moses of the United States Navy, in command of the fleet air detachment of the Pacific fleet, also has announced that there will be two squadrons based at the Terminal Island Field while the fleet is operating off the Southern California coast.

There are to be stationed at the Terminal Island Field thirty qualified ex-Naval air pilots and yesterday Lieut. Koger requested all former Naval air pilots to communicate with him at 949 West Sixteenth street, telephone ATlantic 8850, or at the Naval Reserve headquarters, 1965 South Los Angeles street, on Tuesday nights.

There will be twelve planes at the Terminal Island Field at the start, which number is to be increased to twenty later on. There also will be the necessary housing for the two-unit squadron as well as the housing for the fleet air detachment and about twelve mechanicians and riggers will be employed at the field.

YOUTHFUL MOTION-PICTURE DIRECTOR VICTIM OF PNEUMONIA

Arrangements are being made for the funeral of James Chapin, 25 years of age, a motion-picture director, who died Sunday night of pneumonia at the home of his father, Frederick Chapin, 1334 Highland avenue. He leaves, besides his father and mother, one sister, Mrs. William Wellman, and two brothers, Frederick Chapin, Jr., 22 years of age, and Jacques Chapin, 16.

Frederick Chapin, father of the director, is a writer. His sister is the wife of another motion-picture director. The funeral services probably will be held at the undertakers of Gates, Crane & [illegible] avenue.

CHARGES WIFE HUGS ANOTHER

Former Chauffeur Accuses Elderly Woman

Files Cross-Complaint to Her Divorce Action

Mentions Letters Couched in Endearing Terms

Charges that his elderly wealthy wife "hugged and kissed" another man were contained in a cross-complaint which Joseph A. Moser, former chauffeur, was permitted to file yesterday to the suit for divorce brought against him by Mrs. Myrna B. Moser, nee Myrna Martindale.

Moser was allowed to file the cross-complaint through a stipulation of attorneys, drawn up before Judge Freeman.

Mrs. Moser instituted her divorce action against her youthful husband several months ago. She charged cruelty, asserting Moser used cave-man tactics in persuading her to give him large sums of money. Moser filed an answer denying her allegations and declaring she had given him the money and an automobile so that he could maintain his social position as her husband.

Moser also filed a suit for $100,000 damages for asserted alienation of affections against Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Heyler of the Ambassador. Mrs. Heyler is the sister of Mrs. Moser.

Moser named Emanuel Cotino of San Francisco as the man he said his wife had "hugged and kissed." He also said his wife had written Cotino a letter addressed "My Dear Emanuel," and which he interpreted as meaning his wife had promised to marry Cotino as soon as she procured a divorce.

On information and belief, Moser asserted his wife had planned to take a trip with Cotino to Alaska. He declared she had permitted herself to become dominated by Cotino to such an extent that he opened her mail. Moser also asserted his wife registered under fictitious names at hotels at the same time that Cotino was a guest at these hotels.

Mrs. Moser is represented by Attorneys Haas and Dunnigan, while Moser's cross-complaint was prepared by Attorney Griffith Jones.

HER AGE IS DISPUTED IN BALM SUIT

She Says Twenty-five, He Forty; Case is Continued Until January

Not until next January will the age of Miss Hazel Page become a matter of court record.

In a suit for $150,000 heart balm against Robert H. Kuhn, who she said failed to keep a promise to marry her, Miss Page gave her age as 25. "Upwards of 40," was Kuhn's estimate of her years in his reply. The case was on Judge Doran's calendar for hearing yesterday, but was continued until January because both principals were out of town.

Miss Page is an actress, and Kuhn is one of the "Four Musical Kuhns." He wrote her more than 1000 burning missives during their engagement, she declared in her suit, wherefore her suit was promptly labelled "the romance of one thousand letters" when it was filed.

Kuhn, in his answer, denied any engagement to marry, setting up as a defense that Miss Page was married to another at the time and therefore in no position to contract new nuptials.

Vollmer's Venue Change Motion Given New Date

Hearing on a motion for a change of venue in the suit for $50,000 damages brought by Mrs. Charlotte M. Lex against August Vollmer, former Chief of Police, was continued yesterday by Judge Freeman to the 14th inst. The court also continued the hearing of Vollmer's demurrer to the complaint to that date.

Mrs. Lex based her suit on allegations of breach of promise to marry and betrayal. Vollmer asked a change of venue on the ground he was a resident of Alameda county at the time Mrs. Lex instituted her action. He demurred to her complaint on the ground it did not contain sufficient facts to constitute a cause of action against him. Although the former Chief has not made legal answer to the suit, it has been reported that he had informally denied Mrs. Lex's allegations.

Asserted "Past" Basis of Man's Divorce Action

When Robert Rinas found out that he had married not only Petra Rinas, but her daughter, a crippled brother and several other relatives, all of whom he was expected to support, according to his suit for annulment, he rebelled.

He found out that his wife had a "past," he declared, and this asserted discovery he used as the basis of his suit, alleging that she had married him fraudulently by failing to apprise him of it.

'PICKINGS' PLAYERS TO BE AD MEN'S GUESTS

Today's luncheon of the Los Angeles Advertising Club at the Biltmore will have less to do with advertising than with the theater. A large part of the Harry Carroll's "Pickings" company from the Orange Grove Theater will be guests of the club and, following the luncheon, will give a program that the club's announcements call "Twenty minutes from Harry Carroll's Pickings." Will Morrissey will head the delegation from the Orange Grove.

ON THE JUMP

A strange animal brought back from British Honduras walks like an alligator; has an armor like a turtle, but can jump six feet. Sounds like a guy that could cope with this Ford traffic.

THE DEPOSITORS

There are now over $50,000,000,000 of deposits in American banks and it doesn't all belong to Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller, either. Day by day in every way the average American is becoming more and more of a depositor. Sometimes people of small account may have a good-sized one at the bank.

THE BIG VOTE

The total registration in Los Angeles county will exceed 610,000 voters, according to the best available compilation. If they would only turn out in full on election day this county alone could promise Calvin Coolidge a majority of 300,000. As it is, there is every probability that the administration will here receive the largest indorsement furnished by any county in the country. It will take Philadelphia to beat us.

THE ARTFUL DODGER

There was a delicious artistry in the manner in which Georges Clemenceau, the former French Premier, evaded annexation to the Coogan band wagon. He sent a polite note in reply to the Coogan overtures informing the pater that he was not sufficiently celebrated nor did he photograph well enough to meet the illustrious child. This may be said to have closed the incident. The child wonder will lack one "Tiger" in his collection.

THE DOLLAR'S BUYING POWER

La Follette, the demagogue, harps upon the cost of food, fuel and clothing in his talk on labor, but makes no reference whatever to the question of present-day wages of labor. President Coolidge, upon the same topic, says that the "increase in wages has far outrun the advance in the cost of living" and that wages, "as determined by things that money will buy, are higher today than ever before in our history." Any laboring man can figure that out for himself, and it is futile for a demagogue to give him but one side of the question.

AFTER MANY YEARS

Sometimes a man's severest judge is his own conscience. Recently an Alabama man found out that a man whom he shot and supposedly killed in a quarrel nearly twenty-five years ago was only slightly injured and had been laughing at the affray ever since. The man who did the shooting fled the country and took another name. He sincerely believed himself to be a murderer and was afraid to make the inquiries that would have revealed to him the truth. For twenty-five years he has lived in almost daily fear that representatives of the law would find him and tap him on the shoulder. Now he finds that he might have remained in the old town all the time and developed into a respected citizen. His soul has been paying the price for a crime that the body failed to perform.

WHAT MEXICO IS RAISING

Another indication of the way Mexico has settled down into peaceful pursuits is the announcement that the government has allotted 1800 freight cars for the movement of export cotton from the interior through the Tampico gateway alone. The first of those shipments already have passed through Tampico on the way to England, and the announcement says they will continue to arrive there steadily.

The indications are that most of the cotton exported through Tampico is going to Europe—and certainly Mexico is producing great stores of that vital staple which are not going to Europe. But the point is that the agricultural resurge in Mexico is a thing of commanding significance. And where people are interested in raising cotton and cane and other agricultural products they are very loath to start raising hell.

KISSING CONDEMNED

The soviet health commissioner in Russia has abolished kissing—at least he thinks he has. He says that it is insanitary and extremely dangerous at a time when contagious diseases are prevalent. He forbids it as a national menace. This is likely to start a revolution among the peasants. They have been brought up to kiss on the slightest provocation. Even the men folks salute one another heartily on both cheeks whenever they meet. To forbid kissing is like abolishing deep breathing. It is barely possible that this would be a healthier and more virtuous world if all kissing were ended, but this is not to be attained through the proclamation of a health commissioner. So far as America is concerned the combined Army and Navy at present strength would pitifully fail in any campaign of direct action against the kissers of our fair country. The only way it may even be dimmed is by creating the conviction in the female of the species that it is boorish and unfashionable. Even then the girls are likely to fall into a boydenish slump. A kissless world is still remote. The Commune will have its hands full in halting the custom in its own Russia.

BY AIR TO LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles is entitled to a direct air-mail transcontinental service by reason of its dominant position as the metropolis of the West and because the volume of business transacted by mail between this city and the Atlantic seaboard exceeds by a wide margin that of any other possible Pacific Coast terminal.

There is an excellent opportunity right now to secure such a service either by through planes or via a connecting line of daily government mail planes to Salt Lake City. All that is needed is an application of the Los Angeles spirit, which means immediate and sustained co-operative effort along a given line.

This "given line" is to provide each day enough air mail to convince the authorities in charge of the air service that the people of Southern California will appreciate and support such service. This has been tentatively fixed at 300 pounds daily, an amount which should be forthcoming without further reminder. It has already been demonstrated that firms who start sending their important mail by air continue to do so because of the great saving effected even under the present schedule, which calls for overland delivery either to San Francisco or Salt Lake.

Bankers are particularly interested in the movement because the saving in interest on exchange items amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars in the course of the year by reducing the time of transfer from five to two days. Business generally may be materially speeded up by use of the airplane; orders may be advanced and trade stimulated to the strengthening of the whole commercial fabric.

The traffic manager of the air service frankly told the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce when he was here last week that it is possible to get this service if, during the next few months, Los Angeles and its surrounding cities will demonstrate united support by the amount of air mail sent.

This is a simple remedy to apply for the cure of the existing unsatisfactory condition, and The Times hopes that every business house in Los Angeles will go to the bat at once and stay there until victory is assured, by which time the service may be expected to demonstrate its ability to take care of itself by reason of its advantages.

Send as large a volume of air mail as possible every day and report from time to time to the Chamber of Commerce just what this volume amounts to so that an accurate check may be kept and the minimum of 300 pounds daily fully maintained. It is a small thing to do in view of the big returns resulting.

By every statistical basis of computation Los Angeles should be the Pacific terminal of the cross-country air-mail service. The consummation of this inherent right is within our grasp. All that is necessary is to "show 'em," and that's the best thing we do. Get in touch with the Chamber of Commerce, whence the campaign is being directed; rearrange your mail schedule so that important Atlantic seaboard mail is sent by air and don't hide this particular light under a bushel. The chamber will see that the Postmaster-General is properly advised, while the government check as to volume will speak for itself.

Today is the accepted time.

TAKING A FLYER

When the inventors can create a fool-proof flyer it is probable that it will be put into quantity production by Henry Ford. If the heavens get all cluttered up with winged insects with tin livers and gasoline in their veins it will be blamed upon Henry Ford. He has established an aviation field at his Dearborn plant and has a flock of experts studying all kinds of planes. What they are looking for is a glider that will right itself when the pilot weakens. If planes can be made safe against ignorance and incapacity Henry will make them by the million and sell them for the price of a good shotgun. But he figures that he has already done his share of murder with his buzz wagon and, unless a flyer can be made reasonably secure against accident, he will not essay the manufacture. His machines have already taken more lives than were lost in the battle of Gettysburg. So it is safety that he is looking for in the planes.

He thinks the flying industry has been on the wrong tack. The main goals have been speed and long flights. Pretty little hops, hither and yon, at a moderate pace, have more of an appeal to Henry. He wants a nice flyer of fryer size that can be placed in the picnic class. For such a machine millions of people are waiting and the Ford family is likely to supply them when the hour comes. An airplane can be built cheaper than a motor car and there is no upkeep of roads involved in an extension of traffic. That is why Henry is deeply interested. If he can put all America into tin wings he will do it. It is felt that the saturation point for automobiles in America is almost in sight, but the flying game is barely started. It is the mission of Henry to provide the world with cheap transportation and, if he can do it in a heavenly way, why so much the better.

FOREST COVER

More time and more attention must obviously be given the forest-fire problem. Many thousands of acres of California hillsides have been denuded of their cover this season and the consequences, in erosion and in too rapid run-off of water, will prove serious for years to come. The methods of forest-fire fighting in use hitherto, and hitherto fairly effective, have broken down under the test of an unusually dry season and better ones will have to be devised.

If a good stand of good trees could replace the brush there would be less difficulty all around. They would retain more moisture for longer periods and lessen the likelihood of fire, as well as making it easier to fight. But getting the trees to grow on the hills is a difficult problem in the present state of forestry knowledge.

Great storage reservoirs such as the San Gabriel will obviously lessen the danger of fires, a good body of water making the best of fire breaks, but the reservoirs are not yet built and will be some years in building. In the meantime the destruction goes on.

Brush cover has the advantage that it grows quickly; the disadvantages that it is not very effective and that fire spreads quickly in it. It is possible that with more firebreaks and better patrol service the brush may be preserved. Forest cover of some sort is a necessity from an esthetic as well as from a practical viewpoint. Some way of keeping the brush, if that is the best we can have and until we can have better, is the problem that minds must be set to work on.

LET 'ER POUR!

This rain, according to old-timers, is the promise of an old-fashioned "wet" winter.

If so, we shall be grateful; but with this reservation in mind: that the two dry winters have not been in vain. They were also of value; they focused the attention of the people of Los Angeles upon the water situation.

The aroused activity that resulted in the voting of bonds for water conservation found its impetus in the dryness of the past seasons.

Although no crucial water famine developed, it called attention to the fact that Los Angeles is growing more rapidly than the machinery for taking care of the population. There is a day coming when a series of dry winters would cause real suffering in a city of the size that Los Angeles is destined to be.

The dry year vitalized the Colorado River dam project from an academic discussion into a very live issue.

Also, it showed Los Angeles—and Southern California—the importance of getting engineers of the biggest caliber on the job. The result was the employment of Gen. Goethals, the builder of the Panama Canal, as supervising expert over our water conservation projects.

Altogether we have much to thank the dry winter for; but we don't want to have another dry winter to thank.

The old-timers, observing the signs—the quail and the prudent squirrels—find that the little wild people, with their prescience, are preparing for a lot of water this winter.

Let 'er pour!

THEY WILL HAPPEN

An article in The Times last Sunday by Thomas D'Arcy Corrigan, Litt.D., Ph.D., began:

"It was the poet Shelley who wrote; 'A thing of beauty is a joy for ever.'"

This is a little startling, in view of that fact that ever since 1818, when "Endymion" appeared, the literary world has been crediting those words to the poet Keats. But one never can be sure of anything. Witness the Shakespeare-Bacon controversy. And doctors of literature and philosophy constantly are shattering our idols.

However, Solomon or some one equally wise once remarked that mistakes will happen even in the best regulated organizations. Yes, even among doctors of literature and philosophy. And lovers of Keats still may hope that that was merely one of them.

It is most probable that Dr. Corrigan, in his eagerness to write the fine piece he did, got absent-minded for a moment or his pen slipped and he said something he didn't at all intend to say. Keats and Shelley are always associated in the minds of the learned—it is hard to think of one without thinking of the other. Dr. Corrigan may have been thinking of Keats all the time and have been startled worse than anyone else when he saw the article in print.

But it is very comforting, sometimes, for people who can't string initials after their names to be reminded that people who can also are not immune from human accidents. So Dr. Corrigan should console himself with the reflection that he not only wrote a good article, but brought a moment of delighted chuckling to some thousands of newspaper readers—a considerable achievement in itself.

LOOKING FORWARD

It will ultimately take $100,000,000 to put our main thoroughfares in condition to carry the enormous traffic to which they will be subjected. Now is the time to take up the burden. If we know that certain streets will have to be widened in the future we can save millions by doing it or planning for it now. The citizens of today must clear the way for the visions of deep minds. A glance at the lapses of the past will show the importance of now making definite calculation for the needs of the next generation.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

A Poet In Court

Now here is a sample of that British fairness, that stern justice, so often quoted and referred to by our reformers in America. The other day Mr. Bawl, described in the criminal calendar as a poet, was indicted and found guilty of blackmailing and violently assaulting Sir Nathan Wiggins, the South African millionaire. The clerk of the court asked him the usual question, if he had anything to say before sentence was passed on him, when the following dialogue took place (taken from the official report:)

Accused: My lord, I have nothing to say except that I wish that I had hit him harder and more constantly and sent him more insulting postcards. I most enjoyed pulling his beard till the tears came into his eyes, as the cabman did to Mr. Pooter after the East Acton Volunteer ball.

The Judge (starting eagerly:) Mr. Pooter slipped and banged his head on the floor on that occasion, I believe?

Accused: No, my lord. That was at the Mansion House ball.

The Judge (with strong emotion:) So it was. So it was. The charge is dismissed with a caution, Mr. Bawl! I shall be happy if you will dine with me tonight.

Arm in arm the judge and accused went home together. That is what the bond of a common love for Mr. Pooter does for men, winds up a British commentator.

Seipel's Achievements

Dr. Seipel, Chancellor of Austria, who, with the help of Dr. Zimmerman, Mayor of Rotterdam and League of Nations Commissioner, pulled that country out of the slough of after-war despondency, is accused by the aristocracy of Vienna of killing all social glamour by his simple and ascetic life. Dr. Seipel has concentrated on the rehabilitation of Austria and even the greatest opponents of the League will admit that his task looked the most hopeless in Europe at one time and now is in a fair way to succeed. He had no time to revive the prewar glitter of the Hapsburgs to which the Viennese have been accustomed. The very fact that there is a desire for greater brilliancy in the Austrian capital proves that things are going well. And Dr. Seipel may in truth quote the words of Themistocles, who answered the Athenians when taunted by them for his lack of social display: "I never learned how to tune a harp or play upon a lute; but I know how to raise a small and inconsiderable city to glory and greatness."

RIPPLING RHYMES

A GOOD DEED

"One day when I was busted flat," a pilgrim said to me,
"you handed me a stovepipe hat, from tax and duty free; you gave me, too, a doughnut fat, a pannikin of tea.
I traveled with the down-and-out upon that fateful morn;
the fates had scourged me with their knout and I was tired and worn;
I was a bleak, discouraged scout, at whom men gazed with scorn. But with that stovepipe on my head I seemed another guy; I left your home with sturdy tread, resolved to do or die; my pride, which had been trampled dead, would have another try. There's nothing like a stovepipe hat to brace the soul of man; he feels he's an aristocrat and not an also-ran; and to his fears he mutters,
'Scat!' and frames some useful plan. A man must live up to his lid, though he may be a wreck; he cannot through the alleys skid with such a hat on deck and so he makes an honest bid for better things, by heck. And if I've made a seemly pile and dwell in Easy street I owe it to that stately tile you gave me as a treat; it purged my spirit of its bile and put me on my feet." I had forgotten all about the hat of which he told; but often, to the down and out, I've given kellys old, and porringers all heaped with kraut and doughnuts hot or cold. And it is good to meet a wight who talks to me like that, whose feet were headed for the right, whose spirit came to bat, when I equipped him, in his plight, with an old stovepipe hat!

LETTERS TO The Times

Talked to Death

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—[To the Editor of The Times:] At the present time La Follette seems highly indignant at the action of the California Supreme Court in barring his name on the ticket. He says the act of one man on the court has overridden the will of the people.

How about the time that La Follette, assisted by one or two more in the Senate, killed the merchant-marine bill by talking it to death at the close of the session? And if I am not mistaken a majority of the Senate were in favor of it. And La Follette did this very thing on two or three other occasions. His action on these occasions, in taking advantage of some peculiar rule of the Senate, enabled him to block the action of a majority of that body. And yet he dares criticise the Supreme Court for doing their duty of interpreting the law just because the decision was unfavorable to him. H. Y. COOKE.

What Is a Producer?

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Your recent correspondent, W. J. Johnstone, diagnosed another W. J. of national repute as a nonproducer. He supported his irrational claim in his revelation that Mr. Bryan of that ilk produced a portion of his pecuniary assets by the production of a paper and a further enhancement of funds was obtained through Chautauqua chats. It is to be feared that Mr. Johnstone has a very animal-like view of production.

Without any reference to W. J. B.'s politics we recognize in him a man of exalted spiritual aspiration, a community builder of morals and mentality, a man whose doctrines, ably and convincingly enunciated, have inspired many thousands to a higher standard of righteousness and citizenship. Mr. Johnstone, is that not productiveness on a major plane? It is that thinking, planning, designing entity, the soul, that distinguishes immortal man from the brute creation. In the several countries in which I have resided I have found varying political aspects, but I here testify that I have found good Democrats and good Republicans, good Whigs and good Tories, good Conservatives and good Liberals, good Protectionists and good Free-Traders; attention to the soul, the higher power of man, has made them good. Mr. Bryan is going throughout the land in the capacity of an idealist who does not decry brawn and muscle, but who points to the sanctification of these essentials and links them with high-mindedness and exalted ideal, which alone is the salt savoring American or any other national life. America is safe with such producers. FRED GILES.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The Los Angeles Grand Opera Association is going to give some of us a chance to hear grand opera. I say some of us, for the man or woman of moderate means cannot afford to pay the staggering prices even for the worst seats of the house. Los Angeles furnishes the chorus, the orchestra and the music, while but one or two of the principals are first-class artists. If such an arrangement, we are asked to pay such exorbitant prices may well consider the association a failure, for it enables only the rich to hear opera via the radio. We, the poor, shall miss the San Carlo Opera Troupe.

Thanking you in advance for publishing this letter.

Question: When did the teams of the National League first adopt distinctive colors in their uniforms?

C. D. W.

Answer: Until 1882 the teams were permitted to wear uniforms of any color, but in that season a rule was adopted to prevent any two from wearing the same color. It was decreed that the colors of the various teams should be: Chicago, white; Boston, red; Providence, light blue; Cleveland, navy blue; Troy, green; Buffalo, gray; Worcester, brown; Detroit, old gold.

Q.: Was the late President Harding's life insured and if so for how much?

H. K.

A.: The late President Harding carried life insurance amounting to $52,000.

Q.: Why is it that we cannot hear the noise of the earth's rotation?

A. N.

A.: The Naval Observatory says that the earth is a globular mass, rigid as steel, revolving freely in space. There is no friction due to this rotation and no vibration. Consequently there is no noise. The earth is often likened to an immense flywheel and to anyone who has seen a large flywheel of steel revolving silently, but with great rapidity, the comparison is striking.

Q.: Is the consumption of tobacco on the increase?

A. M. E.

A.: The consumption of tobacco in the United States has increased from less than four pounds per capita before the Civil War to 8.5 pounds per capita at the present time.

Q.: What would be the limit of height for a skyscraper?

D. F. R.

A.: The Woolworth Building, New York's tallest skyscraper, is fifty-two stories high and has a foundation which extends 116 feet below the street level. Buildings much taller than this could be built, the limit depending on practical conditions. Probably the tallest building so far seriously proposed was suggested by Bertram Goodhue, well-known architect. He designed an eighty-story building suitable for the site now occupied by Madison Square Garden.

Q.: Are many arrests made nowadays for the crime of counterfeiting?

M. B.

A.: Secret-service agents and men working under their direction arrested 215 persons for note counterfeiting and seventy-six for coin counterfeiting during the fiscal year 1923.

FEET HURT

—change to corrective ..., advises shoe man.

Do you suffer from foot pains after walking or standing? Do you have corns, bunions and other foot troubles?

According to C. H. Fontius, proprietor of the Ground Gripper Shoe Store, these foot troubles are nine times out of ten caused by improperly fitted or incorrectly shaped shoes. These ills can be corrected, says he, by shoes that are properly designed and correctly fitted.

"Many people are suffering from foot troubles because they will not sacrifice pride and give up the smart, but uncomfortable shoes they are wearing," said Mr. Fontius. "But with the increasing foot pains drive many to a Ground Gripper Shoe Store where specialists examine their feet carefully and tell them what their troubles are. Then we show them Ground Gripper Shoes are made to fit Nature's warning and come in plenty of room for the toes, no tight places to cramp the feet and restrict circulation.

"Many visitors are always agreeably surprised to find that Ground Gripper shoes are not ugly. In fact Ground Gripper shoes look much like other shoes and probably would not know you were wearing comfort shoes were it not for the glow of relaxation.

"We have fitted hundreds of men, women and children with these shoes and it is practically every case Ground Gripper shoes instantly relieve pains and nurse unattracted feet back to health again.

"If you have any trouble with your feet, heed Nature's warning and come in for a free foot examination."

Ground Gripper Shoes are sold in Los Angeles on the mezzanine floor of the Seventh and Hill Bldg., corner of Seventh and Hill Sts. In Long Beach at 210 Pine Avenue.—[Advertisement.

The Riddle

Do you like to pore over puzzles and to work out riddles? Then we find their earliest records in the Book of Judges, Chapter XIV, in the one:

"And Samson said unto them, I will now propound unto you a riddle:

What had inspired Samson in seeing in the carcass of a lion a swarm of bees "and honey therewise."

Subsequently, we are told, the Greeks and Romans found pleasure in working out riddles in verse; they applied the name "problems."

TOBACCO HELD NONESSENTIAL

Council Balks at Bill for Weed for Fire Fighters

Refuses to Pay for Rations Issued in Hill Blaze

Nicotine Item Bars Finance Committee Approval

Is tobacco food and a necessity for fire fighters, or is it a luxury?

The City Council's Finance Committee was confronted with this question yesterday afternoon when Fire Chief Scott flashed on Chairman Mushet and Councilman Baker and President Workman, members of the committee, a bill from the Beverly Hills fire department for $331.09 for food furnished the men of that department for fighting the fires in Benedict and other canyons in Santa Monica Mountains. The bills included box luncheas, apples, milk, bread and other eatables, but buried among the materials purchased for sustaining the firemen was tobacco totaling $40.25, and including ten cartons of cigarettes, 100 cigarettes and three cans of tobacco.

CALLED NECESSITY

Fire Chief Blair of Beverly Hills in a letter to Chief Scott said that it was necessary to provide rations for the men who fought the fire.

"Why the tobacco?" asked Chief Scott.

"Why the tobacco?" echoed the Councilmen.

The committee voted "No" on the entire bill as they said that the city of Los Angeles had not incurred it, and Fire Chief Scott said that he had not authorized it. The Chief said that he was appreciative of the work done by the Beverly Hills department, but added it was to save that city from destruction as much as it was to help Los Angeles, and that Beverly Hills should pay its own fire department grocery and tobacco bills.

COST CITY $4500

The mountain fire, which raged from July 28 to August 1, cost the city of Los Angeles about $4500 in addition to the salaries of the several hundred Los Angeles firemen and Mulholland High Way employees who were first called to the fire.

When it became serious more than 300 volunteers were called to assist, and they, as well as the city firemen, were supplied with rations by the city, and where paid 35 cents an hour for their services. The pay roll for the extra men was $4000 and the expense for rations for all of the fire fighters who fought in the burning hills for thirty-six hours without rest was $500. "But there was no tobacco or cigarettes in our bills," said Fire Chief Scott.

Divorce Plea Charges Wife Wasted Money on Search for Film Fame

A wife's burning ambition for fame on the silver sheet which resulted in an unsuccessful venture into the films backed with money derived from the sale of an orange ranch, was mentioned by Frank A. Cotter in a suit for divorce filed yesterday against Dorothy Cotter. The couple were married in Ilwa in 1899, and have a 23-year-old son, the complaint states.

Asserting that he was never able to "satisfy her extravagant demands," Cotter declared he finally yielded to her pleas to back her in her own motion-picture company. He spent large sums of money on her, he says, and finally sold his orange ranch near Fullerton for $40,000 to provide the necessary money.

In the summer of 1922, he charges, she went "on tour," and spent more than $2500. This tour, he says, was in the nature of a reappearance on the stage, she having previously been an actress. All of which, Cotter asserts, constituted cruelty, and is declared to be grounds for divorce.

Cotter declares also that his wife accused him unjustly of associating with other women, increasing his woes to overflowing.

After the sale of the orange ranch the couple moved to Los Angeles where, he asserts, she continued in her extravagant habits.

New Sidewalk for Tunnel to be Asked Today

Property owners in the Second-street Tunnel Improvement District are scheduled to file a petition with the City Council today asking that a sidewalk be built on the north side of the tunnel. There is a sidewalk now on the south side of the tunnel, but property owners in the district declare that one is needed on the north side so that pedestrians will not be compelled to cross traffic lines.

The tunnel roadway is now forty-one feet, and there is a seven-foot sidewalk on the south side. With a seven-foot sidewalk on the north side there will be a thirty-four-foot roadway remaining, which George M. Babcock, managing director of the Business Men's Association, which is urging the improvement, declared yesterday will be ample for four lines of vehicles in the tunnel, two in each direction. The new sidewalk will cost about $3000, it is estimated.

He is expected to explain the system of training provided for in the plan.

SERVICE OF LOCAL SHIP LINE BEGUN

Vessel of California and Eastern Corporation Sails from Bay City

The California and Eastern Steamship Company, owned, operated and manned by Los Angeles men, became a tangible factor in the intercoastal freight field yesterday with the departure from San Francisco of the line's first steamer, the West Katan. Frank C. Hill, president of the concern, announced yesterday that the West Katan, a former unit of the United States Shipping Board fleet, will load a full cargo of lumber for Boston and New York and returning will bring general freight to Los Angeles and San Francisco. She will call here eastbound on the 20th inst.

The West Katan, which has been operated by Swayne & Hoyt in their South American and Australian services out of this port for several years, was purchased by the California and Eastern Steamship Company from the Shipping Board for $227,000. She is considered one of the finest cargo carriers of her type under the American flag, and was built in 1919 at Long Beach by the Long Beach Shipbuilding Company under war-time contract. The West Katan is 410 feet long, with a fifty-four-foot beam and has a displacement of 8800 deadweight tons.

Mr. Hill announced yesterday that negotiations are also under way for the purchase of the three Norwegian steamers, Luise Nielsen, Hanna Nielsen and Niels Nielsen, 10,000-ton sister ships now in tramp service on the North Pacific route. With the growth of trade, Hill said, several refrigerator ships will be added to the fleet. The Shipping Board steamer West Keats, sister ship of the West Katan, has not been purchased by the local company, Mr. Hill said in refuting published reports to that effect.

Annual Cost of Avoidable Fires Fifteen Million

Fires originating from spontaneous combustion cost the people of the United States approximately $15,000,000 annually, according to the estimates of fire underwriters. This large loss is attributed in part to a general ignorance of or indifference toward the danger that lies in materials that might take fire spontaneously.

The insurance department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States calls attention to the fact that there are few materials that will ignite without the application of outside heat, and says that proper precautions will eliminate the danger of these self-starting fires.

The more important commodities liable to spontaneous combustion are linseed, cottonseed and other vegetable oils, animal oils, damp straw and hay, soft coal, charcoal, lampblack and quicklime.

Among the precautions suggested for Fire Prevention Week are the following: Oil-soaked waste and rags should be destroyed as soon as used, or kept in closed metal containers, which should be emptied every day. Floor mops and rags saturated with furniture polish should be kept in covered metal cans.

Straw and hay should not be packed in mows unless perfectly dry. Quicklime, which generates heat in slaking, should be kept in a dry place well removed from woodwork and other combustible material.

Funds for Fifty More Firemen Given Approval

Fire Chief Scott appeared before the Fire Committee of the City Council yesterday and obtained its approval for an appropriation of $61,000 to increase the efficiency of the department. This appropriation will make possible the addition of fifty firemen, effective November 1, next. The extra men are needed, Chief Scott told the committee, because of the large number who are idle due to sickness, injury and vacations. The committee will make its recommendation to the Council today and it is expected that the fund will be made available.

The committee approved the creation of the positions of three second assistant fire chiefs. The assistants, who will be promoted from battalion chiefs, will be J. C. Bailey, F. O. Edwards and B. L. Blake. Bailey will be placed in command of the harbor district, Chief Scott said.

Wife's Divorce Plea Says Mate Tied Her to Bed

"He put her in a pumpkin shell,
"And there he kept her very well."

And to that extent was pumpkin-eating Peter of the jingle had the advantage of Gordon Maxwell Christine of Long Beach. For Christine did not keep his wife, according to the divorce suit of Mrs. Lucille Gertrude Christine, filed yesterday, although it was not because he did not try hard enough.

He tied her to the bed and hid her clothes, Mrs. Christine said, and when she managed to slip her bonds and escape to her mother's home he sent her a large bouquet by way of a peace offering. Continued cruelty made it impossible for her to stay with him, however, she declared.

MRS. WILEY IS GRANTED PROBATION

Husband and Insurance Man Given Sentences in Fake Drowning Plot

Mrs. Belle Wiley, who, with her husband, John Wiley, and W. N. George, former insurance adjustor, was convicted last week of a charge of conspiracy to defraud an insurance company in a fake drowning plot, was granted probation yesterday by Superior Judge Hardy.

Wiley, who was asserted to have been the "victim" was sentenced to three months with the county road gang and George was given a term of from one to ten years in San Quentin prison.

The fourth person accused in the asserted conspiracy, W. J. Hughes, a friend of the Wileys, was acquitted by the jury. The jury recommended leniency for the Wileys.

UNITED VETERANS TO ORGANIZE AUXILIARY

Los Angeles Unit No. 107, United Veterans of the Republic, will organize a ladies' auxiliary as an adjunct to the local branch at a meeting to be held tomorrow night in the Disabled Veterans' Hall at 246 South Hill street. According to word from Commander H. J. L. Atwood of the unit, a charter and indorsements have already been obtained and passed by the veterans inaugurating the auxiliary. The headquarters of Los Angeles Unit have been moved to more spacious offices in suite 406 of the Copp Building. The steady growth in membership is said to have necessitated the move for more spacious quarters.

Tearing Up of New Pavement Called 'Crime'

Councilmen Gregory and Mallard, at yesterday's session of the City Council, denounced as an "outrage" and a "crime" the tearing up of the new pavement on Hyperion avenue in the East Hollywood district by the Southern California Gas Company in order that underground work be done.

"The utility companies," said Councilman Mallard, "don't seem to care how they wreck and ruin new pavements. Something should be done to punish them for ripping open new pavements to do work which should have been done and could have been before the new pavement was laid."

"It is an outrage," said Councilman Gregory, when the complaint of the East Hollywood Improvement Association regarding the opening of the new Hyperion-avenue pavement was read.

Councilman Mallard is at work on a definite plan to compel the utility companies to lay underground lines and conduits in alleys and on the rear of lots so as to protect the pavements.

PLAN "HOUSEWARMING"

Officials Prepare for Branch City Hall Opening

The branch City Hall now being built in the Sawtelle district is nearing completion and the City Council yesterday authorized President Workman to confer with the Sawtelle Chamber of Commerce to arrange the program of exercises at the housewarming for the new branch municipal building, which cost $125,000. No date has been set for the exercises.

DONATIONAL BUS LINE IS RESTRAINED

Temporary Injunction Granted Against Line Operating Here to Venice

Judge Shaw of Superior Court yesterday granted a temporary injunction restraining A. M. King and others from operating a donational bus line between Los Angeles, Culver City, Palms and Venice. The injunction was issued in connection with a suit brought by the Pacific Electric Railway Company, which asserted the defendants were operating the line without a franchise from the State Railroad Commissioner and under the pretext that passengers were not being charged fares.

The court took under advisement a similar suit brought against William J. Henderson and the Community Bus Line.

'Silk Hat Bandit' Trial Postponed by Broken Ribs

Two broken ribs prevented James L. Edwards, so-called "silk hat bandit," from going to trial yesterday in Judge Crail's court. Edwards was injured in a fight in his tank at the County Jail several days ago, and Judge Crail was told he had not yet recovered from his injuries.

The court set the case for the 20th inst., but it is doubtful if it goes on at that time because of the McCoy murder case, which is expected to be on trial then.

After the wedding Mr. Goldwater will bring his bride to Los Angeles and they will make this their permanent home. Mr. Goldwater and his parents left ten days ago for the East.

Among the charmingly arranged dinner parties of recent date were the two given at El Caballero Country Club, Friday and Saturday evenings by Mr. and Mrs. William Boothe Guyton of Irving Boulevard, that of Friday evening being in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Judson C. The bride wore a becoming gown of white georgette crepe, and tulle veil, the bridal bouquet being of orchids and Los Angeles rosebuds. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Virginia Kendall, who wore a frock of lavendar georgette crepe, with large picture hat of tulle trimmed with ostrich plumes and she carried a shower bouquet of yellow blossoms. After an extended wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman will make their home in Chicago.

THE LAST WORD
BY ALMA WHITAKER

THE MALE PREFERENCE

Only once in a while can my men-folk and I agree upon the charms of a motion picture. And I find my men are very normal in their masculine tastes.

It isn't the men who like psychological soul-dissecting, realistic drama, or the social problem plays. And it isn't the men who wax fatuously delighted with the Valentino and John Barrymore "Monsieur Beaucaire" and "Beau Brummel" confections of gallant love-making. In fact, the average man can't stand Valentino and contemptuously wonders why the women fans are so crazy about him.

But when it comes to plays like "The Thief of Bagdad" and "The Sea Hawk" it is the men who rise to enthusiastic delight. Both of them fantastic, both of them featuring male stars, both of them sumptuously impossible and gorgeously romantic.

They love the Thief of Bagdad—a clever, impudent, merry crook, handicapped with never a scruple. They love his audacious villainy in daring to aspire to the hand of the princess and snatching her from the arms of his royal and distinguished competitors. They love his debonnair and consistent merry wickedness.

The only moment during that play when their admiration for him quivers uncertainly is when he falls so hopelessly in love that his contrition goes so far as to make him temporarily meek—and takes his flogging from the guards in abased humility. Gosh, but he ought to have punched them all in the eye, bashed them in the jaw, tripped up the Caliph and made a handsome getaway.

But it all came right later on when things began to get magic. How they love the magic carpet, the charmed crystal, the apple that restores the dead, the cloak that makes the thief (now reformed) invisible at will, the rope that stands straight up in the air on command and, most joyous of all, the magic casket that raises armies by their tens of thousands with the contrite princely [illegible] their head to [illegible] Caliph's enemies.

It is men that [illegible] magic and secret [illegible] That is why they are [illegible] ventors—that faith in [illegible] entifically thought out [illegible] ates telephones and [illegible] talking machines and [illegible] all sorts of things [illegible] seemed magic not [illegible] ago, that would probably [illegible] main in the realms of [illegible] had been left to [illegible] earthy, realistic minds [illegible] believe in Santa Claus [illegible] little girls—and cry [illegible] sham.

Well, I like the [illegible] dad, too—perfectly [illegible] am the mother of [illegible] magic, too, and fairies [illegible] and more than half-[illegible] supernatural wands [illegible] waved and work [illegible] am sort of getting [illegible] see the realistic [illegible] dissecting dramas by [illegible].

I don't specially care [illegible] folk don't like them, [illegible] it is just as well they don't [illegible] Valentino—perhaps it is [illegible] them to years to do [illegible] magic than I've previously given [illegible] and the arch-[illegible] Valentinos and [illegible] is so all-embracing. [illegible] most exquisite [illegible] love-making is [illegible] lited in that respect.

But I am afraid [illegible] Thief of Bagdad and [illegible] Sea Hawk much better [illegible] reform. Oh, well, of course [illegible] Monsieur Beaucaire [illegible] they settle down. I am [illegible] of our tastes are [illegible]

Debate on Power Act Follows Friday Morning Pageant

BY MYRA NYE

Fully 3000 women thronged the [illegible] clubhouses of the city yesterday in initial meetings of various clubs. Music was the favorite theme for programs in virtually every instance.

At the Los Angeles Ebell, John [illegible] Monteith, baritone, delighted his large audience with a recital [illegible] brilliant and charming than [illegible] he had previously given [illegible] club circles. He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Hen[illegible] Robinson, who sustained him [illegible] so song gave a detached [illegible] romance, thus contributing [illegible] to the success. "To Ho" (Franklin Walker) he sang in mad[illegible] from the composer and in [illegible] Irish folk songs Mr. Monteith [illegible] particularly pleasing. In his [illegible] group was "The Nine Penny [illegible]," concluding with "Silva [illegible]." The second group was [illegible] German and Italian by [illegible] and Ganz and the last from [illegible] "Jewels of the Madon[illegible]" (Wolf-Ferrari.)

PRESIDENT CHEERED

The most picturesque group was [illegible] one including: "God Keep [illegible]" by a Los Angeles com[illegible], Cecil Cadx Ellis; "The Smug[illegible]" (Krzeschan;) "I Know [illegible] I'm Going" (Irish) and "On [illegible] Road to Mandalay" (Speaks.) [illegible] William Read was given an [illegible] upon this first formal oc[illegible] of the club. She made her [illegible]'s address for the year, [illegible] subject being: "Achievement [illegible]," and in her introduction [illegible] reviewed the accomplishments [illegible] the fourteen departments which [illegible] given, for the last fifteen [illegible] courses not unlike universi[illegible] extension courses.

[illegible] of the vision of the [illegible]ders, the discernment of past [illegible]idents and leaders; the spon[illegible]neous response of members and [illegible] the vibrant spirit of harmony which [illegible] always prevailed we have phe[illegible]nomenal results," she said.

VISION OF BUILDING

Mrs. Read, continuing, spoke of [illegible] wonderful new club building [illegible] which is yet only a vision but will [illegible] in due time assume substantial pro[illegible] and stand in the near future, the [illegible]ark list belonging to the club [illegible] having been placed in a new zone [illegible] not changing its character. At the [illegible] same time it has increased in value [illegible] almost magically," as Mrs. Read [illegible] put it. Therefore the chances for [illegible] locating at the corner of Wilshire [illegible] and Shatto Place, the location of [illegible] the latter, are few. The building as [illegible] contemplated will be one of fine [illegible] proportions costing nearly a mil[illegible]lion dollars. While continuing to [illegible] carry on this building project and [illegible] it will be the paramount work [illegible] of the present regime, Mrs. Read [illegible] stated.

Others who addressed the club [illegible] were chairmen of departments, [illegible] whose meetings occur this week. [illegible] Some of them today, in the club[illegible]house, Mrs. Charles McKelvey, [illegible] literary section; Mrs. W. S. [illegible] Hart, social science; Mrs. Clyde [illegible] Gates, better Americans [illegible] Gates, Mrs. Samuel G. Putter[illegible]baugh, music; Mrs. Sumner P. [illegible] Hyde, psychology, and Miss Fred[illegible]erika Bensusha, chairman of pro[illegible]grams, was introduced Mr. Mon[illegible].

OPERA IS READ

George MacLennan spoke in be[illegible]half of the fifth series of Philhar[illegible]monic Concerts, which begin Fri[illegible]day afternoon of this week. He [illegible] announced that both the University [illegible] of California and of Southern Cali[illegible]fornia had adopted the courses as [illegible] a part of their curricula for the [illegible] year, as comprehensive and excel[illegible]lent as the performances.

[illegible] than 100 were turned away [illegible] the opening meeting of the [illegible] Reading Club when Dr. [illegible] Nagel read and elucidated [illegible] the story and the score of the [illegible] opera at the Masonic [illegible] on Hollywood Boulevard.

Fashion Exhibit Aimed to Promote Local Industry

Gowns Made in Los Angeles

One of a series of fashion shows exhibiting exclusively gowns made in Los Angeles was conducted by Ann Wilcox for the Woman's City Club in the Friday Morning Clubhouse which proved to be a beautiful setting for an exhibit of such distinction and loveliness. Miss Amy Seerey is chairman of the committee. Miss Wilcox is in the center of the picture. The Chamber of Commerce is co-operating in promoting these shows which is a civic project. R. D. Sangster of the industrial department of the Chamber said in a brief talk at the luncheon that 250,000 women in Los Angeles county had purchased each year $95,000,000 worth of dresses and $21,500,000 of suits made in the East and abroad. Only $3,000,000 has been spent on home-made garments by women. Yesterday was the beginning of a campaign to increase this latter sum in proportion to the larger one.

At the Friday Morning Club a beautifully arranged background of old blue tapestries and blue illuminated globes was the setting for a fashion show of beauty and distinction, with every garment shown made in Los Angeles. There were forty dresses, afternoon, reception and formal evening wear shown. Dances were given by Lillian Guenther, who was never daintier in her blue brocaded party gown sleveless, simple in everything but its marvelous embroidery on the full skirt and a single spray on the bodice. She wore a scarf of apricot tulle. Anna Carson appeared in a solo dance number entitled "Oh, What a Dream of a Hat," which was chic and jaunty. Jane Blake Franklin arranged the music that featured the program and Mrs. E. C. Bellows presided.

POWER ACT DEBATED

The program in the auditorium following the fashion show was a debate on the Water Power Bond Act which will come up for the voters' decision at the election in November. John Kemp spoke in favor of the act and Leslie H. Henry against it.

"Men did not create government for paternalism," said Mr. Henry. "And paternalism is exactly what would result if the control of water power and its products were placed under government control with only five men to dispose of the huge sum of the people of California—$500,000,000."

When Mr. Kemp charged the private power companies with spending $500,000 to defeat the act at the last election, Mr. Henry said: "Of course they did. Who would not, when an investment of almost $2,000,000,000 was in jeopardy." Mr. Kemp merely appeals to prejudice and ignorance when he makes that statement."

Soroptimists' Program

A group of noted artists will appear before the Soroptimists' meeting today at the luncheon hour in the music room of the Biltmore. Caroline E. Smith is chairman of the day, which is styled, "Wonder Music Day."

Olga Steeb, pianist of international fame, and soloist of the Symphony Orchestra concerts for the season, will appear in the first number, a piano solo; Walter Henry Rothwell, conductor of Philharmonic Orchestra, address; Marjorie Dodge, soprano, soloist of the First Philharmonic Orchestra popular concert; George W. MacLellan, special representative of the Philharmonic Orchestra, address; selections from the Philharmonic Quartet — Sylvain Noack, first violin; Henry Svedrofsky, second violin; Emile Ferir, viola; Ilya Bronson, 'cello.

Mrs. Gertrude Mayhard, newly elected president, will preside for the first time.

Rest Cottage Association

This morning at 11 o'clock will be conducted a session of the Rest Cottage Association at the Ebell clubhouse. The meeting arranged to take place at Rest Cottage is postponed until next month.

Initial Luncheon for Club

Mrs. Eleanor Brodie Jones and Mrs. Helen Mathewson Laughlin will be the speakers at a public affairs luncheon, the first of the season for the Woman's Club of Hollywood today in the clubhouse, with Mrs. William De Mille presiding.

Prepared in Advance

Frequently a great deal of Sunday's dinner can be prepared on Saturday afternoon to take away some of the stress of going to church and having a nice Sunday dinner at the same time.

Just a Thought

Black glass vases and bowls are very fashionable at present, and one woman tells me she gave a clear glass vase of hers a coat of black enamel and it turned out beautifully and is much admired.

Scout Writer Talks Tonight on Boy Topics

Dr. H. W. Hurt of Chicago, author of numerous books on Boy Scout work and boyhood problems, arrived here yesterday. He will address more than 600 adult Scout workers tonight at the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Eighth and Hope streets. Dr. Hurt recently completed a nation-wide survey on the relation of the boy to the home school, church and job.

For Hot Handles

This bedroom floor is warm in winter

Blabon's Linoleum (pattern 8230 Printed) is used for this bedroom, and Plain Gray Linoleum for the dressing-room.

THERE isn't always time to hunt for slippers when there's a window to close or a child that needs tucking in. And it certainly is nice at those zero hours to have a dense, air-tight, crackless, splinterless floor of Blabon's Linoleum to hop onto. You may want a woven rug or two in harmony, to add to your comfort, and you can always find Blabon's Linoleum in patterns and shades to meet your exact ideas of bedroom tones. Then when the fabric rugs are rolled up and packed away in cedar or camphor next summer, the same smooth, springy surface of your Blabon floor is equally cool and restful to eyes and feet.

So easy to clean, too—just a quick going over with a damp cloth restores its original freshness. An occasional waxing and polishing will preserve the brightness of pattern and color indefinitely. Blabon's Printed Linoleums, which cost less, are likewise useful in many parts of the home. An occasional coat of good floor varnish will brighten the appearance of these patterns and preserve their original appearance.

The right way to lay linoleum is to cement it over a layer of builders' deadening felt paper, which should first be pasted to the floor with linoleum paste. This overcomes bulging and stretching, makes the seams watertight and practically invisible, and prolongs the life of the floor.

Ask for Blabon's Linoleum by name. It is sold by good furniture and department stores. If your dealer hasn't it, write us his name and we will see that you are supplied.

What linoleum is

Linoleum is floor material made of ground cork and oxidized linseed oil intimately blended and pressed on a burlap back. The cork gives it springiness and non-absorbent qualities. The linseed oil makes it tough and long-wearing. In inlaid linoleum the patterns and colors are pressed clear through to the burlap back. In Printed linoleum the patterns and colors are printed on the linoleum surface with oil paints.

ORANGE ROLLS

L. C. P., Wayzata, Minn., wants directions for making orange rolls, maple charlotte and preserved figs; also wants to know what gives the peculiar flavor to a certain brand of English pickles.

The majority of English pickles are made with tarragon vinegar which gives them a very delicious flavor.

During the past six weeks we have given five methods of preparing preserved figs, back numbers of The Times can be secured at The Times office, Broadway and First streets, Los Angeles.

To make the orange rolls scald two cupfuls of milk and add three tablespoons of butter, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, and one teaspoonful of salt. Stir until lukewarm and stir in two cakes of yeast dissolved in half a cupful of lukewarm milk. Beat in three cupfuls of flour, beat until it is well mixed; add three cupfuls of sifted flour and work to a smooth dough, adding more flour if needed. Place the dough in a bowl, cover and let rise until light. Toss onto a floured board, roll out half an inch in thickness, cut in rounds with a biscuit cutter, lay a section of orange on each round, fold over and press the edges together, place on a buttered baking sheet and let stand fifteen minutes. Make a sauce by mixing three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar with one and a half tablespoonful of orange juice, the grated rind of half an orange, and two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Place the rolls in a medium oven and bake until half done, not brown. Open each roll, place some of the sauce inside, return to the pan, spread the tops with the sauce, return to the oven and finish baking, about five minutes. Watch to keep the sauce from burning.

MAPLE CHARLOTTE

Dissolve one tablespoonful of granulated gelatine in half a cupful of cold water. Mix half a cupful of scalded milk with four tablespoonfuls of brown sugar, half a cupful of mapel syrup, and one teaspoonful of vanilla; add two slightly beaten eggs yolks, pour into a double boiler and stir and cook until thick and smooth, do not boil. Add the softened gelatine, strain and cool. Whip two cupfuls of thick cream and fold into the mixture. Line a mold with slices of sunshine cake, lady fingers, or sponge cake; pour into the lined mold the mixture, set in the ice box until firm and unmold on a cold plate.

GUINEA BEANS

W. J., South Pasadena, has in her garden what is known as "guinea beans" and she wants to know how to cook them.

We have never used this bean and if she will send us a sample we will be glad to work out recipes for their use.

LECTURE ON COOKERY

M.F.D., La Habra, invites me to lecture before the Woman's Club of La Habra on the preparing and serving of foods, Thursday, the 9th inst.

I will be there at 2 p.m. Thursday and do the best I can in helping the club solve their culinary problems.

KLONDIKE CAKE

V.R.W., Long Beach, requests recipes for fondant, souffle mixtures and a sponge cake in which the sugar and water are cooked and beaten into the egg whites.

We never give recipes for candies or give instructions in candy making. The cake she asks for is not sponge cake, but is called Klondike cake.

To mae the Klondike cake place in a small saucepan one and a half cups of granulated sugar and half a cup of water. Mix well and boil ten minutes, or until it will spin a stiff thread when dropped from the tip of a spoon. While the sugar is cooking beat the whites of eleven eggs to a stiff froth and beat until they look ragged. Pour the boiling syrup in a fine stream into the beaten egg whites, beating constantly with a wire egg beater, and beat for twenty minutes. Beat in two teaspoons of vanilla extract and one cup of sifted pastry flour, sifted four times, with four level teaspoons of cream of tartar. Fold in the well-beaten yolks of nine eggs and pour into a clean dry column cake tin. Set in an oven at 200 deg., F., and bake one hour, the oven should be 320 deg., F., when the cake is baked. Turn the pan onto a cake rack and let stand for one hour. Remove carefully with a flat knife.

CHOCOLATE SOUFFLE

Place in a saucepan one tablespoon of butter, and three tablespoons of sifted flour, heat and stir until smooth, and two squares of grated chocolate, one cup of scalded milk, and one third of a cup of sugar. Stir and cook until smooth. Add the beaten yolks of three eggs and stir and cook two minutes. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs, pour into a buttered souffle dish, set in a pan of hot water, set in an oven at 320 deg., F., and bake until firm. Serve as soon as removed from the oven.

CARAMEL SOUFFLE

Place in a saucepan two tablespoons of butter and four tablespoons of sifted flour, heat and stir until smooth; stir in one-third of a cup of sugar and one cup of scalded milk. Stir and cook until thick and smooth. Add the beaten yolks of three eggs; stir and cook two minutes. Remove from the fire, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs and two tablespoons of caramel syrup. Pour into a buttered souffle dish, set in a pan of hot water, set in an oven at 320 deg., F., and bake until set. Serve at once.

CHILI BEANS

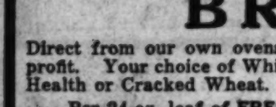
C.T., Los Angeles, asks that we give his wife our recipe for Chili beans.

Cover two cups of pink beans with cold water and let stand over night. Drain, place in a heavy saucepan, cover with water, add one teaspoon of salt and cook tender. Remove the veins from seven chili peppers, cover with hot water and boil ten minutes. Scrape off the pulp from the pepper pods and mix with the cooked beans. Place in a frying pan three chopped slices of bacon, heat, add two thinly sliced onions and cook until the onion is a light golden color; add to the beans with two cups of peeled and sliced tomatoes. Simmer for five hours, stirring often to keep from burning.

POPOVERS

S.M.A., Los Angeles, wants to know how to make popovers.

Place two eggs in a bowl and beat well with a rotary egg beater; beat into them one cup of milk, one cup of twice-sifted flour and a quarter of a teaspoon of salt. Beat five minutes and fill hissing hot iron gem pans that have been well buttered half full with the mixture. Place in a hot oven and bake thirty minutes, gradually reducing the heat. Open the oven door and let stand in the oven for five minutes.



Insist on Wilso because it is always good.

NEW SHIPS MAY COME TO HARBOR

Two Speedy Vessels Are Reported Planned for Service to Atlantic

Two fast motor-driven passenger liners for the service of the Panama-Pacific Line between Los Angeles and Havana and New York now are being planned by the International Mercantile Marine Company, according to dispatches received at the harbor yesterday from New York. Local officials of the company could not definitely confirm the report.

Tentative plans, according to the reports, call for the construction of two combination freight and passenger vessels, each of 14,000 gross tons and a speed of seventeen knots, equipped with Diesel engines. Specifications for the ships are said to be under preparation, with construction to be by the New York Shipbuilding Company.

No decision has been reached on the type of motors to be used, whether of the single-acting or opposed piston design, but it is believed that the Shipping Board's success with American-built Diesels will serve as a guide.

The Panama-Pacific Line now maintains fortnightly express passenger service between the Pacific Coast, Havana and New York, with the steamers Manchuria, Finland and Kroonland. The service, resumed last October, has made great progress and officials of the company expect further advancement. The present fleet is approximately 20 years of age.

Leo E. Archer, new Pacific Coast manager of the line, who arrived here last Saturday from New York, announced then that plans are under way for the addition of further tonnage.

GIVEN FIFTY DAYS IN JAIL TO DRY HIM OUT

JUDGE HOPES LIQUOR MAY OOZE FROM MAN IN THAT TIME

George Sullivan was given fifty days in the City Jail to "dry out" by Police Judge Crawford yesterday. The prisoner appeared in court on a drunk charge. Justice Crawford recognized him as an old offender. Sullivan admitted that he had been given a ten-day sentence the last time he appeared before the court.

"Well, I'll give you fifty days to dry out this time," was Justice Crawford's response.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

CONSTIPATION AND PURGATIVES

Mrs. A.: About the worst thing you can do for constipation is to use a purgative every day. No wonder you have liver spots and other distressing symptoms. If you cannot overcome your condition by regulating your diet, take a goodly amount of abdominal exercises and add bran or agar to your diet. Mineral oil—you can take it in the form of mineral oil mayonnaise (make it as you do ordinary mayonnaise) would be advisable also. Send for our articles on the atonic abdominal wall and constipation. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

If your constipation persists after rational measures to correct it, you should surmise that you have some condition other than wrong habits as a cause of it. Sometimes chronic appendix or a chronic gall bladder disease will cause it. Have a thorough physical examination.

EXONERATED!

"Dear Doctor; I am an ardent admirer of yours and feel sure you are doing a wonderful work for humanity. I was fat, yes—some fifty pounds overweight—and have reduced about forty pounds and would not have it back for anything. Feel better and more vigorous, and know I have a new lease on life. I had always thought God willed it or I would not be so, but you made me realize that it was due to surrendering to my own selfish appetite. The sacrifice of excess food has not been hard, for in it I saw the happy result which meant health and better looks. I surely thank you for it and pray you may keep it up. I am passing it on to others, as my husband is a minister and we are thrown in with all kinds and many need our help.—Mrs. W."

In the olden days all disease was thought to be a visitation from God. Now we know that it is a visitation from the devil (in ourselves, many times!) We realize that we have expected too much of God. He has given us a free will and intelligence, and He expects us to use it, and we have no right to blame Him if we transgress His natural laws.

We cannot continue putting water into a bucket without its overflowing, unless we take out as much as we put in. We cannot continue to put food into our bodies, without its overflowing, in the form of fat (or disease,) unless we take it out in the form of extra work or exercise. Thank you for carrying on the work, Mrs. W.

KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DARK CIRCLES

Mrs. D.: No, we do not inherit kidney disease, nor are dark circles under the eyes inherited. You are under par for some reason and in that condition there often is a congestion under the eyes. How about your diet and general health habits, especially sleep? You should have a thorough physical examination. It may be possible that you have some condition in the pelvis which needs attention. That also may be the cause for your lame back. Send for our articles on balanced diet and autointoxication. They will help you. Also ask for the article on atonic abdominal wall. It contains instructions on exercises to build up the abdominal and back muscles which you no doubt need. Don't forget to inclose a good-sized, self-addressed stamped envelope.

NEEDS MEDICINE

B.: If you cannot afford to go to a physician in private practice, is there not some medicine clinic in a nearby city? You need internal medication for the disorder you mention. It comes from an infection which only certain drugs can overcome. Certainly, have a normal diet containing milk, vegetables, fruit, nuts, natural grains. But you need medicine also.

Tomorrow — Answers to Correspondents.

My Dear Followers: When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must inclose 10 cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name, as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the stamped, self-addressed envelope if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

FRENCH TEXTILE WORK RESTORED

Visitor from Lille Says Mills Again Are Busy

Tours America to Make Study of Cotton Industry

German Sincerity on Dawes Plan is Doubted

The restoration of the textile manufacturing plants of Northern France, which almost were entirely destroyed by the Germans during the war, almost has been completed, according to J. Rosendaal of Lille, which is one of the most important textile centers in Europe.

Mr. Rosendaal, who is at the Alexandria, is a son of the Dutch Consul at Lille. He is on a tour of this country to study the cotton manufacturing industry, and has visited the principal mills in the East and South.

INDUSTRY RESTORED

"About a third of the textile production and at least 95 per cent of the spinning of flax in France is being carried on at Lille," said Rosendaal. "During the war the Germans, who occupied the section where Lille is situated for about four years, systematically destroyed every factory in this area. They demolished the machinery to obtain the copper that formed a considerable part of the mill equipment. At the close of the war only a single cotton mill remained intact at Lille. This had been operated by the Germans for their own needs."

Rosendaal said the work of rehabilitation began as soon as hostilities ceased. Some of the smaller factory owners were unable to re-establish themselves owing to lack of funds, but most of the larger concerns have resumed operation.

"Aside from the restoration of the textile industry the people of Northern France also have made astonishing progress in other lines of reconstruction," said Mr. Rosendaal. "The section about Lille was one of the most fertile areas in France, but all agriculture was completely demoralized by the war. The farm land was torn up by trenches and the explosion of shells, but the French set resolutely to work at restoration, and by this time a large part of the damage has been repaired."

FRENCH SKEPTICAL

He added that the rehabilitation of their devastated country has kept everybody busy and that unemployment is unheard of in Northern France. "As a matter of fact, the entire country has been unusually prosperous after the war," he said. "It is possible that a part of this prosperity is more apparent than real, however, owing to the shattered state of our exchange. But the French are not discouraged and, if no unforeseen contingency arises, the complete recovery, at least of the northern part of the country, will be only a question of time."

He suggested that the sentiment toward the Dawes plan in France is largely one of skepticism. "The French are not especially hopeful that the Germans will abide by their part of the agreement," he observed. "They have become so accustomed to Teutonic promises that never materialized that in this instance their expectations are not running very high until they have had a chance to see how the new arrangement will work out."

GRAPE MAN'S SUITS IN FEDERAL COURT

SOUTHERN PACIFIC DAMAGE CASES REMOVED FROM STATE COURTS

The Southern Pacific Railroad was made the defendant in two suits filed in the United States District Court here yesterday by attorneys for Martin Serimian, Fresno grape shipper, who based his suits on the contention that the railroad did not furnish him enough refrigerator cars to handle the shipment of his grapes.

One suit, covering the 1922 grape-shipping season, alleges that the railroad supplied only twenty-two cars when 204 were asked for. Sherimian asked the court for $144,000 and costs to cover his asserted loss.

The second suit, covering the season of 1923, asks for $137,400 damages, asserting a shortage of eighty-eight cars.

The suits were originally filed in the Superior Court at Fresno, but were removed to the United States court on a question of jurisdiction when the railroad entered a demurrer to the original action.

WAR VETERAN ROBBED

Charles E. Kirby, war veteran of Seattle, reported to Hollywood police yesterday that after accepting a ride home from Burbank with two sea-going strangers, he took a drink from a bottle offered by one of his new-found friends and woke up early in the morning lying alongside Cahuenga Pass road. His wallet containing $32 and his gold watch were gone — so was his friends, he said.

ZONE ORDINANCE VETO WILL BE CONSIDERED

WELFARE COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL TO DISCUSS ACTION TOMORROW

The City Council's Public Welfare Committee tomorrow afternoon will consider Mayor Cryer's veto of the zoning ordinance which, as adopted, would permit the establishment of a $2,500,000 amusement park near Lincoln Park. The Board of Education and other property owners in the district protested against the park on the proposed site.

When Councilmen Wheeler and Criswell return on Thursday from the meeting of the League of California Municipalities at Monterey it is expected that there will be votes enough in the Council to sustain the Mayor's veto, forcing the park promoters to seek a new location.

OSTROW IS HELD IN SLAYING CASE

Man in Synagogue Shooting to Face Trial

Court Orders Commitment on Three Counts

Defendant Appears as Own Counsel at Hearing

Solomon Ostrow, asserted synagogue slayer, was held for trial in Superior Court yesterday by Justice Wood on charges of murder, assault to commit murder, and two counts of a special commitment charging assault with a deadly weapon. The special commitment was issued against the murder suspect at the request of Dep. Dist.-Atty. Vobayda.

Ostrow appeared in court without an attorney. He acted as his own counsel, but only once did he attempt to question any of the numerous witnesses who appeared against him. When Charles Lewkovich, a member of the congregation of Ahabach Sholom Synagogue, who was present at the shooting, took the witness stand and stated he had heard the shots fired, Ostrow leaped up and accused the witness of having changed his testimony. The asserted slayer declared that the witness had said at the Coroner's inquest that he had not heard the shots.

Lewkovich explained that there was such a commotion in the synagogue at the time of the shooting he could not be certain, but he stated that he saw the shells fall from the automatic pistol in Ostrow's hand. The slayer suspect then slumped back into his chair.

It is charged that Ostrow entered the synagogue on September 29 last, when the Jewish New Year was being observed, pumped four bullets into the back of Harry Danny, killing him almost instantly, and that he then shot and wounded Mrs. Fannie Klein and Bennie Benaski in his attempt to escape. The latter two are still in the hospital.

HOW HE GOT RID OF HIS WIFE

Man Tires of Woman and Hits on Original Scheme to Dispose of Her; Loads Auto With Gin, Then Leads Officer to Cache and the Rest Was Easy

Patrolman W. A. Murray, debonair in his natty blue uniform and with his badge shining in the glare from the corner street light, was walking his beat Sunday night at Santa Barbara and Main streets. Up walked a man. "Say," he told the officer, "I've got some gin in my car."

"Huh?" asked Murray, considerably taken aback. "You say you've got some gin?"

"That's what I said," the stranger repeated.

Still unable to believe his ears, the officer followed the man to an automobile in which were seated a woman and a child. Sure enough the officer found some gin—eight quarts of it.

The man told Murray his name was Ralph Sullivan, 158 East Sixty-third street. The woman, Sullivan said, was his wife and the child was theirs.

After Sullivan had been booked at Central Station for Wright Act possession it occurred to Murray to untangle the mystery.

"What's the idea?" he asked Sullivan, "did your conscience hurt you?"

"Conscience nothing," the suspect replied, "I'd rather be in jail than with my wife."

TRIO SENTENCED FOR OIL FRAUD

Square Deal Syndicate Men Flayed by Judge

Nelson Given Three and Half Years in Federal Prison

Nickerson and Gendron to Serve Year in Jail

Chris Nelson yesterday was sentenced to serve a term of three and one-half years in the Federal prison at Leavenworth, and George K. Nickerson and Joseph S. Gendron were sentenced to one year each in the San Bernardino County Jail by United States District Judge Bledsoe. The trio were indicted on a charge of conspiracy to use the mails in a scheme to defraud in connection with the Square Deal Syndicate. Gendron and Nickerson pleaded guilty to the charge and testified for the government.

In passing sentence on Nelson the judge scored the defendant and declared that a fine will not reimburse the fleeced investors and that while in prison he will have plenty of time to pray for his misdeeds. Judge Bledsoe also expressed belief that Nelson is guilty of an asserted scheme to defraud investors in connected with the Boulevard Oil Syndicate, a charge on which Nelson was acquitted.

"Prison sentences and not mere fines will tend to discourage such men as you," the court told Nelson.

The government was represented by David V. Cahill and Maurice R. Norcop, special assistants to the United States Attorney-General. They asked that the court be lenient with Nickerson and Gendron, in view of their pleas of guilty and their testimony for the government. Both men, however, were denounced by Judge Bledsoe.

According to the testimony, Nelson, a wealthy oil promoter of Orange county, was at the head of the Square Deal Syndicate, which purchased 200 acres of land near Huntington Beach, more than one mile from the production fields, and sold the property in lots, realizing approximately $200,000. The company, it was set forth, began operating March, 1923, and ceased operating in October of the same year after being ordered by State Corporation Commissioner Daugherty to cut down their selling expenses. Nickerson is said to have been a "spieler" for the organization and to have posed as an "eminent geologist."

At one stage of the trial Gendron, explaining his asserted partnership with Nelson, testified that his work was to try to keep the people good-natured and to try to qualify Nickerson as a man knowing something about the oil business.

A fourth man indicted was Webster W. Bush, who was employed to drill a well on the Huntington Beach property. Bush was acquitted with Nelson on the Boulevard Oil Syndicate charge. The courtroom yesterday was filled with men and women who had invested in the scheme, the investments of some representing their life savings. The concern maintained offices at 8 Locust street, Long Beach. Buses were run from Long Beach to the syndicate's property where "hot dog" stands were maintained and Nickerson said to have made his smooth orations on the advisability of investing money in the lots.

According to Commissioner Daugherty the syndicate paid Nickerson and others a commission of 50 per cent, which is twice as much as the law permits. Witnesses testified that no wells were drilled on the property and no improvements made.

A woman with three young children sat in the third row of the courtroom as sentence was passed and applauded vigorously. She is said to have invested her savings in the scheme.

CAREY WINS TITLE TO L

Of all the fights Harry Carey, cowboy hero, ever had, the toughest was the recent one with Uncle Sam.

But the actor finally won out after a three-year tussle for a potential fortune.

The Harry Carey rancho, near Saugus, is one of the most famous in Southern California. Although it is forty miles from Hollywood, Carey lives there with his family and horses and dogs and commutes back and forth to the studio each day.

HUSBAND'S BED MOVED TO GARAGE

Judge Bars Him from His Home But Permits Him to Share Room With Auto

In the interests of peace and economy in the family of Forrest T. Wilkinson and his wife, Bettina Wilkinson, Judge Guerin in his alimony court yesterday issued an order permitting Wilkinson to sleep in the garage.

Wilkinson was put in the way of fame a few weeks ago when his wife filed suit for divorce against him, complaining that he had turned her over his knee for what she described as "an old-fashioned spanking."

They were both before Judge Guerin yesterday for a ruling on Mrs. Wilkinson's motion for alimony pending trial and an order restraining him from molesting her.

Judge Guerin ruled that in order that Mrs. Wilkinson might not be molested, her husband would have to stay out of their home at 120 Miles street. On the other hand, however, so that Wilkinson might not be burdened with the expense of two establishments, the court gave him permission to sleep in the garage. The wife was awarded $15 a week in addition to the house.

Victim Protests as Charge Filed Against Woman

The introduction of Texas customs into California was frowned upon yesterday by the District Attorney's office when Dep. Dist.-Atty. Kemp issued a complaint charging Georgia Griggs with assault with intent to commit murder.

The young woman was visiting her sister, Mrs. Jean Carver, at 916 Georgia street. William Carver, it is asserted, struck his wife several times during a quarrel and the sister-in-law shot him.

Carver is recovering in General Hospital. He sent word to the District Attorney he had no desire to prosecute, but the complaint was issued, nevertheless.

Solve Question of Parking for Theater Patrons

The auto-parking situation is a serious one. Many people hesitate to come down town in the evening seeking amusement because of the uncertainty of finding a place to park, the inconvenience of hunting a place to put the machine and the added expense of taking it to a parking station.

Managing Director Charles Wuers of the California Theater has evolved a scheme that should make this problem a simple one for patrons of his house.

Starting last evening and every night thereafter from 6 p.m. to midnight the California Theater patrons will be provided with free parking space within a stone's throw of the theater. Two big auto parks, one at 745 South Los Angeles, between Seventh and Eighth, the other at 800 South Los Angeles at the corner of Eighth, have been secured and big signs will designate them as California auto parks.

The method of handling the situation is as follows:

The public at large may park their cars at either of these auto parks any time after 6 p.m., paying a parking fee of 25 cents, and receiving two coupons; one being a check for the car, and the other a cash refund which will be good for 25 cents on the purchase price of a ticket to the theater. The entire amount of the parking fee is refunded on any ticket purchased, the only stipulation being that the coupon is good for exchange only on the date the car is parked.

"This Is Linoleum, the Other Is Not!"

Here are two simple ways to be sure of getting genuine linoleum

DO YOU KNOW how to tell the difference between genuine linoleum and rolls of floor-covering that are not linoleum? Every reputable merchant is anxious to have you know the difference before you buy. He wants you to buy intelligently.

GENUINE linoleum is a very durable floor material. It is made of cork and oxidized linseed oil, pressed or keyed on a burlap back. The burlap back offers one sure way of determining the difference between genuine linoleum and felt base floor-covering. All genuine linoleum has a burlap back.

Your eye can see and your fingers can feel the weave of this tough, strong fabric.

Another way to be absolutely sure is to look for the Circle "A" trademark on the burlap back. This identifies the genuine Armstrong's Linoleum, and assures you of the highest quality.

The story of the invention of linoleum

Look for the CIRCLE "A" trademark on the burlap back

Linoleum was invented in 1863, by Frederick Walton. The story is that Mr. Walton noticed and studied the film of oil that formed on an open can of paint. It was tough and elastic. He mixed this oxidized linseed oil with cork flour, and found that the two had a natural affinity—like dough made with flour and milk. When pressed on burlap, this "mix" retained all the qualities of both the cork and the linseed oil. It was smooth, elastic, waterproof, and sound-deadening. He saw at once that he had here a wonderful material for floors.

Almost immediately the manufacture of linoleum began; housewives were quick to see its sanitary, easy-to-clean advantages. Some of this early linoleum is still in use. We recently received a photograph of an entrance hall showing a linoleum floor that had been down for fifty-five years. The printed pattern was worn, but still distinct.

Three kinds of linoleum

First comes Plain or "Battleship Linoleum," so called because of its use on the decks of ships of war. It is usually brown, gray, or green. The colors go through to the burlap back. The new Jaspé linoleum is a rippling two-tone effect used for the floors of living-rooms, dining-rooms, good offices, etc.

Printed linoleum

Printed Linoleum is a plain linoleum the surface of which is printed in a bright, cheerful pattern with heavy oil paints. If printed linoleum is protected by a coat of clear, white varnish applied every six months or so, the pattern will last for many years.

Inlaid linoleum

In Inlaid Linoleum the pattern is not printed on the surface, but each little colored block or shape in the pattern is laid separately on the burlap, then pressed into one piece under heavy rollers. These colors, therefore, run clear through to the burlap back.

Inlaid Linoleum is best protected by waxing and polishing. The ordinary wear of walking feet has little effect on a waxed inlaid linoleum floor.

The beauty of linoleum

Modern linoleum is pretty. It looks its best, of course, when actually installed as the floor of an attractively furnished room, with fabric rugs laid on it as on any fine floor. It is on the floor, under your feet, that linoleum should be studied and its real beauty appreciated—in use, in its relation to walls, woodwork, furniture, and draperies. As gloves are prettiest on a hand, or a new chair looks better in a home than in a store, so linoleum reveals its real beauty when it becomes the floor of your home.

For sixty years, linoleum has been bought for the floors of homes. Women have wanted it because it was durable and long-wearing—because it was sanitary and easy to clean—because it was smooth, easy on the standing, walking, working feet of the housekeeper—and because it made a quiet floor.

What good laying and waxing proved

In recent years a new and better way has been found to lay linoleum. Instead of tacking down a fine linoleum floor, linoleum is cemented down. A lining of builders' deadening felt is first cemented to the wood underfloor. Then an experienced linoleum layer pastes the linoleum to this felt, extending it beneath the moulding around the walls, and waterproofing the seams and edges. Then no matter how much the wood underfloor may expand or contract in summer or winter, the linoleum will not crack, buckle, or need retrimming.

Waxing this smooth floor greatly improves its looks. Modern laying and waxing inspired more beautiful linoleum patterns. Today linoleum floors are admittedly beautiful and desirable for any room in any house. Your fine rugs look better when spread on a linoleum floor, and the opportunity for color and design makes linoleum a real and growing factor in interior decoration.

Armstrong's Linoleum Rugs

Armstrong's Linoleum Rugs, printed or inlaid, like all Armstrong's Linoleum, are made of cork, linseed oil, and burlap, and have the Circle "A" trademark on the burlap back.

Write our Bureau of Interior Decoration

This Bureau, in charge of Mrs. Hazel Dell Brown, an experienced decorator, will help you to plan color schemes for new homes or particular rooms. Mrs. Brown will give you information about designs for different rooms, and tell you how to take care of linoleum floors. We will send you a sample of Armstrong's Jaspé Linoleum, a 24-page booklet, "New Floors for Old," and direct you to stores that can supply Armstrong's Linoleum and do good laying.

MISS JANIS SCORES

"NOBODY ELSE BUT ELSIE" WHEN SHE'S AROUND

By Grace Kingsley

Elsie Janis! Of course, I could quit after that announcement, and need say no more to those who look to this humble scribe to find out what is doing down at the Orpheum.

She is a sort of Elsie Janis plus, these days, it seems to me—or is it just that I forget between times what a wonderful entertainer Elsie is? London, Paris—these have given her a perfection of finish, but the best of it is that she remains the same little natural, breezy, magnetic, rare and radiant Elsie. Her imitations remain the chiefly brilliant thing she does, with Will Rogers and Fannie Brice topping her other efforts. But her singing of the half-pathetic little Cockney song, sister to the French "My Man," is caviare; and her characterization of a French actress come over here is a bit of artistry that is supreme.

She received an ovation yesterday, and had to make a sweet little speech. Miss Janis's two good-looking men appearing in support as vocalist and accompanist, are not apple-sauce. In fact, Miss Janis would hardly dare trot Walter Vern Pidgeon, baritone, out at all in her act, if she weren't such a very big artist. For he is an artist himself. Robert Brown Farley is a sympathetic accompanist. That is, you forget he is there, except subconsciously, and that is as it should be.

A most engaging young man, with a quality of personality that is rarely fine in vaudeville, is Wade Booth, whose baritone voice will charm you right out of your seat. Lighting effects provide visual variety for his act. His most colorful number, perhaps, or at least, his most dramatic, is his singing of the Russian "Song of the Volga Boatmen." He and his pianist, Mildred Davis, are as wholesome and charming a pair as we have seen.

Stuart Casey is one of those nuts—you might call him an English wall-nut, for there dances around him, as he makes silly-ass remarks in static poses, one Mildred Warren, a neat soubrette with lively patter. He is a very tall man, so that somebody behind me inquired, "Is that all one man?" And he is very clever.

We've got to hand it to Joe Browning. He used to be our pet aversion. But he has improved wonderfully—is a real vaudeville star, even though his act is a very set one. His talk is clever, his characterization of the reformer vivid burlesque, and his songs are new and whams, especially "Symptoms."

On the take-off spot are Valdez Armand and Ernest Perez, acrobats, while in the recessional are Heras and Wills, also acrobats. These acts should be switched, because you may miss the former, but you will wish to miss the latter. There seems to be no point of zip to the act of Heras and Wills, though they seem clever enough at their business. Maybe the spot they have takes the heart out of them. It is enough, that closing spot, with the way people walk out on it, to take the heart out of big Bill Hart himself.

Remaining over for smash hits a second week are the Dresden China warblers, the Kouns sisters, and Eddie Nelson.

NOTED SCENARIO MEN SIGN WITH BIG FIRM

With the signing of five well-known film writers, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Company is continuing its effort to build up the most capable scenario staff in the industry.

To the already large list of writers have just been added Albert Shelby LeVino, Ballard MacDonald, Charlton Andrews, Kenneth Clark and Edmund Goulding.

Harry Rapf and Irving G. Thalberg, production executives of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Company, who signed the writers, believe that adequate preparation of a picture is fully as necessary as adequate direction. They declare that the scenario writer is as important in film production as either the director or the actor.

All five of the new writers are now working on scripts which will be produced in the near future.

LeVino, one of the best known of film writers, is adapting "The Summons," which Robert Vignola will direct. Charlton Andrews, author of "Ladies' Night," "Torches" and other plays, is now writing "The Doll Baby," for stage production by Thomas Wilkes, and will begin soon on a photoplay for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Ballard MacDonald, well-known song writer and humorist, and co-author of the clever revue, Harry Carroll's "Pickings," has done considerable writing for the screen. He will devote himself to comedy sequences in forthcoming productions.

Kenneth Clark is collaborating with Frank Borzage on an adaptation of Zoe Akins's play, "Daddy Goes A'Hunting."

Edmund Goulding, who received his first opportunity as a screen writer through Harry Rapf, is adapting a story under the supervision of that executive.

Conway Tearle Flits

After a half a dozen vain attempts to visit his former haunts along Broadway during the past two years, Conway Tearle leaves today for New York. He is accompanied by his wife, Adele Rowland, the vaudeville star.

One of the purposes of Tearle's trip East is to attend the opening performance of his brother, Godfrey Tearle, popular stage star in New York and abroad, in "The Fake" at the Hudson Theater. The brothers have not seen each other for some five years and the affair will be made the occasion of a family reunion.

"When I am on the train I will say that I'm going to New York for a vacation," said the popular star with a laugh last night. "I've had to cancel my reservations so many times during the past few years that I am still skeptical."

The Tearles will spend a month in New York seeing as many shows as the time will permit. Upon his return to Hollywood Conway will start work on a series of pictures under a new contract now in negotiation.

Zoo for Lasky Picture

Overnight one of the largest zoos in America has sprung up in Texas.

At Camp Irvin Willat, thirty miles out of Houston, Tex., the Paramount company has installed a large menagerie that will be used in connection with the filming of Willat's latest production, "North of 36." This menagerie contains innumerable varieties of American animal, bird and reptile life.

Wolves, dogs, horses, long-horn cattle, burros, oxen, chickens, fighting cocks, rattlesnakes, deer, antelope, wild turkeys, buzzards, rabbits, bison and wildcats are just a few of the varieties of wild life now at the camp.

After production is completed most of these specimens will be shipped back to a large game preserve in the southern part of Texas, where they were originally obtained.

The reason for the remarkable collection of wild life in the picture is explained by the fact that the story of "North of 36" takes place in Southeastern United States directly after the Civil War. The general theme of the story, which was written by Emerson Hough, author of "The Covered Wagon," concerns a tremendous cattle drive from the south to the north, in which 4000 long-horns take part. The various animals above enumerated are encountered along the route.

Prominent in the cast of "North of 36" are Jack Holt, Ernest Torrence, Lois Wilson and Noah Beery.

Harry Carey Completes Cast

Jacquelin Gadsdon has been selected to play opposite Harry Carey in "The Man From Texas," his new Hunt Stromberg production. In this picturization of Bret Harte's "Tennessee's Partner," Miss Gadsdon will portray the interesting character of Sally, a role which marks her debut into the ranks of full-fledged leading women.

"Jackie" Gadsdon is a Lois Weber "discovery" in every sense of the word. She made her first appearance before a camera several years ago as an "extra" in a Lois Weber picture. At that time the woman director professed a brilliant future for her, but she did not achieve a featured role until "A Chapter in Her Life," the most recent of Lois Weber features.

Speaking of Harry Carey, a special preview of "Roaring Rails," Carey's fourth Stromberg feature, was held at the Roosevelt Theater recently, and from all reports its reception by the Wilshire-district audience substantiates Stromberg's advance claim that this subject was far in advance of previous Carey subjects. It is said that one of the brightest spots in the picture was the clever performance of little Frankie Darro.

Knows His French Opera

The man, who, during the war, occupied the unique distinction of being the youngest man to be commissioned a major in the United States Army, today is Rupert Julian's right hand assistant in preparing the spectacular details of "The Phantom of the Opera." Lon Chaney's success or to "The Hunchbank of Notre Dame," soon to be commenced at Universal City.

Maj. Rose, who was in headquarters in Paris for months, and, after the armistice, was attached to the Department of State there on a special mission, has attended many performances at the Paris opera. It is he who is now, as production manager for the Rupert Julian unit, arranging the details of the costuming of concierges, hairdressers, machinists, valets, box tenders and others of the hundreds of attaches in the greatest operahouse in the world, who also appear in the picture.

Ross is a veteran in motion pictures, having been a director and production manager in many of the old companies, and was one of the earliest employees at Universal City. When the war broke out, he won a commission, went overseas, and achieved promotion rapidly. On his return, after serving months in the diplomatic service at the end of the war, he reentered the picture field. He will choose all types for opera patrons, attendants and check all scenes in which these appear.

Impersonating Great Emancipator

George Billings,

Featured as Abraham Lincoln in the picture of that title which opens at the Criterion tonight, and also appearing in the stage prologue in the same role.

"MESSALINA" SPECTACULAR

Immense settings peopled with gigantic mobs would set "Messalina" apart from the usual run of pictures if nothing else did. The photoplay, which is heading this week's program at Pantages, has the added qualities of an interesting historical theme, and a cast which, while unknown here, contains a face or two worthy of more encouragement.

"Messalina" was made in Italy by Enrico Guazzoni. It is the story of a famous Roman vampire, in the days when "thumbs down" was a literal and not a figurative expression. Probably cut a great deal to meet the requirement of American programs, the picture still moves slowly at times when it is not jerking hurriedly from one situation to another.

Of greatest interest in the cast are Lucia Zamissi and Gino Talamo, in the romantic roles of Elsa and Ennio, slaves of a wealthy Roman patrician. The title role of "Messalina" is portrayed by Rina de Liguoro, and the other outstanding characterization is given by Aristide Gardini, nimble-tongued orator, who sways the populace into demanding the death of the vampire.

Heading the vaudeville portion of the bill Mrs. Sidney Drew appears in a one-act playlet, "A Cup of Tea." This presents the amusing predicament of a husband who cannot resist the temptation to write (and send) poetry to other men's wives, confronted by one of the angry husbands. It is comedy, of course, with quite a few hearty laughs.

Jack Kraft and Elsie La Mont offer an enjoyable bit of foolishness in "Put Up the Light." The act starts out exceptionally well, but fails to maintain the average all the way through.

The Bernivici brothers are favorites here, with their violin playing and the singing of Mardo Kahen. A bit of comic by-play employing Jack Kraft from the preceding act, helps the fun along.

A colored revue that has more pep than anything else on the bill is offered by Lee Marshall and his company. Four chocolate boys who can dance and know it, and a girl who dances and sings, they occupy the closing position, but are well worth waiting for.

James B. Kelly and Edith Browne appear in song and dance numbers, new or nearly so, and a trio of roller skaters present some rather ordinary tricks on the opening spot.

CHINA'S ELTINGE

Mei Lan Fang Has Won Fame on the Stage of the Orient

Mei Lan Fang is the stage idol of China, the most adored "leading lady" of the flowery kingdom. Every traveler hears of him, for when the Chinese government entertains a distinguished foreign visitor Mei Lan Fang is commanded to give a performance.

Americans in Peking, who desire to extend hospitality to Chinese friends, engage the actor now and then, when they can afford it, but he is a luxury, since one of his most recent appearances cost a group of bankers from the United States $4000 for half an hour's program.

Mei Lan Fang is now 30 years of age. He was reared in the atmosphere of poverty and vice that belonged to youthful actors before the revolution. The little brethren of the "pear orchard" must undergo the most severe and even cruel training. They must learn, also, to sing in the shrill falsetto so popular in Chinese theaters.

The future star was selected to act as huatan, the servant girl or lady's maid, which is an inevitable character in all Chinese plays. The boy decided to break away from the artificial conventions and to copy nature. He introduced into his acting feminine traits that he noticed in the women and soon gained great popularity. Gradually, he obtained more prominent parts, but he soon organized his own company and made a successful tour through Japan. Then he had engagements in Shanghai, called the Paris of China.

At the peak of fame now, little is known of the private life of Mei. He lives in retirement and devotes his time to music and drawing. His close friend is a learned scholar with whom he makes researches in ancient works dealing with the drama. He has been able to introduce bold reforms into the theater of his country. He is said to be pious, for he makes an annual pilgrimage to Chieh-t'ai-shan—the traditional shrine of actors—a mountain temple three days' distance from Peking.—[Argonaut.

"AS ONE DAY"

One good old yarn that is exhumed from time to time or rather reincarnated, since it appears in a slightly different form, concerns the Scottish land law known as tenure by feu, which consists in the tenant performing certain services, or making certain payments, failure in which may result in forfeiture of the tenancy.

Some time back it was decided to abolish feus on the Sutherland estate, substituting therefor a generous form of lease which would have the effect of making the crofter the owner in all but name, of the land he tilled.

To his grace's surprise, however, the first Highland farmer to whom the new terms were explained resolutely declined to entertain them.

"But, consider," said the agent, "the rent you will be called upon to pay is merely nominal, and we are giving you a lease of 999 years."

"Behold This Woman" Well Told Romance of an Actress

BY KENNETH TAYLOR

Hollywood figures again as the background against which is enacted a romance of photoplay life in "Behold This Woman," which flashed across the Mission Theater screen yesterday.

Familiar haunts of the celebrated and informal views of the town itself will do much to make the picture even more popular with fans in other parts of the country than it is here, and its success everywhere should be assured by a story that holds the interest and a cast that is generally all that might be desired.

"Behold This Woman" tells us of the romance which enters the life of a famous motion-picture actress who is on the verge of throwing dull care to the winds and accepting the attentions of her numerous admirers. Irene Rich plays the role with all the finesse of which she is capable, and she is a very talented actress. Indeed, she is something of a revelation in this picture, for her part is quite unlike anything with which she has usually been associated. Sensuous and alluring, she is in the picture within a picture; sweet and kind, in her real life characterization, with just a touch of that old-fashionedness which helps her create favorable impressions in everything she does.

Charles Post plays the man of the hills, content to live without the society of women until chance throws him in the pathway of the actress. And incidentally, coincidence, which can so easily be engaged to assist in the proper culmination of any romance, is used but once in this picture, which is not a little to be said in its favor. Post is a pleasing hero and a comparatively new type, to whom the screen should extend a hearty welcome.

Making the little friend of the actress unusually sympathetic is Marguerite De La Motte, also seen to better advantage than usual. Harry Meyers plays a villain for a change, and Rosemary Theby and Anders Randolph are others appearing in the cast.

Hillstreet Bill Rather Below Usual Average

As far as equality goes this week at the Hillstreet no records are broken. The bill is only passably fair and from its six acts of vaudeville no one can be selected as outstanding.

An unknown lad from Lloyd Ibach's entertainers is the star of the bill. His fast stepping ranks with the best this town has witnessed for several months and his cleverness is more than evident. If the rest of the program had come up to the standard this boy set it would be well worth while going to see.

Kitty Doner, billed as America's greatest male impersonator, is given headliner advertising but her skit, aside from her dancing, was stereotyped. So too, was Margie Coate, "Queen of Syncopation."

"Just Out of Knickers" is the title of a humorous puppy-love act with four youthful entrants. It needs better lines.

Van Cello and Mary were pleasing in their little act and black-face honors go to La France and Garnett, for several good wise-cracks. In the way of jazz orchestral presentation Lloyd Ibach's Entertainers rendered several numbers distinctly good.

"A Self-Made Failure" and the usual short features were the screen offerings.

"ABRAHAM LINCOLN" OPENS ENGAGEMENT

A picture in which American ideals, the terrific struggles that brought this country into its present state and above all a dramatic and living chronicle of the life of America's greatest President will be unfolded to the opening-night audience when "Abraham Lincoln" is flashed upon the screen at the Criterion Theater tonight.

Every effort possible has been expended by Managing Director Harold Horne and his staff to give to this photoplay the impressive presentation and opening a picture of such magnitude deserves. The theater has been redecorated, Adolph Tandler and Nils Gilliam have prepared a score which will synchronize and enhance the presentation of the picture and a stirring prologue in which George Billings and thirty other actors and actresses will appear has been put in readiness.

"GREAT DIVIDE" IN HOLLYWOOD TONIGHT

"The Great Divide," William Vaughn Moody's play, will be read in Hollywood this evening by Miss Mary Elvire Wilder. The affair will be given in the drawing-rooms attached to the Molly Pitcher Tea Room at 6727-6737 Yucca street at McCadden Place.

Miss Wilder in addition to her work as a reader has gained fame for her portrayal of grandmother parts on both stage and screen, one of her finest interpretations being that of Grandma Bett in Zona Gale's play, "Miss Lulu Bett."

MENJOU SCORES IN "SINNERS IN SILK"

"Sinners in Silk," Hobart Henley's first production under the Metro-Goldwyn banner, is now showing at Tally's Theater.

The chief role, that of an old man made young by a rejuvenation treatment, is played by Adolphe Menjou. Eleanore Boardman is the heroine and Conrad Nagel the lover. The cast also includes John Patrick, Miss Du Pont and others.

In conjunction with "Sinners in Silk" Harry Langdon is seen in his latest two-reel comedy "New Mama's." A Felix cartoon and news reel complete the bill.

THE MODEST LECTURER

Irvin Cobb, the writer and lecturer, was a guest at a dinner party in New York, where table-rapping and other phenomena were discussed.

"Are you a clairvoyant?" a woman asked Mr. Cobb.

"Not that I know of," he answered.

"Do you ever talk in your sleep?" she went on.

"No, but I often talk in other people's," he said. "I'm a Chautauqua lecturer."—[Unidentified.

MUSIC IS MIXED WITH BASEBALL

KHJ Sandwiches Scores and Jazz Orchestras

Celeste and Voice Prove Ideal Combination

Rose Room Musicians Win Favor With Fans

BY CLAIRE FORBES CRANE

Gray skies overhead—a sharp wind, fresh with the smell of rain, and inside our new glassed-in-roof at KHJ we were snug as a ship's cabin in a storm! Our captain, Uncle John, "stood by" the microphone yesterday from 11 o'clock until 1:45 broadcasting baseball returns of the World Series. In and out of the station ebbed and flowed a tide of males from 16 to a 100 in age, who utterly reverted to their childhood, and to whom nothing was so important in life as the baseball score.

In order to make the anxious intervals between results more agreeable several of our friends came in and played and sang in a most delightfully impromptu fashion. Pretty Lenore Killian, arrayed for a luncheon party drifted in and accompanied by E. K. Barnes, who is the only person in California who should ever be allowed to play the celesta, sang several ballads. As far as we know this is the first time the voice and celesta have ever been broadcast from our studio and Miss Killian's warm tones blended with the crystal of the celesta like the weaving of gold and silver threads.

Anton Chris gave triumphant selections on his steel guitar every time the Giants won and nearly rivaled the results of the game according to the vociferous applause. Winifred Dunn, a clever young pianist from the Martin Music Company, proved herself gifted, both in jazz selections and with Rachmaninoff's Prelude, which she gave with much understanding.

A peach of an orchestra swelled the ranks today of the many organizations who weekly delight our family. The noon program presented Abe Perluss and his Rose Room Orchestra, playing through the courtesy of the Rose Room, William Leder, manager. It was the insidious soft jazz which, like rare old wine, works slowly but surely, and when they had finished our outlook on life was certainly rose colored!

CERAMIC INDUSTRY GROWS

Convention Held Here Shows Importance of Clay Products Manufacture on Coast

The manufacture of ceramic products is one of the important branches of Southern California's developing industries, it was brought out at the convention of the American Ceramic Society, conducted at the Biltmore yesterday.

This organization, whose national headquarters are at Columbus, comprises virtually all the interests in the United States engaged in the manufacture of clay products, such as pottery, porcelain, pressed brick, architectural terra cotta and others. Sewer tile, which belongs to this group, is one of the leading products in the ceramic field in Los Angeles.

The gathering, which is known as the summer convention of the society, is taking place in Los Angeles at this time principally to acquaint the parent organization with the growing importance of the ceramic industry on the Pacific Coast.

The opening address at yesterday's session was given by Ross C. Purdy of Columbus, general secretary of the national organization. It was largely technical in nature.

The address was followed by a discussion of different subjects, particularly the manufacture of the new product known as sillimanite, which is made almost exclusively in Los Angeles. Sillimanite, a super-refractory material, is made from a combination of silicon and alumina, of which large deposits are found in Washington and Oregon. Owing to its powers of withstanding extreme and rapid variations in temperature, it has become one of the principal elements in the manufacture of spark plugs. It is also used in steel production.

It was brought out at the meeting that Southern California possesses large quantities of the clays used in the ceramic industry. In these deposits this part of the State possesses a natural resource of great value, whose development will result in building up an industry of great proportions, it was said.

The convention is conducted under the chairmanship of F. B. Ortman of Los Angeles, member of the local branch of the society. The local president is Dr. A. Malinovsky. The session yesterday is the only formal meeting provided for on the program. Today those in attendance, of whom there are a number of eastern men, will visit the plants engaged in the ceramic industry located in and about Los Angeles.

The delegates will today inspect the ceramic plants of Los Angeles and vicinity, starting the tour at the local factory of the Los Angeles Pressed Brick Company on Date street, the largest single unit roofing tile plant in the world.

The tour will then proceed to other plants, the delegation being divided into two parties. The plants to be visited by the two groups will include factories making sewer pipe, stone ware, terra cotta, face brick, roofing tile, art tile, white ware, iron enameling, porcelain, sanitary ware and fire brick.

WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE

Husband's Insanity Charge Basis of Suit by Woman

Asserting that insanity proceedings brought against her by her husband caused her extreme mental anguish, Mrs. Agnes A. Longwell yesterday filed suit for divorce against Ray H. Longwell. The suit followed her release on her own recognisance after a hearing before Judge Guerin. The couple were married on the high seas off Colombia, South America, on January 12, 1915, and were separated on September 24, last.

BOULEVARD WIDENING IS APPROVED

State Board Authorizes Adding of Fifty Feet to Ventura Highway

The State Highway Commission, meeting here yesterday, approved a program for the widening of Ventura Boulevard between Universal City and Girard and awarded contracts for the construction of State highway work in San Diego and Colusa counties. The commission also advertised for bids for the paving of seven miles of highway between Beaumont and Redlands.

Members of the Ventura Boulevard Chamber of Commerce asked that Ventura Boulevard be widened from the present twenty feet to seventy feet. An agreement was reached whereby the commission will widen the highway eight feet and the remaining width will be constructed by property owners.

Contract for the construction of a reinforced concrete bridge across Sycamore Creek on the Coast Highway in San Diego county was awarded to H. H. Peterson of San Diego at a figure of $8366.50.

The commission also awarded a contract for the grading and surfacing of 6.9 miles of the Tahoe-Ukiah Highway in Colusa county to Giddings & Whyte of Sacramento. Their estimate was $63,530. The Beaumont to Redlands road will complete the paved highway between Los Angeles and Imperial Valley. The new pavement is to be twenty feet wide, six inches thick with nine-inch edges. The bids will be opened at Sacramento on November 3, next.

The petition presented to the commission by H. A. Lake, representing the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange county, for the widening of the State highway was referred back as the work has already been placed on the reconstruction program for next year. The highway is to be widened from fifteen feet to twenty-eight feet.

The commission denied the application for paving the unconstructed State highway between Lancaster and Palleys for lack of funds.

It was announced that the committee of nine, which is investigating the State highway system will meet here within the next three weeks to discuss the financing of future road construction.

Veteran of War Stricken Blind; Without Funds

Stricken blind suddenly three weeks ago, E. R. Green, a Canadian and veteran of the World War, is in Los Angeles friendless and without funds. Canadian War Veterans, a California organization of Canadians who served in the war, is trying to solve his problem.

Green is 28 years of age and served overseas for more than three years. He was severely gassed in the battle in Bois Wood and won medals for bravery in action.

The afflicted ex-soldier came here from Toronto and was stricken blind shortly after arrival. J. E. Smith, president of the Canadian veterans' organization, has been caring for him. Mr. Smith took him to the local Veterans' Bureau, but he was denied hospital treatment by the medical director, Dr. Donnelly, who stated that the bureau cannot permit treatment unless it can be proven that he was discharged as physically unfit. According to Mr. Smith, the veteran' blindness is the result of gassing and war injury.

Green was refused admittance to the General Hospital, Smith stated, on the grounds that it is a case for the Veterans' Bureau. The man is willing to work and anxious to learn a trade, Mr. Smith said. The latter can be reached at his home at 1927 South Hoover street.

"The people of Los Angeles, judging by the first performances, like the play," said Underwood yesterday. "The people of Los Angeles are like those in New York, just humans. And if they like it, New Yorkers will like it."

Riehle and Underwood will leave for New York today.

Will Give Message Over KHJ Today Beginning At 10:30 O'Clock

Rabbi Dr. Mayer Winkler, pastor of Sinai Congregation, will broadcast a message on "The Meaning of the Day of Atonement" from KHJ at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Dr. Winkler was to have delivered his address at 11:30, and graciously agreed to an advancement of the hour to make way for the baseball returns which are broadcast at 11 o'clock during the world series.

Dr. Winkler will be assisted in his program by Rev. Abraham Silverman, cantor, who will be accompanied by Mrs. Eva Schaur, organist of Sinai.

It's Pioneer Night At KHJ!

IN honor of California's pioneers and to introduce the Hellman Bank's six-horse stage coach to Radioland, there will be broadcasted from KHJ, the Times, tonight, one of the most unusual programs in radio history.

Starting at eight o'clock, the Hellman Bank stage coach will leave San Francisco for Los Angeles, carrying its cargo of mail and gold, driven by UNCLE JOHN, "the voice of KHJ." Beside Uncle John on the box will ride JOHN STEVEN McGROARTY, author of the "Mission Play" and famous California historian, poet and pioneer.

On the rear of the coach will ride a colored man by the name of REMUS. The passengers will include FOUR GOLD MINERS and AN OLD TAR, who has deserted an English sail boat, just arrived from the South Sea Islands.

Further down the trail will enter BENJAMIN SEARS and his OLD TIME FIDDLERS with the HUSKING BEE DANCERS and ANTONETTE, a beautiful Spanish dancer and singer.

As the climax will be staged an old time western hold-up, probably the first hold-up ever broadcasted.

Listen in tonight for a thrilling western program.

AUSTRALIA SHY ON "DRYS"

Ex-Lord Mayor of Sydney Calls "Pussyfoot" and His Followers Fanatics; Seeks Health Here

Classing "Pussyfoot" Johnson and his followers as fanatics, R. B. Meagher, formerly Lord Mayor of Sydney, Australia, and still prominent in Australian political and legal circles, in an interview at the Los Angeles Athletic Club yesterday, declared that prohibition has no chance in Australia but said that if it were the law of his country he would be among the first to denounce its infraction as an act against the integrity of organized government and unworthy of a loyal citizen.

Mr. Meagher, who is in Southern California for his health, and who was formerly an all-'round athlete and strong supporter of athletic events, is the guest of R. L. ("Snowy") Baker, well-known athlete.

"Yesterday was Australia Day for me," said Mr. Meagher. "'Snowy' and I visited the Uplifters' Ranch at Santa Monica, the spot on which were planted the first eucalyptus trees brought to America from my native land. We also visited Ralph Delugge's aviary, which contains the finest collection of Australian birds I have seen since leaving home, last August."

Mr. Meagher, who parted company with the Labor party of Australia at the outbreak of the World War because of his definite stand in favor of conscription, was chairman of the committee of the State House of Parliament in 1908 and was then Speaker of the House for five years. He served as Lord Mayor of Sydney from January of 1916 to the end of 1917, and is the only man in the history of the British Empire who has the distinction of having served as Lord Mayor of a city and Speaker of State Parliament at the same time. Since leaving Australia he has been nominated for Alderman at the election which takes place next December.

Mentioning, without comment, the trial and verdict in the case of the youthful murderers of Chicago, Mr. Meagher, who is one of the most successful criminal lawyers in Australia, said that in his country it is not enough to save a man from the gallows but that, if the accused man can be proved innocent, his attorney is expected to achieve his liberty through trial by jury.

Although this is his first visit to the United States, Mr. Meagher said that he had "always been contiguous to American sentiment, feeling that the people of his country and of America have much in common, especially as regards blood and language and the ideals of justice and liberty. He recalled with pleasure the official welcome which he extended to Robley D. Evans and the Battle Fleet at Sydney when the noted admiral was making his 'round-the-world trip in 1908.

"Do the Australian girls bob their hair?" Mr. Meagher was asked.

"Oh, yes, they're right up to date," answered Meagher. "However, there are indications that the good old days are coming back. Many of us are hoping so, at least. The strength of Sampson was in his hair and, 'the way we bee it,' much of the magnetism and charm of women are to be found in long tresses."

One of Mr. Meagher's most prized possessions, which he exhibited yesterday, is a $7 bill, United States money, issued in 1777. The bill was given to him by a Mr. Burke of New York, who married the daughter of Gen. Bennett, Bennett having served under Gen. U. S. Grant and having received the bill from a veteran whose grandfather had fought under George Washington. The inscription on the bill is as follows:

"Seven Dollars. This bill entitles the bearer to receive seven Spanish-milled dollars, or the value thereof in gold or silver, according to a resolution of Congress, passed at Philadelphia, May 20, 1777. S. Donnellan." On the opposite side of the bill are the words "Printed by Hall & Sellers, 1777."

CASH FOR LIBRARY DENIED

Council Finance Committee Says "No" to Plea for $114,000 to Buy Frontage Land

"So far as I am concerned," said Chairman Mushet of the City Council's Finance Committee at its meeting yesterday afternoon, "I am ready to vote for a new library board," and with that the committee unanimously said "No" on the board's request for $114,000. The money was asked for to pay for the land which will provide a Flower-street frontage for the $1,500,000 central Public Library to be built on Normal Hill.

A bond issue of $500,000 was authorized for the Flower-street land purchase, but the court awarded under condemnation $614,000 for the property, so the Board of Library Directors asked the Council for a donation from the City Treasury of the remaining $114,000. The request was referred to the Council's Finance Committee, and the Council will this morning probably adopt the committee's report.

Chairman Mushet said the library board will this year receive $87,000 more than last year, due to the increased property valuation on which the library's income is based, and will also receive $14,000 for the rental of Normal Hill as an automobile parking station. So the committee decided that the library board could get itself out of its financial difficulties without aid.

Chairman Mushet was critical of the library board and declared that it had wasted $49,000 on the new building by changing specifications for trimmings from California tufa stone to Indiana limestone, as well as discriminating against California products and had also awarded the contract, then rescinded its action and awarded the $1,000,000 job to another contractor.

There was no one present at the meeting to defend the library board.

Family Here on Visit for Month With Fredericks

Mrs. John D. Fredericks, wife of Congressman Fredericks, accompanied by her daughter Doris, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday at 2:15 p.m. on the Santa Fe from Washington.

They were met by Congressman Fredericks and went to the Los Angeles Country Club to live until after election, following which they will return to Washington. Mrs. Fredericks and her daughter recently returned from a tour of Europe.

O'CONNOR IS IDENTIFIED BY BANKER

"Big Bill" Picked Out of Line of Nine as Robber of Maywood Bank

William (Big Bill) O'Connor, reputed leader of a band of bank robbers, now awaiting trial at San Francisco as one of three men who held up a San Francisco jewelry store last July, escaping with $100,000 in loot, was identified yesterday as the man who held up the Bank of Maywood last year, making away with $4714. The identification was made by George Myers, president of the bank, who picked O'Connor out of a line of nine prisoners at the San Francisco jail.

O'Connor is suspected of membership in the band which held up the Provident Loan Association in Los Angeles last February, escaping with $200,000. It is believed that Jimmy Blanton, suspected as one of the robbers involved in the Provident Loan Association robbery, was killed here last May in a quarrel involving a division of the loot. O'Connor was indicted by the San Francisco county grand jury last August on a charge of robbing a San Francisco branch of the Bank of Italy and fleeing with $7000.

WORSE THAN GREELEY

Booth Tarking, whose beautiful prose is written in an execrable hand, was talking about bad handwriting.

"Joaquin Miller, the 'poet of the Sierras,'" he said, "wrote an even worse hand than Horace Greeley. Miller was once invited to be the guest of honor at a literary society's banquet in Boston, and the Boston committee could not tell whether his reply was an acceptance or a rejection. So a second note was sent him, saying:

"'Make a cross on a sheet of paper if you are coming and a circle if you are not, and mail to us. No writing.'

"Miller duly sent on the sheet of paper, marked as requested, but the committee was quite unable to make out whether the mark was a cross or a circle."—[Exchange.

ONE BOTTLE PER TIP OF HAT

Curiosity of Officers is Aroused by Extreme Politeness of Man in Street; His Arrest and That of Two Others in Hotel Reveal Asserted Bootleg Scheme

Federal prohibition officers assert that William M. Newman tipped them off yesterday to an entirely new method of bootlegging.

Not that Newman intended to, they say, but he was observed repeatedly tipping his hat to a woman seated in an automobile. His extreme politeness aroused their curiosity and the arrest of Newman, George Kramer and J. A. Dale in a room in the Alpine Hotel on South Hill street resulted.

For every time Newman tipped his hat, say the officers, it was a signal to his two companions in the room to bring down a bottle of liquor, at the rate of one container per tip.

Dale, it is asserted, had charge of the novel liquor vending scheme, and had cards printed bearing the inscription: "Dr. Turpentine. Spiritual Advisor. Appointment only."

PREMIERE OF LINCOLN FILM READY

Management of Criterion Completes Preparations for Show Tonight

Preparations for the western premiere of "Abraham Lincoln" tonight at the Criterion Theater are being made rapidly. The prologue, which is being staged under direction of Managing Director Harold Horne, is in shape for its first performance. In it will be George Billings, who portrays Abraham Lincoln in the picture, and thirty other actors and actresses. It will be in three scenes and it is said the most novel lighting scheme yet seen in Los Angeles will be one of the features of it. A special score which is all-American has been prepared by Adolph Tandler and the theater has been redecorated to fit the picture.

Present tonight at the opening will be many motion-picture stars, city officials and well-known people to witness the first western showing of a film which has caused critics, students, historians and lovers of Lincoln's life to give unstinted praise.

Bankrupt Tells of Horse Race Losses; Jailed

Unable to believe the story that a bankrupt man wagered and lost $32,000 on the horse races at Tia Juana, U. S. Dist. Judge Bledsoe sentenced William Berman to the County Jail yesterday until the money is replaced.

William Berman, partner in the firm of Jacobson & Berman, automobile tire dealers, formerly operating at 214-216 West Pico street, was the man jailed. The firm failed in April, 1923, with liabilities listed at $45,793 and assets as $8727.

In hearings on the case, it was asserted Berman drew $32,000 of the firm's money unknown to his partner, money said to have been paid by an insurance company on a fire loss.

Berman was ordered to place the money at the disposal of William H. Moore, Jr., trustee in bankruptcy, for the benefit of the creditors. Then Berman told of his racing losses. Judge Bledsoe held him in contempt.

GOETHALS ASKS FLOOD UNION

County Urged to Work With Pasadena, Los Angeles

Engineer Files Report on $35,000,000 Control Plan

Suggestions for Santa Anita, Pacoima Dams Made

An urgent suggestion that the county unite with the cities of Los Angeles and Pasadena on a harmonious co-operative basis in the matter of flood control and water supply in the San Gabriel Canyon is contained in a preliminary report made by Gen. Goethals to the Board of Supervisors on the county flood-control program.

The report is made by the builder of the Panama Canal as a consulting engineer in the county's $35,000,000 flood-control program. It covers various phases of the work from the purpose of the project to comments on two of the dams already designed, and recommendations for organization of the personnel to carry out the work.

Gen. Goethals points out in his report that the county's program is essentially one of flood control by means of construction of dams and other works. He adds that some water may be conserved behind the dams after danger of floods is passed, but that such a policy must be always attended with more or less hazard.

DATA MEAGER

In the matter of reservoir capacities, the report states that these are determined by hydrographic studies and reports. With the exception of the San Gabriel Canyon, data of this sort are rather meager. The two dams already designed—Pacoima and Big Santa Anita—are contemplated to handle floods 50 per cent greater than the highest known in those districts.

In the case of the Pacoima Dam, Gen. Goethals recommended certain modifications in design, including the suggestion of valvular control of a six-foot opening in the dam for the passage of water. As designed, the opening now calls for free passage of water.

In the case of the San Gabriel Dam, it is recommended that the capacity of the reservoir, and hence the height of the dam, be left for determination until exploration of the site is completed.

VARIOUS AGENCIES

On the matter of various agencies carrying on preliminary work that might very well be correlated, the reports states:

"The Tujunga site was selected because the city of Los Angeles contemplated the construction of a reservoir in the canyon. Presumably investigations were made before the conclusion to adopt this locality for the purpose was reached, yet there has been no conference, no exchange of records or data which might assist in the solution of the flood control problems.

"Pasadena is now exploring a site in San Gabriel Canyon for a water supply lower down than the one being explored by the Flood Control Board. The City of Los Angeles is contemplating a reservoir in the canyon for Colorado River water, if brought in, and is, I am informed, working with the Pasadena authorities.

"The Puddingstone Reservoir is another possible distributing point for the city supply obtained from the Colorado River.

CO-OPERATION LACKING

"These instances show an unfortunate lack of co-operation, and in the case of the San Gabriel, with three separate interests, each important, some way should be found to bring them together. I believe that by a combination of forces and resources, a solution can be worked out which will satisfy the requirements of each and which will result in economy and in ultimately expediting the work."

"What I am really proposing," says Gen. Goethals in his report, "is one-man control, with the same idea extending all the way down the line, and the proper civil service with the organization."

Centralized responsibility is what he a after, with the chief engineer having full control. The report urges the payment of good salaries to attract the best men.

COUNCIL ASKED TO LIFT PARKING BAN

RULE DECLARED NO LONGER NEEDED IN THIRD-STREET PETITION

Merchants and property owners on Third street, between Main and Hill streets, yesterday petitioned the City Council to repeal the no-parking regulation which prohibits the parking of vehicles on Third street from 7 a.m. to 11 a.m.

The petitioners declared that the regulation is no longer necessary as the Second-street tunnel is now carrying a large amount of the traffic formerly concentrated in the Third-street tunnel, and further that the regulation is injuring business and property values along that street.

AN OBJECT LESSON

A Great Bend man stood watching the circus unload and put its tents in order recently. With all its tremendous activity and multitudinous duties incident to circus life the Great Bend man was impressed with the system and orderly process with which everything was accomplished—the speed with which things were done, yet without confusion or bluster. At one time a wheel came off on one of the wagons. The boss said: "Now, just wait a minute; we've got plenty of time." The wagon was soon righted and on its way. "The thing that impressed me above all else," said the Great Bend man later, "was that I did not hear a cuss word uttered in all that great hive of industry where time meant money. Go into a pool hall and the players can't get through a game of Kelly pool without lots of swearing, yet those circus men could erect a small city in a few hours without an oath."—[Great Bend (Kan.) Operating cost less than that of short-lived units

MANY who need heating systems this year seem to be delaying their decision because nothing that they have investigated seems quite satisfactory.

They want a system that doesn't cost a lot of money, that won't require a general tearing up before it can be installed, that will be healthful, and—above all—economical and permanent.

There is one heating system that meets all these conditions—and it will reduce gas bills too.

That Is the Clow Gasteam Heating System

Each radiator is an independent steam heating plant. There is no heating system that costs less to operate. There is also no better heating system.

An automatic regulator controls the supply of gas to the burner so that the steam is kept at an even pressure no matter how the gas pressure may vary.

The Only Heating System That Will Not Dry the Air

Clow Gasteam Radiators represent the only type of heating that will not dry the air. The tiny Bunsen flames under the water chamber preserve the normal humidity.

Write or Telephone

Clow Gasteam Radiators have been approved by over twenty years of continuous use.

Send for designs and prices or telephone for a salesman to make an estimate of the cost of your requirements.

BONDS AUTHORIZED

Southern California Gas Gets Permit to Sell $2,000,000 Issue

The State Railroad Commission authorized the Southern California Gas Company yesterday to issue and sell on or before December 31, next, $2,000,000 of its Series B 5½ per cent bonds due September 1, 1952. The proceeds are to be used to reimburse the treasury for additions and betterments.

Permission was given by the commission to N. B. Tucker to operate an auto freight service between Los Angeles Harbor district and Corona for the transportation of citrus fruits and products.

The transfer of the Crown Stage Lines, operating between Santa Ana and Laguna Beach, from Carl E. Hofer to A. B. Watson was also authorized by the commission.

Tribute of Three Heifers

An odd legal case is on the docket of the council of state in Pau France. By virtue of a convention dating from the year 1375 the commune of Lanne in this department pays an annual tribute of three heifers to the Spanish town councils of the Valley of Roncal, across the frontier. In consideration of this tribute, the people of Lannes are permitted to pasture their livestock on the Spanish slopes of the Pyrenees.

Every year the payment of this tribute has been attended by interesting ceremonies, but, for more than half a century, the commune has been urging that the departmental budget should allow Lanne a certain credit as the department's share of the tribute paid to the Roncalais.—[Le Petit Parisien.

WELL, WHAT IS IT?

In the motion picture, "Robin Hood," Lady Marian desires to send a message to the Earl of Huntington and chooses Little John to act as her messenger. She presents John with a scroll which is protected by what seems to be a black case or tube.

As he handed it over, a small boy in the audience asked his mother what it was.

"That's a flashlight," she answered in a loud voice.

"Don't show your ignorance, Mary," said her husband. "They didn't have flashlights in those days. That's a thermos bottle."—[American Legion Weekly.

MABEL ADAMS IS VISITOR HERE

Head of War Nurses Arrives on Globe-Touring Ship

Now Superintends Hospital for Government in East

Passengers Tell of Two-Day Fight With Typhoon

The President Adams, starting her third cruise around the world, came into port yesterday with a capacity passenger list and her holds full of freight. Capt. Jonas Pendlebury also brought an interesting yarn about the migration of European quail to Arabia.

MABEL K ADAMS

Among the passengers disembarking here was Miss Mabel K. Adams, known to more than 1,000,000 Canadian and Americans who fought in France. Miss Adams is now superintendent at the Marine Hospital of the United States Public Health Service on Staten Island and is here on a vacation. In 1915 she headed a contingent of American nurses who went to France with the Canadian Expeditionary Force and worked directly back of the lines throughout a year's fighting in Flanders. She came home in 1916 and then took over a corps of United States Army nurses, with which organization she served in France until 1919.

The first person Miss Adams met yesterday after the President Adams dropped anchor was Maj. Robert H. Heterick, now chief of the United States Public Health Service here and who formerly was Miss Adams's chief surgeon at Staten Island. Incidentally, Miss Adams is a direct descent of John Adams, after whom the President Adams is named.

While the President Adams was steaming through the Suez Canal last month, between Ismalia and Port Said, those aboard noticed huge nets stretched between the palms. Capt. Pendlebury explained that the nets were used for trapping quail, which every autumn migrate from Northern Europe to Southern Arabia.

"They pass over the Suez Canal and stop at this oasis for food and water, season after season," explained Capt. Pendlebury. "The time of passage never varies more than a day or two. Thousands of the birds are caught in the nets every season and shipped to the Cairo and Alexandria markets."

The President Adams fought a two-day typhoon between Manila and Singapore, and while en route from Penang to Colombo she was shoved along by the southwest monsoon.

Prominent among her ninety-five cabin passengers were William Brayton, local capitalist, returning from a tour of New England; P. A. B. Miel, silk exporter of Amsterdam, accompanied by his wife; F. F. Jonsberg, sportsman of Boston and St. Petersburg, Fla., and Mrs. Jonsberg; Mrs. Walter Newbold of Philadelphia and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Deming of Shanghai.

The vessel will sail for the Orient tonight after loading 1600 tons of Los Angeles freight and embarking forty-five passengers.

CAPTAIN IS DROWNED IN HEAVY SEA

Veteran Local Skipper is Washed from Bridge Off Columbia River

Capt. Charles A. Johansen, who, for years has sailed from Los Angeles Harbor, was washed from the bridge of his vessel and drowned off the mouth of Columbia River Sunday night, according to a radio message received at the Harbor yesterday.

Capt. Johansen was master of the lumber steamer Hartwood, owned by the Hartwood Lumber Company and plying between Los Angeles and North Pacific ports. The Hartwood ran into heavy weather crossing the Columbia Bar, the message said, and Capt. Johansen was drawn overboard by a sudden lurch combined with a big sea. His body was not recovered, though the Hartwood remained in the vicinity and conducted a search for several hours.

The Hartwood is being brought to Los Angeles by her first officer. Capt. Johansen has made Los Angeles Harbor his headquarters for thirty years.

Fossils Found in Excavation Now at Library

An exhibit of fossils found in the Upper Pliocene and gathered by J. Beller, transient, while excavation work was being done for the Central Library site, near Fifth street and Grand avenue, has been donated by him to the Public Library and now is on exhibition.

Mr. Beller, who has made a study of geology, said the fossils were evidence that the climate in this section when the shells were deposited in the sea was much colder. This was shown, he s aid, by the finding of the same living shellfish at the present time in much colder latitudes and the lack of them in the warmer latitudes.

Among the fossils are sharks' teeth, indicating sharks at least twenty-five feet in length; petrified whale bone and carbonized wood.

CANADIAN LAID AT REST

Funeral services for Joseph Parr were conducted yesterday at the chapel of George A. Fitch, with burial at Forest Lawn, under Masonic auspices. Mr. Parr died Friday, at 45 years of age. He came to Los Angeles a year ago from Calgary. He leaves his widow, two sisters, Mrs. C. Fish of Los Angeles and Mrs. W. H. Edwards of Sault Sainte Marie, Ont., and two brothers, Ernest and Fred Parr of Sault Sainte Marie.

PAUL ENGSTRUM WED AGAIN

Society Man, Much in Public Prints Few Years Ago, Takes Eastern Girl as Third Wife

Paul Engstrum, young society man, whose adventures some years ago gave him front-page publicity in many of the nation's newspapers, has taken a third plunge into matrimony, it was disclosed yesterday.

Engstrum, it was revealed, was married on September 26, last, to Miss Florence Dean Meyers of New York, the beautiful daughter of Mrs. Armand Serpos, and the sister of Mrs. Alvin Newmyer of Washington, whose husband ranks as one of the leading corporation lawyers of the nation.

The marriage ceremony was performed by a justice of the peace at Santa Barbara, Mrs. Engstrum said. She disclosed also that she and her husband first met at Washington and that they had been engaged for two years. The drive to Santa Barbara and the marriage there, it appeared from Mrs. Engstrum's statement, seemed to have been the result of mutual inspiration on the part of herself and her husband. Mr. Engstrum was out of the city yesterday and his bride stated that he had gone to San Francisco on business, but that he will return today.

The wedding had been kept a secret until yesterday, when friends of the couple divulged it. At the present time Mr. and Mrs. Engstrum are making their home at the Ambassador. Later they will build a home near Hancock Park on Wilshire Boulevard.

Mrs. Engstrum is widely known socially. She attended some of the smart finishing schools in the East, as well as Mason's College at Tarrytown, N. Y., and Smith College at Northampton, Mass. During the war she was enrolled in the Motor Corps of the National League for Women's Service and also went abroad with the Devastated France Committee. More recently she has been engaged in social service work. She has been in Los Angeles since May.

Engstrum is the son of F. O. Engstrum, at one time the city's leading building contractor and the possessor of a fortune estimated in excess of $1,000,000.

During the war young Engstrum served in the Navy and was commissioned. He distinguished himself repeatedly.

It was prior to America's entrance into the war, however, that the young club and society man won for himself the attention of the newspaper-reading public and a number of times that of the courts. His two marriages and subsequent divorces furnished sensations in society circles.

SHIP BOARD MEMBERS IN HARBOR TRIP

Commissioners Pleased With Progress of Port in Last Eight Months

The Pacific Coast's two commissioners on the United States Shipping Board, Meyer Lissner of Los Angeles and Burt E. Haney of Portland, visited Los Angeles Harbor yesterday in company with port officials, representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and shipping interests. It was their second visit to the port in eight months and both expressed themselves as agreeahl surprised at the progress made.

The commissioners were particularly interested in the series of slips and two-story sheds under construction on Terminal Island, the harbor department's biggest single unit of terminal construction. Unusually generous facilities for handling freight by trucks at these sheds were commented on by the visitors.

The party had lunch aboard the liner City of Los Angeles at Wilmington and cruised about the harbor in the afternoon on a speedy new inspection cruiser of the harbor department's. They returned to the city at 4 p.m.

The party included, besides Mr. Lissner and Mr. Haney, C. J. Colden, president of the Harbor Commission; Capt. S. S. Sandberg, port traffic manager; F. W. Relyea, district director at San Francisco of the Shipping Board; Clarence Matson of the Chamber of Commerce; Fred L. Baker, Eric Leaf and L. R. McFie of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corporation; Ralph Chandler, manager of the Los Angeles Steamship Company, and Maj. H. T. Leeds, consulting engineer for the Committee of Two Hundred.

Business Man Is Defendant in Heart Balm Suit

Peter Gross, also known as Joseph Gross, reputed wealthy business man, was named defendant in a breach of promise suit for $150,000 damages filed yesterday in Superior Court by Gertrude Isensie, also known as Alma Gross.

In her complaint the plaintiff stated Gross represented to her July 30, 1921, that he had been legally divorced from a former wife. The plaintiff said she was married to Gross and continued to live with him until January 30, 1922, when he was said to have informed her he had not obtained a final decree. She declared Gross promised to marry her again when he received the final decree.

In July of this year, Gross was said to have refused to marry her and to have entered marital relations with another. The complaint was prepared by Attorney Isador Morris.

Rain Prevents Flame's Spread on Venice Pier

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Oct. 6.—A heavy shower which began falling about 6:30 p.m., prevented serious damage by fire to $1,000,000 worth of amusement concessions on the Kinney Pier. The fire started in the Coal Mine, Inc., a ride owned by Harry Woody and Ed Cooper, and was conquered in about an hour with damage of $2000.

Chief of Police Hubbard, ill with inflammatory rheumatism, was present on crutches.

This pier burned in 1920, with a loss of more than $1,000,000.

Chamber Passes Resolution to Cheer Sick Man

A resolution commending the work of F. J. Zeehandelaar, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, in building up Los Angeles and his thirty-year fight for industrial freedom, was passed yesterday by the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce, in view of Mr. Zeehandelaar's serious illness.

The resolution, intended to bring "cheer and encouragement" to Mr. Zeehandelaar, closed with the hope he would be spared to many years of life and service. The resolution was suggested by President Lacy.

Union Pacific Is Given Permit for Passenger Rails

The State Railroad Commission yesterday granted permission to the Union Pacific to construct a passenger track parallel to its existing track along Butte street. The authority was given as a means of facilitating access to the Arcade Station in connection with its recent order which allowed the Union Pacific to make joint use of the station with the Southern Pacific.

A temporary permit was granted the Board of Supervisors by the commission to construct Bandini Boulevard at grade across tracks of the San Pedro branch of the Union Pacific. Final decision on the crossing is being held in abeyance until an investigation can be made into the feasibility of separating the grades.

The city of Pasadena was given permission to establish a grade crossing over the Pacific Electric tracks at the extension of Walnut street from its present terminus.

An overhead crossing, separating the tracks of the Pacific Electric at Bridge street near City Terrace Station was authorized by the commission. The Board of Supervisors and the Los Angeles County Grade Crossing Committee already have approved the application.

Improvement in Electrical Trade is Seen

Business transacted by electrical jobbers is showing a steady upward movement throughout most sections of the country, according to the Electrical World, New York. While this is a normal fall increase in demand, coming as it has after a period of reduced activity it is indicative of a healthy general condition. Buyers are showing more confidence in the market, and electrical men express the belief that sales will increase in volume.

A manufacturer of electrical instruments reports that total sales for the whole country to September 1 are equal to those of last year for the same period. The manufacturing trend has been steadily toward a reduction of costs by the installation of more efficient machinery and business is gradually being increased by extraordinary sales efforts.

Pacific Coast September sales have been disappointing, as they failed to show an expected improvement, owing largely to decreased business from railroads and power companies.

VETERAN EXECUTIVE HONORED BY FRIENDS

In commemoration of the eighteth birthday of John M. Elliott, chairman of the board of directors of the First National Bank of Los Angeles and dean of the banking profession in Southern California, the officers and employees of the bank yesterday presented him with a silver loving cup as a token of their esteem.

The members of the bank staff who gathered together to witness the presentation were addressed by Charles F. Stern, president of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank and executive vice-president of the First National Bank of Los Angeles. The actual presentation was made by A. C. Way, retired vice-president of the institution, who was with the First National Bank from March, 1894, until his resignation a year ago.

A cup was also presented to John MacKay Elliott, the second, Mr. Elliott's grandson, born about two weeks ago. The cup bore the inscription, "May the name never perish from the earth."

VALUES SLASHED IN SALE OF PRIME CITRUS GROVES

Choicest Fruit Orchards with big crops, full water rights and best improvements—Ideal homesites of 5 acres or more—Going while they last at $500 to $800 per acre in sensational liquidation of beautiful property because English owners want the cash

Here is the chance of a lifetime to get at a price so low it staggers belief, a few acres or more of the best soil in California, planted 25 years ago to finest selected citrus stock, cultivated to high peak production and now loaded with fruit that this year should approximately pay for the purchase price. You get all this at actual prices being paid for bare land in the district—and we throw in all improvements including model water system with underground cement pipes to every row of trees.

No wonder the neighbors living nearby bought a half-million dollars worth of this land during the first six weeks of the sale. If we had not had an "orange empire" of 3400 acres in this property to sell, the last acre would now be gone. The remaining acreage includes some of the best groves on the estate.

Read This List of What We Offer in the Land Bargain Sale of the Year

Soil described by experts as unexcelled in California in fertility—deep, rich loam; abundant water supply from only "ever-flowing river" in Southern California; selected citrus trees, matured and brought to highest point of production by years of scientific cultivation; land located within 5 miles of center of city of 37,000, famous for community wealth and scenic beauty; improvements on property costing millions of dollars—and every acre gets its share of these; homesites with wonderful views of valley and mountains; within two hours by motor of center of Los Angeles; climate that wealthy people have picked for all-the-year homes; best of marketing facilities for your crops; land perfectly suited to diversified farming and poultry-raising as well as fruit growing—AND ONLY $500 TO $800 PER ACRE ON EASY TERMS—YOU NEED PAY DOWN ONLY 30 PER CENT OF PURCHASE PRICE.

The heirs in England of the men who bought the land 30 years ago and developed the property voted to turn it into money at once. They gave their Los Angeles agents instructions to force the sale through prices so low that quick action was certain. You will never again be able to buy land like this at these prices. But you must act quickly to get one of these homesites. They will soon be off the market.

Investigate this opportunity at once. If you are in the market for a Southern California country home that will yield a substantial income, an investment of the most unusual merit or a speculation that assures a quick turn-over and a handsome profit, you can't afford to overlook this chance—it is one you may never have again. We can show you where buyers of this acreage have sold their land at a big per cent profit within a few weeks to persons who were not aware of our offering. A well-known Los Angeles business man bought more than 200 acres of this property as an investment and now refuses to sell part of his bargain for less than three times what he paid for it. These are facts that we will be glad to prove to you.

Let us take you to the property and show it to you. There is no obligation to you incurred in looking into this—do it this week.

AIR MAIL FIELD IS OFFERED

Los Angeles Woman Would Furnish Tract Midway to Salt Lake City; Order Cuts Time Twelve Hours

As an added inducement to the government to establish an air-mail route to Los Angeles a wealthy Los Angeles woman yesterday offered to give a free lease on a large tract of land midway between Salt Lake City and Los Angeles that could be used as a landing field.

Mrs. J. Cronin, widow of a Nevada mining man, made the offer in a letter to Postmaster O'Brien. She stated the two-mile-square plot of ground at the upper end of Fish Lake Valley was level and admirably situated as a landing field.

Postmaster O'Brien also declared that he had received a telegram from Senator Shortridge, in which the Senator declared he was doing everything in his power to obtain the air mail route for Los Angeles.

SERVICE BETTERED

Expediting the service already inaugurated, word was received at the local office yesterday that in the future Los Angeles mail in the air mail will be separated at Salt Lake City and sent directly here by the next fast train. According to Postmaster O'Brien, this will cut off twelve hours in the delivery time.

The local postmaster sees in the order, which was made by Luther K. Bell, chief of the United States Air Mail Service, a recognition by the Air Mail Service that Los Angeles is entitled to better service and he stated that he looked forward hopefully to the visit of Bell and his chief assistant, Worley, next Sunday to study the air mail situation for two weeks.

SLOGAN FOR DRIVE

"Every Angeleno an air-mail user" is the slogan adopted by the Chamber of Commerce in the campaign.

President Lacy of the chamber, in a proclamation issued yesterday, urged everyone to use the air-mail service at least every other month in order to insure the necessary volume of mail.

"If every one of the 1,170,000 people in Los Angeles sent a letter East by airplane mail every second month, this city would have direct service," states Mr. Lacy. "Assuming that it takes thirty letters to make a pound, a total of 39,000 pounds of mail would move out of Los Angeles every sixty days, or an amount equivalent to 650 pounds daily."

SCHOOLS IN DAHLIA SHOW

Dahlias grown by children in agricultural courses in the public schools will be exhibited at a dahlia show opening today at the Agricultural Center, Forty-first street and McKinley avenue. The show will mark the opening of the center to general inspection by the public. Clayton F. Palmer, superintendent of agricultural education in the public schools, will be in charge.

PROGRESS BEING MADE ON CAR TUBE

Exceptionally rapid progress is being made in the construction of the one-mile underground bore through which Pacific Electric trains to Glendale, Hollywood and San Fernando Valley points will be operated.

Crews, working in eight-hour shifts, both day and night, every day and Sunday, are driving the tunnel to completion from two ends. At First and Glendale Boulevard, which will form the west portal of the tunnel, the workmen have driven through solid earth for a distance of 853 feet. Concrete workers have lined 800 feet of the tunnel.

From the opposite end, the workmen are excavating in two directions. They are boring westward to meet the crews working from the First street and Glendale Boulevard terminus and east toward the Hill-street station. These crews began operations between Flower and Figueroa streets and have made a total advance in both directions of 550 feet. Of this 325 feet has been lined.

The contract was let by the Pacific Electric to Twohy Brothers some months ago. W. R. Fontaine, consulting engineer for the contracting concern, is supervising the operations.

Construction of the tube will entail an expenditure of approximately $3,500,000.

REAL BEER SALE CHARGED

Charging him with delivering real beer from a garage at 4705 South Normandie avenue, Federal prohibition officers arrested Artand Hadley and got out a warra...t for Thurman H. Mankin, lessee of the garage. Hadley, say the officers, was making his deliveries in a truck that was painted with large signs extolling the merits of home-made pies.

Last Session of Inquiry on Collision at Bay City is Scheduled for Today

The final session of the naval court of inquiry to determine culpability for the accident in San Francisco Bay September 27, last, in which five vessels of the United States Battle Fleet collided, will be held this morning aboard the U.S.S. California, Capt. Raymond L. Hasbrouck, commanding the California, is president of the board.

The accident occurred when the naval tanker Cuyama dragged her anchor in San Francisco Bay, while the destroyers Wood and Hull were moored alongside taking fuel. The gale blew the Cuyama down the bay until she collided with the battleships Tennessee and Arizona, while the Wood and Hull also collided with the war craft and damaged their own hulls in getting free of the Cuyama.

It is believed the prevailing heavy weather on San Francisco Bay will be held responsible for the crash, although no statement as to its findings has yet been made by the court.

The superdreadnaught Maryland, now completing annual overhaul at the Puget Sound Navy Yard, will rejoin the fleet here on the 15th inst., while the light cruiser Omaha, flagship of the destroyer squadrons, will depart for that yard tomorrow morning for her overhaul.

Battleship Division 3, including the dreadnaught Pennsylvania, Oklahoma and Nevada, will depart from Los Angeles Harbor on the 20th inst., for five days of torpedo battle practice off Coronado. Seaplanes and destroyers will spot the shots of the battleships and assist in retrieving the spent torpedoes. The ships will anchor off Coronado at night and will return here on the 25th inst.

CREDIT CLEARINGS OF COUNTRY DECLINE

With the exception of the Pacific Coast, which is 1.2 per cent higher than a week ago, a natural recession in merchandising activity equal to 3 per cent in the country as a whole is reported by the Credit Clearinghouse in its weekly analysis of conditions. The largest decrease is in the north agricultural section, equal to 5.4 per cent. The south agricultural district records a decline of 3.6 per cent, the middle agricultural and east sections had a drop of 3 per cent, and the mountain section shows the smallest decrease, equal to 1.3 per cent.

Stagnation Seen if Street Bonds Fail at Election

Failure to adopt the proposed $3,000,000 bond issue for street improvements means the stagnation of Los Angeles, Harry H. Culver declared last night in accepting the presidency of the Greater Jefferson Improvement Association, a merger of eight local improvement associations effected last night.

"Competent technical experts studying traffic congestion have blown a siren," he said. "Unless citizens, taxpayers and business interests heed the warning Los Angeles is doomed. Its growth will be stunted, progress retarded, traffic stopped and streets blocked. It is not a question of what must be done but how soon can it be done."

S. K. Euber was elected vice-president of the association. The meeting was conducted at Jefferson and University streets.

PRELIMINARY DRIVE FOR CHEST STARTED

EIGHT THEATERS START RUN OF FILMS, AND TOUR TO CLINIC MADE

Showing of Community Chest films in eight downtown theaters and the taking of a party of clergymen, members of the Optimists' Club and directors of the Girls' Corner Club on a "see-for-yourself" tour of institutions to be financed from the Chest, marked the opening yesterday of the preliminary campaign for this consolidation of charity drives.

At the Child Guidance Clinic, 1401 South Grand avenue, Dr. Ralph B. Truitt outlined the purposes of the institution and declared his belief that it would cut down materially social wastage. The clinic, founded by the National Commission of Mental Hygiene, seeks, he said, to correct nervous disorders in children such as lead in after years to insanity and crime. The Los Angeles clinic now has 600 children under its care, ranging from 2 to 17 years of age, and many more have applied for examination and treatment.

The clinic is supported now by the Commonwealth Fund, an institution similar to the Rockefeller Foundation, which is starting these clinics in various parts of the country and supporting them for one year, after which they are to be supported by their surrounding communities. With 120 other social institutions, the clinic will draw its support after January 1 from the Community Chest.

From the clinic the party was taken to the Eastside Mothers' Club and inspected the work done at that institution.

STEVENSON'S FIRST FLAME

The death of Lady Colvin snaps many literary links. She had passed her eightieth year and until less than two years ago enjoyed a zest for friendship and for books that had animated her whole life. It may seem strange, since R. L. Stevenson is still so much a man of the present age, to read of a woman of 80 years, that "she awakened his first great passion, which she knew how to rein and control, while animating his mind and fixing his character."

But one is apt to forget that if Stevenson had survived, this woman friend, to whom so many of his best letters were written, he would now have been in his seventy-fifth year; so that they were really close contemporaries.

Lady Colvin was Frances Jane Featherstonhaugh, of a Northumbrian family, which migrated to Ireland in Elizabethan times. As Mrs. Sitwell, she was the wife of an East End clergyman, who had as curates John Richard Green, the historian, and H. R. Haweis. As the wife of Sir Sidney Colvin, she was alertly in touch with London's innumerable literary interests for about fifty years. — [Weekly Edinburgh Scotsman.

DEATH LAID TO BEAUTY DOCTOR

Indictment in Operation Will be Asked Today

Dr. Gertrude Steele's Past to be Investigated

Own Daughter to Take Stand Before Grand Jury

daughter and witness to the operation; Mrs. Emma Graham, a friend of the dead woman, and Mrs. Grace E. Fish, a niece.

At present only the case of Mrs. Leslie will be considered.

"Emma, we're getting old," she told her friend, Mrs. Emma Graham, one day last July.

"I only suggested that she start taking facial massages," Mrs. Graham told Detective Lieutenants Cullen and French and Special Agent Carter yesterday.

"She was a woman of excellent health and physique for one of her age. The next thing I knew, she had gone to Dr. Steele to have her face lifted."

Dr. Steele conducted her beauty institute at 2869 Winfield street. She advertised herself extensively as "the miracle beauty creator who, during the past decade, has led the world in eliminating disfigurements, correcting hideous features and replacing ugliness with refined comeliness."

She accepted the credit for the rejuvenation of Edna Wallace Hopper and Mme. Yorska. She advertised that artists from France and other European countries journeyed to her Los Angeles institute of beauty to have her miracles performed upon them.

Dr. Steele's patients were many. They come to have their faces chemically peeled of wrinkles and "crow's feet," to have scars and smallpox pits eliminated, to have eye wrinkles and puffy tissues removed.

Dr. Steele advertised that she could remodel malformed noses—the hump, saddle-back, snub, pug, drooping and broken noses. She advertised that she could eliminate sensuality and grossness of nature from thick-lipped and drooping mouths, that she could remodel any mouth into a perfect Cupid's bow. Her operations also consisted of beautifying the chin and neck by removing the "turkey wattles," by building up and molding new chins.

TELLS OF OPERATION

Mrs. Leslie read these advertisements and called upon Dr. Steele.

"I was astounded by her wonderful health and physical carriage for one of her age," Mrs. Gertrude Solomon told the investigators.

Mrs. Solomon is the daughter of Dr. Steele. Since last April she had acted as her mother's assistant in all her operations, according to her own admission to Detective Lieutenants Cullen and French.

"My mother performed the operation upon Mrs. Leslie," she continued. "I was a witness to the operation, standing beside her all the while.

"A few days after the operation, Mrs. Leslie came back. Infection had begun in the incisions. She remained at my mother's house for ten days and all that time I begged my mother to call in a physician. But she would not. She would take the top of my head off for butting in and all the time she was trying to treat Mrs. Leslie she appealed more to the divine powers to help her rather than to her own common sense."

Mrs. Leslie was taken from the Steele Institute by Mrs. Emma Graham of 111 South Hoover street.

"I learned that Mrs Leslie was in a bad condition and that she was being kept at Mrs. Steele's house," said Mrs. Graham. "I went to see her. I found her reclining on a window seat. Her face was in a terrible condition and her clothing was all bloody. I had her removed to my home.

"At my home Mrs. Leslie grew worse each day. She told me Dr. Steele had performed the operation. Terrible abscesses were appearing all over her and she complained of pains in her swollen hands.

"If I had a husband he would go down there and kill those people for doing this to me,' she told me."

While being cared for at Mrs. Graham's home, Dr. James Reeve Dean, with offices at 1501 South Figueroa street, was called by Mrs. Grace E. Fish, a niece of Mrs. Leslie.

OPERATION BLAMED

"I found two incisions had been made upon Mrs. Leslie's head," Dr. Dean told the investigators. "These incisions began at the hairline on the forehead and each extended downward and along the side of the face, in front of the ears and then curved back behind the ears.

"Upon Mrs. Leslie's neck I found an ugly abscess, filled with infected matter and with a drain at the top of the abscess instead of at the bottom, where it should have been. The incisions on the forehead had left ugly wounds. Pyemia had set in and had centered on one of the patients hips and upon one of her hands, which was swollen to twice its normal size. Dirty surgery was the cause of the infection, in my opinion.

"I cared for Mrs. Leslie for three weeks and she died on September 8. There is no question in my mind that her death was due to infection caused by the facial operation. This, understand, is only my personal opinion."

In the bureau of vital statistics, in the Bullard Block, the certificate recording Mrs. Leslie's death was found. It was signed by Dr. Dean and gave "abscess of neck and legs" as the cause of death, with "pyemia"—generally known as blood poisoning—as the contributory cause.

With this information in their possession Detective Lieutenants Cullen and French and Special Agent Carter called at the Steele Plastic Surgery Institute on Winfield street to question Dr. Steele. A "for rent" sign was all that could be found there.

From neighbors, the investigators learned that Dr. Steele had vacated her place about three weeks ago, leaving her daughter in charge and leaving no forwarding address. From two physicians information was obtained that Dr. Steele was last seen boarding a motor stage for San Francisco. The physicians were equally anxious to find the "beauty doctor," they told the officers, because they had been compelled to pay a judgment for $2500, which Pauline Hall, a motion-picture actress, had won from Dr. Steele in a recently contested damage suit in which the actress charged her face had been mutilated by Dr. Steele. The physician had signed Dr. Steele's bond.

Tracing this meager clew, Mrs. Solomon, the daughter, was found at 5232 Buchanan street, Highland Park.

Mrs. Solomon also declared she was anxious to find her mother, because she had been left destitute and in ill health and with all of Dr. Steele's bills to pay.

Mrs. Solomon is the widow of George Blaha, for whose death Dr. Steele was charged with murder three years ago. At that time, according to testimony introduced at the inquest over Blaha's body in Venice, and according to information gathered by Special Agent Carter for the State Board of Medical Examiners, Blaha died from chloroform poisoning administered by Dr. Steele during a facial operation.

Dr. Steele had offered to remove freckles from Blaha's face through one of her treatments, according to her own testimony. She applied a solution of carbolic acid, calomel and alcohol—her own concoction—to Blaha's face with a small sponge. The son-in-law complained of the extreme pain and Dr. Steele then administered the chloroform. Blaha died before medical assistance could be obtained. At the coroner's inquest Autopsy Surgeon Wagner testified he had found evidence of chloroform poisoning in the patient's kidneys and brain cells.

Dr. Steele's license as a naturopath was revoked and she was charged with murder. The case was taken before the Superior Court on a writ of review by her attorneys, who argued that Dr. Steele had the right to perform the operation because the Legislature had not defined what her naturopathic license permitted her to do. Her right to resume her practice was restored by Superior Judge Burnell.

DECLARED BUTCHERY

Since the Blaha case, the State Supreme Court has handed down a decision affirming the contention of the State Board of Medical Examiners that naturopaths have not the right to practice with drugs or to perform surgical operations, the investigators declare. Upon this decision, known as Millsap vs. State Board of Medical Examiners and which was published several months ago, the combined forces of the District Attorney's office, the medical board and the police department agree in their opinion that Dr. Steele had no legal right to perform surgical operations, and that an illegal operation caused the death of Mrs. Leslie.

"It is one of the worst cases of butchery that has ever come before me as a prosecutor of homicide cases," Dep. Dist.-Atty. Dennison declared yesterday when all the information was submitted to him. "The practice of certain persons performing illegal operations in the guise of plastic surgery when they have no legal right to do so, is becoming so flagrant that this is a good time to launch a campaign to stop it."

Among the many campiaints filed with the State Board of Medical Examiners against Dr. Steele, the following were found:

Michael Goane, 19 years of age, 873 North Bunker Hill avenue, who died in Dr. Steele's office while undergoing treament for the removal of a scar from his cheek.

Martin J. Colbert, who, in San Francisco, "came to his death from shock caused by a carbolic acid application and anesthetic treatment at the hands of Dr. Gertrude Steele while the patient was in an unfit physical condition," according to the verdict of a Coroner's jury.

Miss Pauline Hall, motion-picture actress, who recently won a judgment of $2500 against Dr. Steele for an asserted mutilation of her face by the naturopath. Miss Hall testified in court that her lower lip had been "frozen" and that while Dr. Steele performed the operation, the beauty doctor communed with the Universe and prayed for the success of the operation. Dr. Steele contested the suit, but the State Supreme Court affirmed the decision.

CASES "WORKED OVER"

Arthur Carew of 1408 Hobart Boulevard, who had been operated on for a hump nose. Dr. Steele, according to Carew, cut a piece from his nose, cut strips of flesh from each temple and severed an artery which she first attempted to close with her fingers, later attempting to stop the flow of blood by prayer. Relief did not arrive until the patient was removed to a hospital.

Miss I. Vogel, formerly employed at the Ambassador Beauty Parlors, who reported that her face had been mutilated in an unsatisfactory nose operation.

Rina Amato, 116 South Hope street, who reported that in January, 1923, Dr. Steele had cut off the end of her nose and had disfigured her face for life.

From Dr. T. Floyd Brown, with offices in the Pantages Building, investigators learned that Dr. Brown had "worked over" many cases of surgical operations which were handled by Dr. Steele.

Another patient declared Dr. Steele requested all of her patients to sign the following form, absolving her from any after-effects of her operations:

"I hereby certify that the operation and subsequent treatment to be performed upon me is at my own request and I hereby absolve Dr. G. D. Steele and Company from all responsibility from any results therefrom."

Dr. Steele is 42 years of age. In her advertising literature she sets forth that she has practiced facial surgery in California since 1903, that she has made over the faces of thousands of men and women, that her reputation is world-wide and that her clientele consists of persons from all over the world, especially the United States, England, France and Australia. She also advertises that:

"The work is done conscientiously, with perfect technical skill in feature correcting under Divine Guidance.

DIVORCE-GIVING DOCTOR IN NET

Michael Crespo Arrested on Charge of Fraud

Student of Occult Caught Taking Marked Cash

Bills Are Given to Purchase Mexican Decree

ance he added the arts of a spiritual medium, and to them he joined seances before the crystal, in which events past, present and future and wonderful to behold were foretold for the sum of $2.

MEMORY FAULTY

Just when he began the sale of drugs he did not remember. But he admitted the ownership, manufacture and vending of a preparation of something inclosed in capsules and ensconced in a neat white box on which appeared the label: "Dr. Crespo's Treatment; Genuine Remedy for Chronic Constipation; Blood Impurities; Intestinal Indigestion; Poor Appetite; Morose Disposition; Sluggish Liver and Biliousness, Price $2 or three boxes for $5"

To prove his legitimacy in this undertaking, the "doctor" exhibited a license as an itinerant peddler of patent medicines issued by the State Board of Pharmacy. He admitted that he was not a physician, was not licensed to prescribe or compound or manufacture medicines, but only to peddle them.

He also exhibited a city license made out to "Dr. Crespo's Healing Center," presumably his spiritualist church, which authorized the distribution of advertising concerning that particular enterprise, in conformity, of course, with existing statutes.

LICENSE FOUND

In the same office was found a license for the operation of a massage parlor; the apparatus consisting of a cheap electric vibrator, a cheaper violet ray apparatus and a recently patented and marketed article known as a "sun lamp."

It was several months ago, Crespo admitted, that he first conceived the idea of getting divorces in Mexico. His original intention, he insisted, was to act merely as agent for attorneys there, and to divulge information as to the manner in which alimonial freedom could be obtained in the southern republic.

He had read much of the laxity of the laws of the Mexican State of Yucatan in matrimonial affairs; of how thirty days' residence entitled one to get a divorce on "mutual consent" alone. This practice, he felt, would materially interfere with his business prospects unless it could be bettered.

HE ADVERTISES

So in various newspapers he inserted advertisements. One of these, placed under a classification for attorneys, said:

"MEXICO? For information as to husband and wife affairs come to this office. Save time, trouble and long trip to Yucatan. 145 South Spring street, room 204."

One of the newspapers in which these advertisements appeared was The Times. And in accordance with the policy of keeping the columns of The Times free from fraudulent advertisements an inquiry was started. This received the active co-operation of Prosecutor Friedlander.

Advice as to the peculiarities of Mexican statutes covering marriage and divorce was first obtained from Antonio Melgarejo Randolph, Mexican attorney, who formerly was judge of the Supreme Court of the State of Chihuahua. Interested in the case, Attorney Randolph visited "Dr." Crespo in the role of a potential customer. "Dr." Crespo talked freely; very freely. And Attorney Randolph reported that the Crespo proposition was fraudulent.

VISITS OFFICE

Saturday afternoon two Times reporters visited Crespo's office.

They had heard wonderful stories about the possibilities of getting an immediate divorce in Mexico, without leaving Los Angeles and without appearing in court. This Crespo readily said he could do.

He had made arrangements, he said, whereby the payment of money to him would result in the forthcoming of a beautifully decorated decree within forty-eight hours, if necessary. All he had to have was a copy of the wedding certificate. There would be no alimony, no long period of residence to attain, no court session, no red tape, no attorneys, no examination, no waste of time—and, best of all, the decree would be absolute, final and thoroughly legal under California law. Speed and satisfaction was his motto, he averred.

NO QUESTION

He said that he had had in the past numerous satisfied customers; that there was no question about his ability to deliver the goods.

"How much?" queried a reporter.

Crespo looked him over; then:

"Five hundred dollars!" he decided the reporter's worth.

"Too much!" was the reply.

"Three hundred will be enough, then," he said.

"If we pay you $300 Monday can you guarantee that a divorce decree will be forthcoming by Thursday?"

"Absolutely!" he confidently declared.

And so last night, accompanied by a coterie of officers, the reporters returned. They went inside; the officers remained outside the door of Crespo's private office and "listened in."

"We couldn't get $300 all at once," Crespo was told. "We've got $200, though, and can pay the rest in small payments!"

COUNT BILLS

"All right, I'll write you a receipt," he said.

And slowly, one by one, the bills which previously had been marked both in the cashier's cage at The Times and by Prosecutor Friedlander personally, were counted over to him.

As he signed the receipt and took the money the office door opened and realization of his predicament came to him as the officers entered.

"Well, you got me good this time!" he said.

Investigation of Crespo's books and papers showed deposits of several thousands of dollars in local banks.

"This man appears to be one of the most versatile of his kind I have ever encountered," Mr. Friedlander said at midnight. "He apparently has dipped into everything he ever has thought of to make money.

AMAZING STORY

"His story of his Mexican matrimonial venture, if true, forms one of the most amazing conspiracies or concoctions—I don't know which—that I have ever listened to.

"We intend to charge Dr. Crespo with every violation of statute which we find he has incurred through his many avocations and activities."

Aiding The Times in their investigation were Deputy Prosecutor Folsom and Chief Investigator Poland of Mr. Friedlander's office.

Film Star's Dog Proficient on Links

Kathleen Key and King George

KATHLEEN KEY, Goldwyn cinema player, has introduced a new fad on the golf courses adjacent to Hollywood, which threatens to become a fad among the player folk fortunate enough to possess the proper "prop;" to wit, an intelligent police dog.

King George, a German police dog trained by Miss Key, has developed into a caddy more efficient than the human type of caddy by reason of his unerring instinct for ferreting out lost balls. The big dog carries Miss Key's clubs with ease and has even learned to "pull the flag" for his mistress when she is ready for the final putt at each hole.

King George is one of the entries in the third annual Hollywood Dog show, which begins a two-day session under the auspices of the Hollywood Kennel Club at Orchid street and Hollywood Boulevard on Friday.

Protestant and Catholic Men Form Organization to Foster Patriotism

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

UTICA (N. Y.) Oct. 6.—With a view of fostering patriotic ideals and "a spirit of toleration in economics, politics and religion," fifty Protestants, nearly all members of the Masonic order, and a like number of Catholics, the majority affiliated with the Knights of Columbus, met tonight for formal organization of the Hamilton-Jefferson Association, announced as a "nonsecret, nonsectarian and nonpartisan" group.

Gathered at a dinner here, the charter members of the association, all leading business men of Utica, heard the aims and objects of the organization outlined by leaders in each of the two fraternal bodies and summed up in the principal address of the evening by Elihu Root, formerly United States Secretary of State, and a resident of Clinton, near here.

Mr. Root, who became a member of the association only after he had been assured of its nonsectarian character, expressed the belief that by having a membership drawn equally from the Protestant and Catholic faiths, the organization had gone a long way toward ultimate success.

FRANKIE GENARO OUTBOXES O'DOWD

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW ORLEANS (La.) Oct. 6.—Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, had all the better of Eddie O'Dowd of Colombia, in a fifteen-round bout at Heinemann Park tonight, and was given the decision. Genaro won eleven of the fifteen rounds and showed a flashy attack. O'Dowd weighed 117 1-4 pounds and Genaro 114. The title was not involved.

STREETS TO BE IMPROVED

The improvement of the following streets yesterday was ordered by the City Council: Mines avenue, from Hollenbeck avenue to Lorena street; Ninety-first street, from Main street to Moneta avenue; First street, from Vermont avenue to Kenmore avenue; San Fernando Road, from Oxford avenue to Buren street; J street, from McFarland avenue to Fries avenue, in the harbor district.

SHIP TO BE DANCE HALL OFF REDONDO

Famous Schooner to be Luxuriously Fitted as Floating Cafe

The refitting of the four-masted schooner William Bowden as a luxurious cafe and dance hall was begun yesterday at Los Angeles Harbor. According to F. C. Bogler of this city, who has just purchased the vessel, she will, when refitted, be anchored five miles at sea off Redondo Beach.

The William Bowden is one of the most famous windjammers of the Pacific, and has had an adventurous career off this coast. Bogler bought her recently in San Francisco and had her sent to Los Angeles. She arrived at this port on Saturday.

"There will be no finer dance hall on the Pacific Coast than the Bowden when the conversion of the vessel is completed," said Mr. Bogler. "A dancing palace and cafe at sea is a novelty that I believe the public will patronize. The William Bowden is as safe and staunch a vessel as there is afloat. She can be chartered, of course, for private parties, and will be open to the general public on other occasions. We will spend considerable money refitting the vessel, and all her furnishings will be of the very finest."

Mr. Bogler said he did not know when the conversion of the ship would be completed, but said the work would be pushed as rapidly as possible.

GROWTH OF SCHOOLS IS MADE PLAIN

Auditor's Report Shows Remarkable Advance in Past Six Years

Indicating the enormous growth of the city school system in recent years, C. F. Lens, school auditor, submitted a report at last night's meeting of the Board of Education showing that the pay roll for city school teachers of all classes except the kindergarten increased more than 100 per cent during the past six years.

As indicated by the growth in the number of pay warrants issued, the number of teachers employed increased, with the exception of the kindergarten department, proportionately with the increase in the amount of the pay roll.

Summarized, the auditor's report is as follows:

School.	Year.	Amount.	No. of warrants.
Elementary	1919-20	$314,227.32	3114
	1924-25	784,418.56	4,419
Kindergarten	1919-20	21,535.00	296
	1924-25	54,565.13	743
High school	1919-20	194,679.45	1,165
	1924-25	549,948.90	2,747

The report covers the 1924-25 pay roll up to and including the 3rd inst.

During the course of the board meeting last night, Superintendent of Schools Dorsey made a verbal report on the convention of school superintendents at San Francisco last week.

WAS SOMEBODY HIMSELF

Two ex-monarchs, King Manuel of Portugal and the Shah of Persia, were seated at a fashionable resort in Paris sipping champagne and watching the dancers, when a Parisian sat down in the only unoccupied chair at the table. The newcomer made himself agreeable and the conversation soon became general.

When leaving the Parisian asked with whom he had had the honor of speaking.

"I," said one, "am the King of Portugal. "I," said the other, "am the Shah of Persia." The Parisian expressed no surprise. "Good night, gentlemen," he said politely. "The great mogul bids you adieu."—[Exchange.

SAYS JULIAN STATEMENT UNFOUNDED

Special Federal Agent Cahill Denies Any Lull in Promoter's Case

David C. Cahill, special assistant to the United States Attorney-General, sent here to investigate alleged wildcat oil concerns, denied yesterday, prior to his departure for San Francisco, statements made by C. C. Julian of the Julian Petroleum Corporation.

The government recently summoned Julian before the Federal grand jury and also subpoenaed the books and records of the Julian concern for examination. This was done to determine, Federal officials said, whether there had been any misuse of the mails or fraudulent representations sent through the mails in connection with the promotion of the Julian concerns.

In reference to the declaration by Julian that the postoffice inspectors had been examining his books for a period of six months without taking any action and that he was finally forced to turn them out of the room he had assigned them at his general offices, Mr. Cahill issued the following statement:

"I have read a statement substantially to the effect that there has been a lull in our activities in the Julian matter, and that Federal officers engaged in it failed to appear Saturday at the Julian offices. I do not know whether that statement emanated from Julian.

"If it did, and he does not know the facts, he should keep in closer communication with his attorneys. On Saturday morning at our office we had a conference with Daniel M. Hunsaker, attorney for Julian, at Mr. Hunsaker's request. The request was made in order to arrange for the delivery of the Julian Petroleum Corporation's books to our accountants in a convenient manner.

"The books, which Julian seeks to keep from us, are now safely in the hands of the United States Marshal by order of the Federal Court. Since that matter is before the court no further comment will be made on it.

"Our accountants have never seen the Julian corporation books. They were working on the books of some few of the Julian syndicates, when Julian put them out of his office on the advice of his attorney.

"There is no lull in our activities of any kind. Some of our proceedings are necessarily of a confidential nature. Whenever a public statement is proper in the public interest, it will not be withheld. But we shall not vie with anyone in a campaign of advertising."

GLOOMY BLACKSMITHS

Being Driven Out of Business by the Automobile

The delegate to the National Horse-shoers' Association who defined an optimist as "manifestly a horseshoer" had in mind the dire threat of which every automobile is a reminder to his craft. The village smithy has a disheartening fight to wage against the enormous motor factories. The wise Mr. Edison has remarked that "a horse is the poorest motor ever built." True, says Mr. Ford, "he is a clumsy hay-motor of one horsepower." The farmer knows that a motor tractor is as powerful as twenty-five horses. The blacksmith's outlook is not encouraging.

Statistics tell a gloomy story to the horseshoers. In 1918 the number of farm horses in the United States was 21,555,000; at the beginning of 1924 it was 18,263,000, a decrease of 15 per cent in six years. The falling off has fluctuated from year to year, but there is no prospect of halting the continuous decline.

In the cities there is less and less use for the blacksmith's anvil. In 1910 the Census Bureau reported the number of horses "not on farms" to be 3,182,789; in 1920 the number had been reduced to 1,705,000. More recent figures are not available. In this city there were 105,000 horses in 1917; now there are about 60,000. Only on the waterfront, where the congestion is terrific, is the horse and wagon found more serviceable for short hauls than the motor truck.

Not tomorrow or next year, but possibly in another generation, old Dobbin may be nearly obsolete in this country as an industrial factor. The aristocracy of his species will persist. There is no satisfactory automotive substitute for the polo ponies or for the Wise Counsellors and Epinards.—[New York Herald-Tribune.

THAT SACRED BOTTLE

Jinks had a bottle of Scotch of which he was very proud, with that peculiar delight which grown-up boys always take in the possession of forbidden fruit. So proud was he of being the owner of this unlawful bottle that he would have died before he would have opened it and subjected his friends or even himself to the temptation of diminishing the contents.

One day to his horror Jinks discovered that the bottle had been tampered with, and at once sought out Mary, the cook.

"Have you touched this bottle?" he asked sternly.

"Oh, no, sir."

"Are you very sure?"

"Oh, positive, sir; I simply couldn't budge the cork."—[Exchange.

ANOTHER VOICE DROWNED

While his mother was entertaining visitors, Johnny found his way into the bathroom and, to amuse himself, turned on the water.

Mrs. Brown, upon hearing the noise, went upstairs and when she appeared at the room in question found the bath tub overflowing.

"Johnny," she said, "didn't a little voice within you tell you that you were doing wrong?"

"Yes, mother," replied Johnny, "but the water made so much noise that I couldn't hear it."—[Exchange.

OFFICER IS KILLED IN COLLISION

Seal Beach Man's Body Broken When Motorcycle Crashes Into Truck

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONG BEACH, Oct. 6.—While riding into the rear end of a parked truck while trying to pass another vehicle on the Long Beach-Seal Beach highway this morning, Albert Houske, 24 years of age, Seal Beach motorcycle officer, was almost instantly killed. Houske's neck was broken when he was thrown to the pavement. So far as police here can learn, there were no witnesses.

W. R. Daniel, 1124 Cedar street, Lomita, was driving the truck. He told police he did not see the collision. Houske was extricated from the wreck of his motorcycle by N. R. Woodville of Seal Beach, and brought to the headquarters here and then to Seaside Hospital, where he was pronounced dead by Dr. Frank Sweet, police surgeon. On the night of July 1, last, Houske was a member of the Long Beach police department and was one of the best liked officers on the force. On July 1 he went to Seal Beach as motorcycle officer. He was married and lived with his wife at 4219 East Sixth street.

HOW LAWYERS SUM UP TOWN'S OFFICIALS

There dwelt down East a certain old character, "Lawyer Hopkins," whose notion of the dignity and character of Justice was certainly modern in its practice, though occasionally practiced by him in a small way and in a manner particularly his own.

On one occasion a Selectman disappeared and their bodies were found in a flour barrel in the cellar of a certain man, who was arrested upon arrested and tried for the stealing. Lawyer Hopkins, conducting the defense, argued that the sheep were not stolen, but had strayed away, as was usual in the spring.

The prosecuting attorney said: "Yes, I know sheep do stray this time of year, but they usually leave their heads in barrels in the haymow."

Hopkins went to a neighboring town to settle the case of the selectmen, but failed, and in this report, characterizing the three town officials:

"Mr. A— will do nothing if he knows it; Mr. B— nothing at all if he knows it; Mr. C— will do nothing if he knows it."—[Philadelphia Ledger.

DEVIL'S ISLAND

Good Reason Alleged for Abolishment of Convict Settlement

The unofficial announcement in a French newspaper that France's famous convict settlement on Devil's Island in French Guiana is to be abolished will naturally create a tribute something to our own system of discussion of crime and punishment. It has been said that a sentence to Devil's Island, even for so short a time as five years, is the equivalent to a sentence of death. The island is a sephitic fever spot, in the tropics, full of malaria and venomous snakes. There, in the living grave, Capt. Dreyfus was confined, manacled in a small cell and in beneath a bridge, and tormented with illness, pain and sleepless, but saying a dozen times: "I will not please them by dying."

Those who managed to survive the poisonous climate sometimes were permitted to bring out their wives and rear families. Yet there was no sentimentality about the grim business in the mind of the French government, which intended Devil's Island to be what it was—complete banishment, a form of death in life. Some time ago an enterprising French newspaper—Le Petit Parisien, that enjoys an enormous circulation in all parts of France—exposed the moral and physical conditions on the island, with the result that it claimed, that Premier Herriot had decided to abolish it as a convict settlement.

That Devil's Island as a form of punishment was cruel cannot be denied. That it was necessary is obvious. That it was devised as a protection for society against those who wronged it was the intention on which it was permitted to continue. In this day it has become somewhat outmoded. The principle it was probably meant for, with our modern views of crime and punishment, its discontinuance was inevitable.—[Brooklyn Eagle.

WIT OF NAPOLEON

His Rebuke to the Insolence of an Importunate Relative

Everyone directly or indirectly connected in any way with the extraordinary romance of the first Napoleon had flocked to Paris during what favors of every kind they could get from poor Louis Napoleon. Among this clamoring throng were, of course, those connected by blood with the great little emperor, and foremost in this category of claimants was Jerome, ex-king of Westphalia (and I have this from the Duchesse Pozzo di Borgo) was the most insatiable in his demands for both himself and his children. The ex-king or was a very humble and long-suffering man, and stood the importunate insolence and browbeating of his wife with admirable equanimity, until one day, when old Jerome was annoyed by the reluctance of the emperor to grant him some particularly outrageous request, he exclaimed with angry frankness: "After all, I need not be ashamed of Louis, for, as you know very well, you've nothing of a Bonaparte about you really," to which Louis Napoleon demurely replied: "Pray, yes; I have—the family."—[From "Uncensored Recollections," by Memous.

Not only do Americans know best "how to wear clothes," but they are exceptionally keen in their choice of line and quality. Such is the case of William Eugene, who found at Mullen & Bluett's this elegant fall coat model of camel's hair.

It is a very wonderful spectacle to see an whole industry trying its best to commit suicide.

That's what the motion-picture industry seems to be trying its level best to do.

Vanity impels them to feed themselves poison pills.

To be plain about it, the producers are trying to dim the light of the stars and the directors in the glare and effulgence of their own importance.

Vanity Gone Wild

If anybody ever really published an official notice sent out by the publicity men of nearly any studio, it would ready like this:

"Mr. Jawn B. Glintheimer announces that the next Jawn B. Glintheimer production will be Mr. Jawn B. Glintheimer's personally-selected story, 'Her Sins Among the Ashes.' This story was personally selected by Mr. Jawn B. Glintheimer. It is the work of a hitherto unknown author discovered by Mr. Jawn B. Glintheimer and encouraged to write by Mr. Jawn B. Glintheimer. Mr. Jawn B. Glintheimer also announces that the cast will be headed by Miss Mamie O'Riggins, who was discovered by Mr. Jawn B. Glintheimer while he and Mrs. Glintheimer were visiting the old Glintheimer homestead on Third avenue, where Mr. Glintheimer's aged father and mother and his brothers, Irving and Mike and Terrance and James and Willie and Horace and Horatius, and his sisters, Maggie and Mary and Minnie and Mamie and Rebecca and Clarice, still reside."

Due for a Bump

If the producers don't come to and stop this stuff, they are due for a bump that will rock the motion-picture industry from stem to stern.

They will presently discover that it is the actors and actresses and, to a lesser extent, the directors and scenario writers, in whom the public is interested. In attempting to advertise themselves instead of the artists and actors, they will find that they have snuffed out the light that brought the folks in.

The business end is of no interest to theater-goers.

Well do I remember how shrewd little Mary Pickford sat upon me with force and violence, years ago, when I wanted to take a photograph of her trying to lift her weekly salary packed in a money bag.

"Nothing about me and money," she said. And Mary knew.

Well, Who Cares?

I am closer to the producers than most fans; some of them I admire as far-seeing, daring business men.

But when I see a wonderfully beautiful young girl like Norma Shearer, for instance, come new to the screen, I don't care who discovered her, or who announces her, or who exploits her, or who does her laundry or manicures her nails.

I am just interested in her beauty and the glow of her talent—in her clean, fastidious personality . . . her long aristocratic hands . . . her patrician face and her air of conscious superiority. I don't want any adding machine to get between me and the picture.

Boot-Licking

If some of the producers are as big as I think they are, they must hate it.

To get where he has, to have surmounted the obstacles he has overridden, Mr. Louis B. Mayer must be a man of parts. I can't believe he could have enjoyed the farewell banquet they gave him on the occasion of his departure for Italy to see Ben Hur.

I can't believe that any man able to achieve what Mr. Mayer has achieved could enjoy having his boots licked in this public and unsubtle manner.

There is a point at which flattery becomes insulting.

Oh, Maj. Hughes!

I have such a profound admiration for the character and ability of Maj. Rupert Hughes that it hurts me to see him taking part in these sycophantations.

He is too big and too talented to consent to lead these demonstrations.

I will be impertinent enough to offer a public suggestion to Maj. Hughes to stick to writing and directing and leave that especial variety of speech-making to lesser men who have to do it to live.

Studio Banquets

Only a shade less nauseating are the "studio banquets" which, through some one's evil inspiration, have suddenly come into fashion.

They set the tables out in the studio and spend the night making speeches about themselves and the studio help.

Some day it will dawn upon them nobody cares to meet Mrs. Mary Pickles, the talented scenario editor from Boston. In fact, the newspaper writers are not too excited about meeting the stars—in this particular way.

These studio banquets must be expensive to the producers; they are a nuisance and a bore to everyone else.

Why! Why!

What is all this stuff about, anyhow.

Why is it done? Who started it?

It is doing nobody any good; on the contrary, it is diverting publicity into channels that will surely do great damage to the motion picture if continued.

Stop!

Gentlemen, for heaven's sake, make your pictures and show them on the screen and have done with all this burning of incense in front of yourselves.

Get your wives to tell you how wonderful you are; but don't bore the rest of the world.

Publicity Men

On the other hand, I will say this in behalf of the boys who have to handle this slush and who are probably humiliated to the dirt by having to do it.

The most remarkable change I have seen come over Hollywood is in the quality of the publicity men. They used to be newspaper tramps unable to get jobs on newspapers. In the majority of cases they are now young university men of culture and parts; men who have won their spurs in newspaper offices.

Most of them are charming and tactful. The old days of publicity men who tried to tease a lot of bunk into the newspapers have passed.

The methods of the modern publicity expert are subtle. He will talk to you of every other subject on earth, and talk with charm and discrimination. He leaves it to you to bring up the subject of publicity for his bevy of stars.

Herr Ernst's Joke

Ernst Lubitsch cracked a little subtle joke at the expense of Pola Negri.

They were taking a scene for "Forbidden Paradise." Rod La Rocque was making an exit. At the door, he was supposed to turn, with the old Roman cry: "Gloria: Victoria!"

"No; no; not on this set," interposed Lubitsch with a grin. "While we are making this picture you must say: "Pola: Victoria!"

Sullivan, the Producer

C. Gardner Sullivan is the newest producer.

As he has the best box-office record of any scenario writer in the world, he ought to be a glowing success. I think he will be.

I have always thought that the finest screen plays I ever saw—from a story standpoint—were a little story of the Balkan War by Jeanie Macpherson and Sullivan's "The Passing of Two-Gun Hicks," in which Bill Hart was star.

Sullivan was a newspaperman of great abilitv before he took up screen writing.

WHAT ABOUT MARY AND DOUG—?

THE next cinema undertakings of these two stars are important, because they will go far to indicate whether the cinema is to continue its trend toward the spectacular and elaborate, or whether they will again introduce yet other innovations of creative style for which, especially, Doug has been responsible in recent features like "Robin Hood" and "The Thief of Bagdad." Harry Carr will discuss the projects of these two leaders on his page next week, and will also offer some trenchant opinions regarding the ability of Cecil de Mille and Marshall Neilan, who have always registered as directors of notable individuality.

In the same issue will be reviewed one of the most interesting attempts to bring highbrow drama to the screen. The feature that endeavors to accomplish this is the recently completed Victor Seastrom production, "He Who Gets Slapped."

Some very attractive glimpses of stars in and about their homes will form another attractive feature of

ONE can't expect a very coherent story in a one-reel comedy, but Hal Roach has a habit of packing a surprisingly large number of laughs into those which feature Charley Chase.

His latest, called "Too Many Mammas," is no exception. Chase is not, as the title would lead one to believe, a man-about-town with a large address book. He is, on the contrary, a perfectly respectable young chap who becomes the victim of a series of accidents.

Bebe Blossoms Out

HER first starring picture! Not her very first, but her best in opportunity. Bebe Daniels has apparently arrived at that goal which is the desire of nearly every girl in the films. Her coronation now seems complete.

Her production for Paramount called "Dangerous Money"—whatever that may mean—is soon to screen. Curiously enough, this venture of hers into stardom has taken place in the East, though she is really a daughter of the West, and did some of her most effective work here.

Actually Bebe was a star once before—with Realart, but that venture was not so prosperous. Perhaps the time had not arrived for her full exercise of sway. She did much better, then, under such auspices as the direction of Cecil B. De Mille during the releases of the "Why Change Your Wife" period. From comedies to a top rank in the features, culminating with the feminine lead in "Monsieur Beaucaire," has her course run. She has a glow of rare individuality, vigorous, picturesque and at all times vibrant—dark hair, dark eyes that bespeak a mood of Spain.

When Gloria Travels

IT would be absolutely impossible to imagine anybody as modish as Gloria Swanson traveling in anything but the most palatial sort of style. And Gloria lives up to expectations as shown in the photographs above. These disclose the suite that she occupied on her recent voyage to Europe on the Berengaria to star in "Madame Sans Gene." It was the same suite as that in which the Prince of Wales journeyed to America recently.

You would hardly suspect from a glance of the photographs that they were taken aboard ship at all. The oceanic menage has, indeed, many of the characteristics of an up-to-date Hollywood bungalow. For example, that veranda on the right above, with its tiled floor—the only difference seems to be that it overlooks the sea instead of the vista of valley and hills.

The dining-room is decidedly intime, and the boudoir, while not as lavish as those which have backgrounded Gloria's presence in some of her films, has nevertheless the semblance of elegance and distinction when compared with the cramped stateroom or the conventional bridal suite that is so often found on ocean liners.

I ASKED Stella if she went to Larry Semon's engagement party, and she said: "What a silly question! Who wouldn't? Larry gives the most wonderful parties. He just makes each guest feel as if he has been barely existing since he saw him last, for one thing.

"After which greeting he always sees to it that his guests are let alone to enjoy themselves. And they always do!

"Larry's fiancee, Dorothy Dwan, is one of the nicest girls I've ever met. She honestly means to make Larry happy. She is his business partner, too, because he has given her a block of stock in his picture company. I think that was such a sensible thing to do.

"'She is the only girl who ever really made me happy,' Larry said to me the other day.

"Dorothy's mother looks almost as young as Dorothy.

"Something very funny happened at the theater one night, where Larry had taken his fiancee and his mamma-in-law-to-be.

"He was holding both their hands, one on each side, when an old lady sitting beside them leaned over and exclaimed:

"'Ain't this Larry Semon?'

"'It is,' admitted Larry.

"Whereupon the old lady sniffed, 'Well, I don't know how you git away with holding the hands of two of them at once!'

"Dorothy's mamma told me that her daughter is only 17, and that therefore at first she felt very badly at the idea of her marrying. But as she grew to know Larry better, she became entirely reconciled, and now she is just as fervently delighted as anybody."

MRS. NOAH BEERY came and sat down with us at that moment, and she told us about a party her husband had just given to those cattle kings that were visiting here from Texas.

She says that he gave them a "Come-and-git-it" dinner up at his nice big house on the top of that Hollywood hill. That's the cook's call to the cowboy chuck wagon, you know—"Come and git it!" He served pork and beans and all the rest of the cowboy food—and those men had the greatest time in the world.

"By the way," commented Stella, when Mrs. Beery had gone, "there is one exceptionally happy marriage. It has lasted sixteen years now, and is still congenial as ever. Noah told me one day, 'What a pleasure it is to give my wife all the things she wants now! Do you know, that little woman stuck to me when we hadn't a cent. Once—honest—I had pawned everything I had; then I had to hock her best silk petticoat! Yes, sir! Got 75 cents for it!'"

"OH, Claire Windsor and Bert Lytell! Bert is going to the South Sea Islands to make a picture, and he wanted very much for Claire and her mother to go along on the trip. But, though Claire begged and pleaded with the Goldwyn people, they just wouldn't let her go. So once more love's young dream gets a rude slam.

"They are very much in love with each other, though, and both are perfect dears. Here's another case of wishing them luck!"

"How do you know it will be luck for them to marry each other?" I demanded.

"I don't!" retorted Stella. "But whatever will be the best luck for them, I wish it to them right now!"

"Speaking of husbands and such," I put in, "Betty Blythe says she doesn't care for a husband emeritus. And she says her husband, Paul Scardon is coming home soon."

"DEARIE, Bill Hart's wife, Winifred Hart, gave a little birthday party for Bill, Jr., the other day. And little Bill's dad didn't forget it, either. He sent small Bill a baby ring and some toys. Some of the neighborhood youngsters came in, and a good time was had by all.

"And this isn't all, either. Little Bill sent his daddy a piece of his birthday cake with one of the little candles on it. I suppose Daddy Bill is keeping the cake under glass.

"Yes, Winifred has moved about four doors from her husband, out there in Hollywood."

tedious, on the one hand, and the rest occasionally highlighted with human interest. On the whole, it will make the more attractive impression because more consistent.

Miss Frederick is the source of the greatest interest, because she delineates the character so effectively that she glosses over even the meanness of the situation in which she places the other woman.

Miss Busch is also successful, though it is hard to find a counterpart for herself in real life. Conrad Nagel gives a consistent performance, as does Huntly Gordon. Patterson Dial and Paul Nicholson in lesser roles are satisfactory. Miss Dial has an interesting personality.

The directing by Mr. Vignola is commendable as regards the acting. I feel that he was possibly somewhat handicapped with a scenario that was inclined to be illogical.

One of the very interesting features is a party given by the heroine of the story. At this social function, various players, like Aileen Pringle, Jack Gilbert, May McAvoy, Norma Shearer, Mae Murray, Robert Leonard and Conrad Nagel, are represented by themselves, as is Hobart Henley the director.—[Edwin Schallert.

the impression of a locomotive actually dashing through burning timbers.

Carey's part in the story and, naturally, he is the central figure, is that of the locomotive engineer who loses his job because of a railroad accident, then goes west as a tramp and secures a job with a construction gang. The juvenile laws might have prevented him from taking his adopted youngster across the continent as a star boarder on a tramp's Pullman, but for the sake of the dramatic action that transpires, we will let this point pass.

I feel that Carey does much to make his performance convincing for the most part. There are just a few moments when he seems to lack some of his former facility and facial expressiveness. He is by gift and ability a much better actor as an actor than many western stars, but at times his emotion, through overacting as much as anything, does not ring quite true. This is after all a negligible point to make because, taken all in all, his performance is very good for this sort of play.

The most skilled work I feel is that done by Wallace McDonald. He has been coming right along lately in his pictures and he does much to make interesting the railroad magnate's son who supervises all manner of dirty work to wreck the rival concern's road. His first aid in the mischief is portrayed by Frank Hagney, a newcomer. Hagney, I understand, was a former all-around athlete of Australia and has a dominating stature. He makes a great menace in this sort of play—one of the meanest villains recently discovered.

Frankie Darro, as the youngster, keeps a lot of sympathy despite the smarty tricks that he is made to do. That in itself signifies, perhaps, an excellent little achievement for him and, when you come down to cases, he manages to give the impression of being all boy.

Edith Roberts has a sweetness that is quite her own in any heroine role. The few chances that she has to act she avails herself of fittingly.

Altogether, it is the cast that helps very largely to make the play. Two other supporting roles are played by Duke R. Lee—worth attention, and Charles Belcher. —[E. S.

sides "Christine of the Hungry Heart," he has also played in "Mirage," Florence Vidor being the feminine lead in both instances.

Holmes Herbert is not exactly new to pictures, but has never enjoyed the best opportunities, owing to the unsatisfactory conditions around New York, where he has previously done most of his work. He should gain a great deal of recognition in a lead in "Wilderness."

Herbert seems to be a good old stage name and therefore it is no surprise to learn that this representative of the families which bear it has been connected with the drama since he was 8 years of age. He has been the leading man in this country with Billie Burke in "Mind the Paint Girl," Grace George in "Barrie's Half-Hour" and Blanche Bates and Martha Hedman. You may have noticed him, too, on the silversheet in "Sinners in Heaven," and in that very shoddy film called "Another Scandal," which starred Lois Wilson.

Herbert does not disclose his Celtic heritage so much as might be anticipated in his work, probably because of his long residence in England. It is a fact, of course, that many celebrated Britishers are Irishmen, by birth; but London seems to be their place of opportunity.

There is something very substantial and dependable about Herbert. Perhaps at times he also manifests a certain spiritual glow, even though he is a thoroughly vigorous sort. The lines of his face are extremely well chiseled and indicate character—his closest resemblance being perhaps to James Kirkwood.

McLaglen rounds out the group of newcomers. He is noted as a heavyweight boxer and has quite a war record. He was brought over to this country by J. Stuart Blackton to play the title role in "The Beloved Brute." He has had his fling at the stage and vaudeville, but if things go well will probably now seek the way to fame in the cinema.

When Fortune Lures Abroad

In "Chu Chin Chow," Betty Blythe assumed the role of a desert slave girl, a most colorful and interesting character, and in support had for leading man Herbert Langley, an Englishman prominent on the operatic stage.

Julanne Johnston, clad in a chic French creation, in front of a large establishment in Paris.

A scene from "The Bandolero," with Renee Adoree.

Pauline Garon went abroad to play in a single German production and, ere she realized it, had signed up for big roles in several English productions.

A penny photographer snapping Carmel Myers on the Wilhelmstrasse in Berlin.

"What the Butler Saw" saw Irene Rich sightseeing in London, and here she is aboard ship on her way home.

IN THE course of the past year or so, it has almost become a fad with cinema players to take a flyer at foreign-made productions. All told, during this period, over a dozen have cut home connections, temporarily, and migrated to Europe.

The attractions of the trip, no doubt, are an inspiring factor, but another element, perhaps of greater prominence than the mere joys of travel, is the surprisingly high remuneration—surprising because of the financial conditions which have prevailed abroad. It is well known that foreign producers want American stars and to get them are willing to bid sometimes double what they get here.

Betty Blythe started the pilgrimage to Europe when she journeyed across to play the starring role in three plays, "Chu Chin Chow," "Southern Love" and "The Recoil." Julanne Johnston and Carmel Myers appeared together in the German film, "Garragon," and Irene Rich and Pauline Garon both had featured roles in "What the Butler Saw." Betty Compson and Mae Marsh made pictures in England, too, and Renee Adoree one in Spain.

NEW DESMOND FEATURE GOOD ENTERTAINMENT

Fine Characterization Given by Star in Carefree Tramp Role—Sennett's Burlesque of "Blood and Sand" a Trifle Late, But Extremely Funny

Bill Desmond and Lucille Hutton are the leading players in the new Universal western feature.

HOBO HERO PLEASES

"THE SUNSET TRAIL"
(Universal)

Henry Herbert Knibbs's story, "Overland Red," has been made into an excellent program feature, which is interesting not only because of its treatment, but because it brings back to feature pictures the wholesome personality of William Desmond. In "The Sunset Trail" Desmond portrays a carefree hobo, and he does it with good humor and, at times, with something akin to pathos.

IT IS always refreshing to see the open spaces of the West brought into a photoplay background without dragging in the usual assemblage of grimy cowpunchers and cattle rustlers. The range and the desert have gone through the mill of melodrama repeatedly and, while I understand there are persons who would rather see saddles than balloon tires on the screen, yet there must be also a not insignificant number who relish fare that is midway between the two—something, in other words, that combines simplicity and wholesomeness.

The last-named qualities characterize "The Sunset Trail." It makes no pretensions, and it slips off into the melodramatic abyss but once or twice. Briefly, it deals with what might be termed the regeneration of a hobo. Personally, I would rather call it the tragedy of a tramp, for I can imagine nothing quite so fatal to the happiness of a knight of the road as home, marriage and—work!

But Bill Desmond, in the happy hobo hero role, does not seem to mind the change, which comes at the close of the picture. He has been a happy-go-lucky individual throughout the opening sequence and it is a kindly deed performed quite by chance which singles him out for a lot of hard work in the subsequent plot.

For a while he passes through all of the hardships incidental to the type of existence he leads, and a chain of chance occurrences brings him in contact with the heroine, portrayed by Lucille Hutton. Triteness creeps in at one or two points; ergo, there is the ever-present mortgage on the old homestead to be considered, but such well-recognized phases of plot development may be condoned for the sterling characterization given by the star.

In "The Sunset Trail" his is a pleasing role and one to which he is admirably suited. Gareth Hughes has a sympathetic part as the "lunger" Desmond saves early in the picture, and Lucille Hutton makes a capable leading woman. William A. Steele, S. E. Jennings, Albert J. Smith and Clark Comstock offer adequate character bits. It was directed by Ernst Laemmle from an adaptation by Isadore Bernstein. Wyndham Gittnes prepared the continuity and Dwinelle Benthall is credited with the subtitles, which are uniformly good.

"Overland Red," from which story this picture was adapted, will be recalled as the title of the film which Harry Carey made for Universal four years ago. The former version proved to be one of the most popular westerns either Carey or Universal ever produced.—[Herbert Moulton.

BELATED BURLESQUE

"BULL AND SAND"
(Mack Sennett)

AS A burlesque of "Blood and Sand" this Mack Sennett two-reel comedy misses the bull's-eye in both theme and treatment, but as a bit of slapstickish fun, standing on its own merits, it will commend itself at once to most moviegoers.

The action transpires in the imaginary province of Bullomania, and one is amused at the opening by the antics of a bunch of toreadors, matadors and other Latin characters who frequent the Spanish Polo Grounds. [illegible] Smith gives a humorous portrayal as a novice in the bullfighting arena, and J. J. Richardson provides considerable mirth of the custard-pie type.

An elongated and gaudily-bedecked flivver comprises the royal coach in which Andy Clyde, as the bewhiskered king, gallivants about the Spanish landscape. Madeline Hurlock does double duty as vamp and heroine in a manner which is warranted not to hurt the spectator's eyes. Del Lord made the production under F. Richard Jones's supervision, and Felix Adler and Hal Yates are credited with gags and story.

There is one sequence which shows the misadventures of a skyrocketing scientist. The start of his trip to Mars via rocket may bring a laugh or two, but the comedy as a whole would undoubtedly be better were both eliminated.—[H. M.

Matador and monarch provide considerable fun in "Bull and Sand," a burlesque of the Valentino starring picture of a few years ago. Andy Clyde and J. J. Richardson portray killer and king, respectively.

Parts of "The Sunset Trail" are melodramatic, and there are several hand-to-hand tussles, from all of which the smiling hero does not emerge unscathed.

The super-siren from Sunny Spain. Madeline Hurlock appears as both vamp and heroine in the Mack Sennett version of "Blood and Sand."

TWO REELS OF NONSENSE

"SHOULD LANDLORDS LIVE?"
(Hal Roach)

ARTHUR STONE provides two reels of laughable nonsense in his latest two-reeler, "Should Landlords Live?"—a title which, oddly enough, has little to do with the action.

True, the gawky country hero eventually obtains a job in the city collecting rents in an apartment-house, but his tribulations are not so much the results of association with the landlord as they are with the tenants. In fact, his greatest trouble comes when he encounters a vampish modiste, although a comedy janitor appears as a slapstick menace later in the picture.

Stone earns a considerable number of laughs at the outset, when he is seen behind the counter of a combination grocery

Reviving Covered Wagon Thrills

You may depend on it that Ernest Torrence, who plays a comparatively lovable role, will contribute much to the humor.

Platforms of many different sizes are needed to photograph "North of Thirty-six," for natural vantage grounds for the camera are scarce in the region where it is filming.

Lois Wilson drew the role of the heroine partly because of her association with "The Covered Wagon."

The prairie schooner again makes a neat setting for the smiling heroine who happens to be this time a very dominant figure in the drama.

Immense herds of cattle will add to the spectacular interest of the new Paramount undertaking. Torrence is advance guard for the procession.

Jack Holt generally can be depended upon for a very sterling impersonation as an outdoor hero.

"THE COVERED WAGON" will probably never be forgotten.

If there were any chance of such a thing happening, the picture producers themselves would undoubtedly prevent it. For, in various ways they have sought to revive the thrills which the epical—and it still deserves this adjective—production of James Cruze evoked from the hearts of moviegoers.

"North of Thirty-six" is one of the most pretentious undertakings to follow in the wake of the big picture of pioneering. It bears a much closer relationship to it also than most of the others. Like "The Covered Wagon," it is from a novel by Emerson Hough, while Ernest Torrence and Lois Wilson, who appeared prominently in the earlier production, are again cast in this.

In some respects, the new production, which is being directed by Irvin Willat, is considered to have greater possibilities. There is more of dramatic clash, perhaps. The struggle that was entailed in bringing the cattle herds from Texas up north to the railroad for shipment to the market through a country that was ravaged by storms and prairie fires, and where brigands and Indians lurked in ambush, is regarded as having striking character.

Like "The Covered Wagon," practically all the picture is being made on location. The setting is Texas, and nature in her bigness and sweep of prairie will be the background.

NEW DESMOND FEATURE
GOOD ENTERTAINMENT

Fine Characterization Given by Star in Carefree Tramp Role—Sennett's Burlesque of "Blood and Sand" a Trifle Late; But Extremely Funny

The opening of the story transpires in France during the war period.

On the race to the finish—this time on board a locomotive with Harry Carey and Edith Roberts, respectively hero and heroine, in the cab.

A very mischievous youngster is that portrayed by Frankie Darro and, because he gets into so much trouble just like this, does he win your sympathy. Duke R. Lee about to administer punishment.

RAILROAD THRILLER

"ROARING RAILS"
(Hunt Stromberg-Producers' Distributing)

The hero is exonerated and weds the girl, the villain receives his due, as does the sneaking instigator of his malefactions, and there is a big race of a railroad engine through a forest fire to induce these various results. So, as a consequence, "Roaring Rails" hits the grand old trail of melodrama with a full head of steam, the bells clanging and the whistles blowing. It is a come-back picture for Harry Carey, who has always been regarded by many filmgoers as a highly satisfactory "outdoor" star. The production, despite certain evidences of crudity, should go quite a ways to swing him back into the line.

"ROARING RAILS" is really the fourth feature made by Carey under his contract with Hunt Stromberg. It is the first of the series, however, that I have personally seen and I imagine from what I have heard that it is the strongest. Carey is recalled, of course, for such successful films of a few seasons ago as "Overland Red" and "Roped," and, personally, I like very much, indeed, both these pictures and certain others that were made at that time, like "Sundown Slim."

Carey has a degree of sympathetic appeal. He is rated a western star, but he seldom does any riding or broncho-busting on the screen. The thrill episodes have generally been very incidental with him, for he has made his big forte of the human interest with which he enlivens his characters.

Wallace McDonald effects another of his recent clever characterizations.

"Roaring Rails" is of his type. In plot and action it is a high-speed affair and covers quite a bit of ground. The beginning is in France during the American drive on Chateau Thierry, and the finish transpires up in the Northwest during the progress of a railroad construction.

The human interest side is brought out through his adoption of a little French war orphan. In fact, nearly all the important situations in the picture depend in a greater or lesser degree on the presence of the child.

It may be said, too, in this regard, that both the virtues and faults of the production are to be attributed to the handling of the character of the child. On the side of objections, one must be raised toward giving the youngster too much the smart-Aleck attitude in certain scenes. Another—that he does not at any time display French traits, but rather those of an American.

Exclude these two flaws, and another one which does not pertain thereto, namely, excessive brutality on the part of the villain, and you have a picture that is very creditable for its kind. It is melodrama as melodrama should be, with action sweeping right along and very little footage wasted on any account whatever.

To Tom Forman belongs praise for the direction and to Stromberg and Doris Dorn credit for the scenario.

The location shots secured in Oregon, near Klamath Falls, offer a display of scenery that is at times exceedingly lovely. The film was photographed right where a real railroad was under construction. The forest-fire stuff offers a good illusion. The matching of the film is excellent in giving

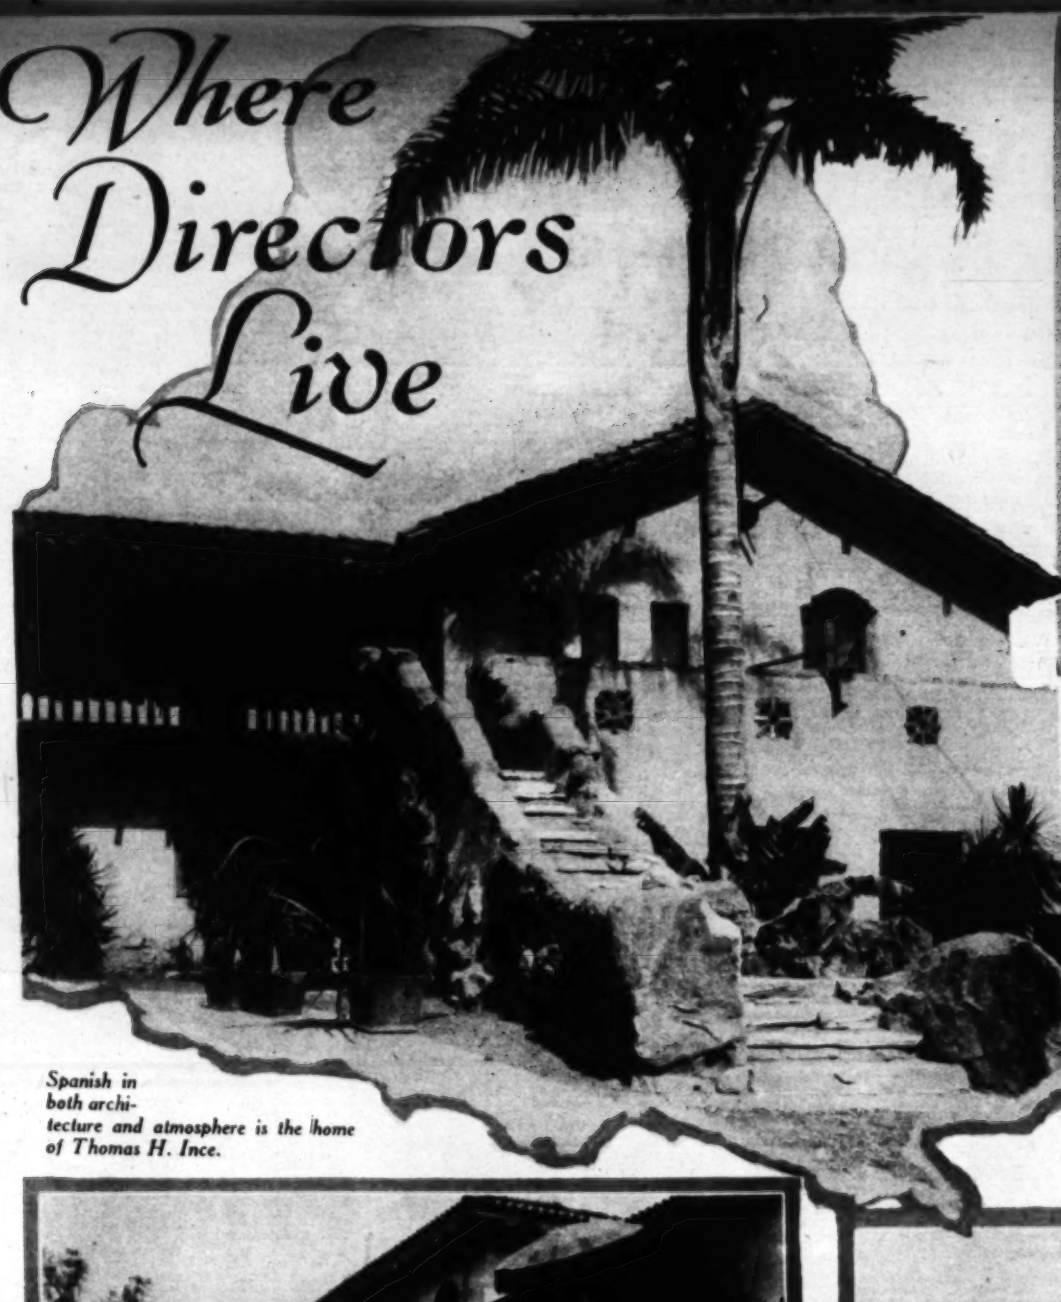
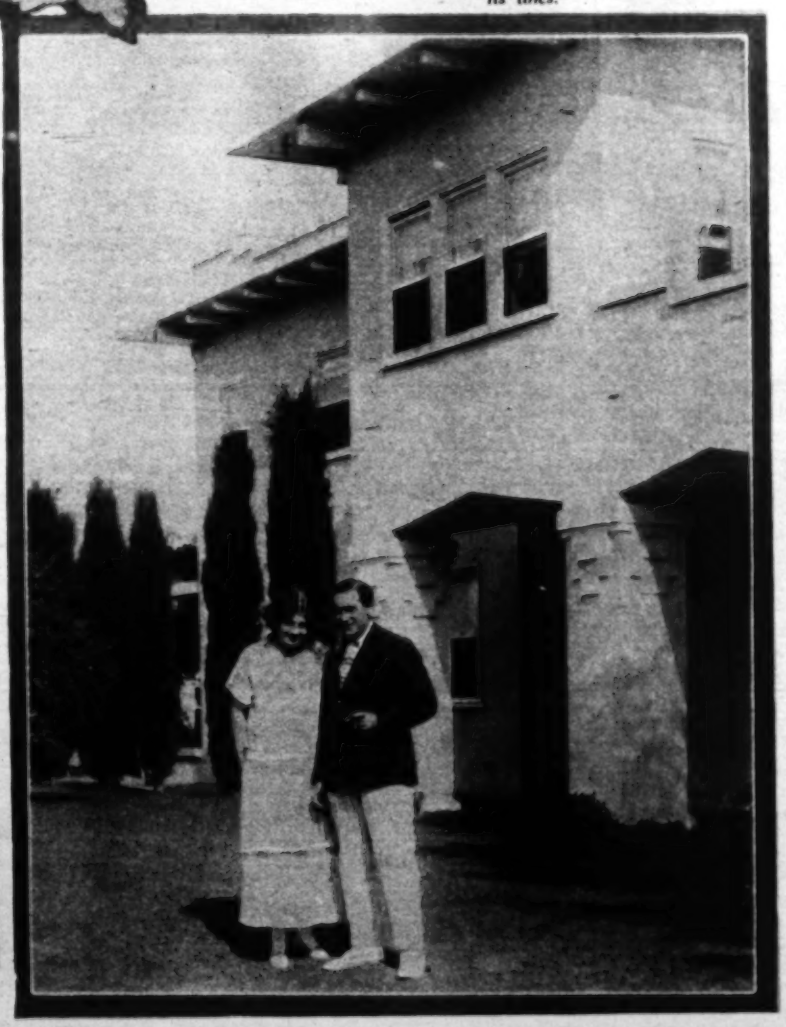
Where Directors Live



Spanish in both architecture and atmosphere is the home of Thomas H. Ince.

James Cruze's domicile didn't get into the picture, but its owner appears to enjoy the solitude of the grounds which surround it.

The trim, though ample, abode of Marshall Neilan and Blanche Sweet is marked by the quiet dignity of its lines.



Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Lubitsch before the entrance of their Beverly Hills home.

THE homes of filmland rank high among the Southland's show places. The domicile of this or that star arouses interest in that it admittedly reflects to some extent its owner's taste and individuality. But, though this fact pertains primarily to those film folk whose faces are familiar to most picturegoers, it may be said to be true also of the men whose workaday lives are spent behind megaphone and camera—the directors.

Perhaps the outstanding instance of this in the directorial group is the home of Cecil B. De Mille, which is not only stately and imposing, but has also a flair for the colorful and spectacular. An inherent love of the Southland is evidenced in the glimpse of Thomas H. Ince's Spanish-type abode, and those of Victor Schertzinger, Ernst Lubitsch and Marshall Neilan, while falling into no particular architectural class, nevertheless in some way or another mirror their owners' personalities. The Ince home at Beverly in particular is a show place because so typical of California.

Cecil B. De Mille's home is both stately and imposing, with a graceful blending of the Spanish and colonial in its architecture.

Mayhap it is in the sunlit rooms upstairs that Victor Schertzinger temporarily forgets the cinema and courts the muse of melody.

Conrad Nagel and Mae Busch portray the wedded pair whose life is somewhat upset by the revenge of the heroine.

WIFE WINS AGAIN

"FLIRTING WIVES"
(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Revenge is a reliable theme for a picture and under certain circumstances may prove very appealing. Some of these circumstances exist in "Flirting Wives," which relates how the wife evened the score with the "other woman." The cast recommends the picture chiefly. It is headed by Pauline Frederick, with Conrad Nagel, Mae Busch and Huntly Gordon in other leading roles.

DURING the time that "Flirting Wives" was being produced it was known as "Mrs. Paramor." It was taken from a novel by Louis Joseph Vance, was adapted by Julia Crawford Ivers and directed by Robert G. Vignola. Mrs. Paramor is the nom de plume which the leading feminine personage assumes when she becomes a successful writer. It is the assuming of this name that makes possible the masquerade of the heroine, which enables her to obtain the advantage over the "other woman," and consequently this becomes an important detail in the development of the plot.

The story starts out by giving us a picture of the neglected husband, this time, instead of the neglected wife. Hamilton Wayne is a man of affairs, both in business and of the heart. His wife is too much absorbed in literary work. She neglects her personal appearance and attentions to her husband, and he ventures elsewhere in search of companionship.

Early in the plot he falls a victim to a young unmarried woman of a presumably adventuress type. It seems she is determined to procure a husband at any cost, and, although she has a devoted slave who wants to marry her, she prefers the rich Mr. Wayne. The wife discovers them in some of their romancing and immediately there is a quarrel which results in a separation.

Huntly Gordon characterizes the neglected husband who finds diversion. Miss Busch aids in the mischief.

Pauline Frederick in the leading feminine role is never short of admirers. Conrad Nagel (right) and Paul Nicholson (above) principally qualify.

The opening of the picture is really far-fetched and artificial. The biggest flaw is where the wife dismisses her husband without so much as a real hearing, because subsequent developments in the plot indicate that she does not attach the blame to him so much as to the girl.

The story is resumed in Europe. The wife has changed her name and has become famous as a novelist. She is also fastidious and fashionable as regards her clothes and coiffure. She is altogether a new personality.

At the same hotel where she is residing is the girl who vamped her husband. Said girl is now married to the man who was devoted to her at the time of the escapade. She dismissed Wayne, of course, right after the discovery of their romance.

The subsequent plot shows step by step how Mrs. Paramor is able to turn the tables on the other woman until the situation in the early part of the picture is absolutely reversed. She is the victor now instead of the vanquished in the little intriguing game, and she gives the wife of the man who has fallen at her feet a much delayed "lesson."

I am not going into any detail as to how this is accomplished. Some of it is a little

Fighting for Championship

The camera was almost too slow for Priscilla Dean when it caught her in a flashing bit of action on her court at home.

Florence Vidor seemingly has such a penchant for tennis that she practiced even when made up for "Barbara Frietchie."

Lillian Rich has joined the group who are devoted to the technique of the racket.

Betty Compson has a flair also for tennis and, judging from her intent expression here, she is determined that her bid for the championship shall be a strong one.

Corinne Griffith remains true to her languorous type in that she poses prettily and impersonally on the sidelines in this photo, but she plays a clever game.

Conway Tearle apparently takes his tennis seriously, as he does his acting, and his record in both seems to justify his mien.

TENNIS is the game now in Hollywood. Everybody is playing it and there is the greatest probability in the world that we will soon be hearing who are bidding for the championship honors.

The film stars have all settled that it is a congenial sport, both for the men and the women and, though some of them prefer golf—really, tennis seems to demand more celerity of action and a greater alertness and grace, consequentiy its favor.

Florence Vidor is reckoned one of the leaders among the women in the sport, and Conway Tearle among the men.

The girls here shown all demonstrate their skill in some fashion in playing the game. You can imagine from their expressions that they are bent on gaining even more proficiency, and from their natty clothes that they know how to dress the part. Sunday afternoons is the popular time for the matches. From early until sundown they play. Then refreshments, of course, are in order.

Latin Heroes Beware!

Anglo-Saxon Types Prominent in Present Flight Towards Celebrity

An English athlete who now looks forward to a film career, is Victor McLaglen (below.)

Reginald Denny is the furthest advanced in the Anglo-Saxon group matinee idols, having been starred by Universal for about two years.

SO MUCH has been written about the Latin lover on the screen that it will be interesting to trace a development of foreign talent from an entirely different angle. This is not identified with the continent of Europe, but with the British Isles.

Though many people are aware that there are a large number of English actors on the screen, probably few are conscious that just at present there is quite an ascendancy of Anglo-Saxon types. Particularly is this striking, because their forces have been augmented in Hollywood just lately by the arrival of several very excellent and interesting new leading men. It is not at all improbable now that they will spell a certain grief, if not actual gloom, for the popularity of the foreigners of Latin heritage, like Valentino and Novarro, who have exercised such a romantic domination the past few years.

Primarily, to be sure, the players who are the subject of this article are not romancers, although they act out their love scenes very admirably. Their interest for the public rests more largely on their excellent bearing, their manners, and in the case of several of Celtic extraction on the fire and charm which they bring to their screen creations.

Reginald Denny, Ronald Colman, Clive Brook, Holmes Herbert and the newcomer, Victor McLaglen, who is yet to be heard from in "The Beloved Brute," have all achieved their portion of fame, or give promise of doing so in the very near future. All of them were born abroad. England is the native heath of all, excepting Herbert, who hails from Dublin. Colman is of Scotch descent. They are representative of sterling manliness, a fine artistic sensitiveness, and they have traditions, albeit Denny has modified this to suit the broader needs of his ever-growing public.

Denny, the foremost, needs less introduction than the others mentioned, for he is by far the most advanced. He is a leading star with Universal, and has figured with very great prominence in a number of athletic plays. It was in the "Leather Pushers" series of boxing pictures, indeed, that he gained general recognition at first, and since that time he has done important parts in racing films, and others of humorous and thrilling sort.

Before he entered pictures he sang in musical comedy. His voice is regarded as exceptional in quality of tone, and he still occasionally sings for pleasure, though all his real work centers now in the films.

Invasion Gains Impetus

It is he who has doubtless given a certain impetus to the invasion. For it is since his waxing prominence that the others have merited the approval of producers —though there are other and more general causes for this, as well.

It is from Ronald Colman that the most may be expected in the next few months. He will soon solicit approval in a very prominent role in "Tarnish," a picture made by Samuel Goldwyn. He has had few other appearances thus far, the most important having been in "The White Sister" and "Romola" with Lillian Gish, both of which were made in Southern Europe. In "One Night," starring Constance Talmadge, he had a lighter role than either of these, as a young British peer who masquerades as a medico.

Colman penetrates much beneath the surface of every role he plays. One feels, indeed, that he truly tries to live his characters, and that he seeks to send out the message of that character also to the audience by virtue of his technique in acting. This causes his performance to possess quite a degree of what is popularly known as subtlety. That is, there is much play of light and shade, and a very delicate impressionism to whatever he does.

In his screen portraits, Clive Brook, the English actor, newly arrived in Hollywood, evidences much personal charm.

Brook's Record

Everybody who saw Clive Brook in Betty Compson's picture, "Woman to Woman," and in "This Freedom," will be interested to know that he is now in America. Curiously enough, he is a nephew of the late Harry Ellington Brook, who, until his death, was a staff writer of The Times.

Brook was observed by Thomas H. Ince in a picture called "Recoil," in which Betty Blythe appeared, and was brought by him to America to appear in Kathleen Norris's "Christine of the Hungry Heart." He makes a sedate impression on the screen, but he really is a very young actor.

In England he only had a couple of years on the stage and screen. He was a major in the machine gun corps during the World War and was shell-shocked in the Battle of Messines in June, 1918, and forced to retire.

On his recovery, he went back on the stage and his first engagement was with Fay Compton in "Fair and Warmer." His

THE DAY'S NEW

REMEMBER THIS

These are the Good Old Days

Corinne Griffith suggests a charming demureness in this glimpse of herself from "Wilderness," a picture with an old-fashioned setting. The first locale is the Old South, and then the scene changes to the Northwest and South Seas.

Lois Wilson (left) dons hoop skirts when she is not wearing the garb of the plains, shown elsewhere in this issue, in "North of Thirty-six."

Mabel Ballin is always a personality of charm in a film visualizing the past as does "Barriers Burned Away," based on the famed Chicago fire.

Florence Vidor is a pluperfect type for a setting of the good old-fashioned days, as viewed, for example, in "Barbara Frietchie."

Grace and sentiment surround the Ann Rutledge whom Ruth Clifford presents in "The Dramatic Life of Abraham Lincoln," soon to show.

NO bobbed hair. No short skirts. No neck lines cut easy and loose. In other words—the old-fashioned girl.

She has evidently found her place at last—on the screen. This is her day and while she is here lots of conscientious objectors to precocious modern fads and fancies will have their chance to say—"Oh, if they were only all like that once again."

Conscientious objectors had better have their fling, though, while it lasts, because no great alterations of fashion are to be anticipated as a result of the high, tight collars, flouncing skirts and the little pancake or flowered hats that were popular when grandmother was a child.

Nevertheless, it is going to be lots of fun to see these frilly fashions of a half century ago, especially when such sparkling stars as Colleen Moore, Corinne Griffith, Florence Vidor, Mabel Ballin and Ruth Clifford essay to make them real. All of these girls have lately departed from their pet traditions in recreating these characters of yesteryear.

They will add much to their versatility as actresses by their endeavor to revive the sentiments, the graces and the romance of the days when mother and grandmother were youngsters, and perhaps bring a host of fond recollections to the minds of many fans.

What a piquant bit of femininity is here presented by Colleen Moore in "So Big"—the flapper of the basque and bustle of the 80's.
